Preventing the Future Tom Garvin, 2004-08-24 Between the years of the mid thirties through to 1960 independent Ireland suffered from economic stagnation and also went through a period of intense cultural and psychological repression While external circumstances account for much of the stagnation especially the depression of the thirties and the Second World War Preventing the Future argues that the situation was aggravated by internal circumstances The key domestic factor was the failure to extend higher and technical education and training to larger sections of the population This derived from political stalemates in a small country which derived in turn from the power of the Catholic Church the strength of the small farm community the ideological wish to preserve an older society and later gerontocratic tendencies in the political elites and in society as a whole While economic growth did accelerate after 1960 the political stand off over mass education resulted in large numbers of young people being denied preparation for life in the modern world and arguably denied Ireland a sufficient supply of trained labour and educated citizens Ireland's Celtic Tiger of the nineties was in great part driven by a new and highly educated and technically trained workforce The political stalemates of the forties and fifties delayed the initial incomplete take off until the sixties and resulted in the Tiger arriving nearly a generation later than it might have

Fellow, Long Fellow. A Joint Biography of Collins and De Valera T. Ryle Dwyer, 2006-09-12 Michael Collins and Eamon de Valera were the two most charismatic leaders of the Irish revolution This joint biography looks first at their very different upbringings and early careers Both fought in the 1916 Easter Rising although it is almost certain they did not meet during that tumultuous week Their first encounter came when Collins had been released from jail after the rising but de Valera was still inside Collins was one of those who wanted to run a Sinn Féin candidate in the Longford by-election of 1917 De Valera and other leaders opposed this initiative but the Collins group went ahead anyway and the candidate won narrowly The incident typified the relationship between the two men they were vastly different in temperament and style But it was precisely in their differences and contradictions that their fascination lay De Valera the political pragmatist hoped to secure independence through political agitation whereas the ambitious Collins with his restless temperament and boundless energy was an impassioned patriot who believed in terror and assassination T Ryle Dwyer examines the years 1917-22 through the twists and turns of their careers In an epilogue he considers the legacy of Collins on de Valera's political life

Ireland series is a wide ranging informative and hugely engaging study of the long twentieth century surveying politics administrative history social and religious history culture and censorship politics literature and art It focuses on the consolidation of the new Irish state over the course of the twentieth century Professor Keogh highlights the long tragedy of emigration its effect on the Irish psyche and on the under performance of the Irish economy He emphasises the lost opportunities for reform of the 1960s and early 70s Membership of the EU had a diminished impact due to short term and sectionally motivated political thinking and an antiquated government structure Professor Keogh looks at how the despair of the 1950s revisited the country in the 1980s as almost an entire generation felt compelled to emigrate very often as undocumented workers in the United States Professor Keogh also argues that the violence in Northern Ireland from the late 1960s was an Anglo Irish failure which was turned around only when Britain acknowledged the role of the Irish government in its resolution He extends his analysis of the twentieth century to include a wide ranging survey of the most contentious events financial corruption child sexual abuse scandals in the Catholic Church between 1994 and 2005
