Technology in Educational Management Arthur Tatnall,Adrie J. Visscher,Andrew Finegan,Christopher O'Mahony,2009-04-01 Evolution of Information Technology in Educational Management As the editors of this volume we are very happy to publish a selection of the papers that were presented at the eighth Conference of Working Group 3 7 of the International Federation for Information Processing which was held in July 2008 The focus of Working Group 3 7 is on ITEM Information Technology in Educational Management for more information please visit our website <http://item.wceruw.org> and the theme of its 2008

conference was on the Evolution of Information Technology in Educational Management Our Working Group started its activities officially we were not an IFIP Working Group at that time in 1994 in Israel so it made sense to look at how ITEM has evolved over the years and to reflect on what its future may be The conference took place in Darwin northern Australia which even during the Australian winter is a very pleasant location for having a conference The town of Darwin was given its name by the Captain of the Beagle the ship on which Darwin travelled when he made the investigations on which he based his Theory of Evolution who came to the area and named the town after the giant of science he admired Kindergarten Panic Bailey A. Brown, 2025-08-19 How school choice reproduces inequality by creating gendered and socioeconomic decision making labor for parents School choice policies have proliferated in recent years with parents forced to navigate complex admission processes In New York City families have more options than ever before but the search for the right school has proven to be time consuming painstaking and anxiety provoking work In Kindergarten Panic Bailey Brown examines the experiences of parents as they search for elementary schools finding that socioeconomic inequalities and persistent disparities in resources information access and decision making power contribute to broad variation in how families develop and manage their school choice labor strategies The labor that parents invest in searching for schools is unevenly distributed and shaped by gender socioeconomic background and neighborhood contexts Drawing on interviews with more than a hundred parents of elementary school students in New York City Brown shows how inequality manifests itself as parents and students deal with the uncertainties of the school choice process By conceptualizing school decision making as labor she makes visible the often unseen work that goes into making educational decisions for children Brown argues that recognizing school choice as labor both deepens our theoretical understanding of the challenges families confront and identifies vast disparities in parents labor across socioeconomic and gender divisions If parents continue to be charged with searching for schools we must take seriously how school choice policies reproduce the kind of inequality they are intended to reduce and we must invest in providing equitable access to high quality public schooling for all families
