Paulo Davim, 2016 Today increasingly more the word sustainability is present in all kinds of discussions at home at work at school in all society Conscious of the environment where we live everybody looks to find the best solutions to solve problems that result from Human Being evolution Management for a sustainable development appears as a process from which organizations try to use all its resources as well as improve its organizational and technological development in order to answer not only to the present but also to future human and social needs Only in this way is it possible to improve the quality of life Seen in this way sustainable development is understood to be people centred We have a special concern with cultural social and economic dimensions where individuals can develop together as a society whilst at the same time individual and organizational activities can be implemented without destroying the present diversity and complexity of the ecological system where we live Taking into account these concerns this book looks to cover issues related to the management for sustainable development in a context where organizations are continually facing high challenges for what concerns the items related to amongst others the re use recycling waste reduction add value low costs and time of production sustainable behaviour not only in an environmental perspective but also in an organizational perspective Today s organizations can no longer develop their practices based in the existent paradigms On the contrary it is necessary to completely break from these paradigms creating a total change of mentality in the way we manage the organizational activities Taking into account this reality managing for a sustainable development appears as a management philosophy focused in productivity improvement considering different kinds of goals such as biological economic and social systems goals Conscious of this reality this book contributes to the exchange of experiences and perspectives about the state of research related to the management for a sustainable development as well as the future direction of this research field It looks to provide a support to academics and researchers as well as those operating in the management field and who need to deal with policies and strategies related to sustainable development issues

Managing Sustainable Development P K Mishra, 2019 Over the millennia the development of the society has led us to swim across the wars socio economic and political instabilities natural disasters and unfavourable climate change thereby causing challenges to the carrying capacity of the Earth and endangering the survival of the future generations Thus the need for attaining a balance between environmental protection and socio economic development of humans and between the present and future needs was felt by the intellectuals and researchers As a solution to this the concept of sustainable development evolved Sustainable development aims to integrate social economic and environmental approaches towards holistic development of mankind However the major challenges of sustainable development include adapting and mitigating global climate change implementing disaster risk management sustainably optimizing production and consumption activities and poverty reduction Hence managing the strategies and policies of achieving sustainable development is essential In this context the present volume contains 16 scholarly papers authored by experts in the field which not only provide an overview of various aspects of the management of sustainable development but also give an analytical account of the issues and challenges associated with it

Managing Sustainable Development Programmes Mr Göran Brulin,Mr Lennart Svensson,2012-09-01 Project work driven by competent project leaders drives positive outcomes Unfortunately these optimistic initial results are often short sighted with few evaluations of their long term impact The research contained in Managing Sustainable Development Programmes reveals an extraordinary level of failure in the durability of large change programmes and projects in both the private and public sectors In this book the authors question whether sustainable development be achieved within the framework of large publicly financed programmes This strong critique of traditional programme implementation overturns much of our current thinking about project delivery and governance The authors focus instead on sustainable change and development They show how active ownership and collaboration between different actors and the dynamics of developmental learning can be used to create programmes and projects that contribute to innovation employment and growth in a way that favours companies employees customers and society in a broader sense The message at its heart is don t blame the project leader but rather look for dynamic possession of projects joint knowledge management and sharing with external stakeholders that will secure long term effects meet their own needs It contains within two key concepts the concept of needs in particular the essential needs of the world's poor to which overriding priority should be given and the idea of limitations imposed by the state of technology and social organization on the environment's ability to meet present and future needs 1 The idea itself is not new and can be found in a lot of cultures e.g. the Indians say 'Treat earth well it is brought from your grandchildren' The important aspect of having this rather vague definition is that for the first time a definition on an international level was found and widely discussed by governments NGOs and the industry 2 1 Wagner G R 1997 S 35 2 compare Matten D Wagner G R 1998 pp 55 56
