Economics of Water Resources: From Regulation to Privatization Nicolas Spulber, Asghar Sabbaghi, 2013-03-14

The purpose of this book is to develop a general economic model which integrates the quantity and quality issues of water resource management and to provide along with a detailed criticism of the policy instruments now in use alternative proposals concerning the efficient allocation and distribution of water In particular we treat water as a multi product commodity where the market plays a major role in determining water quality discriminant pricing and its value to the user We examine the process of moving from administrative allocation and regulation to privatization of the water industry as the key element in promoting effective competition and in providing economic incentives for greater efficiency Water quantity and quality considered independently of each other have been the subject of numerous studies during the last twenty years Let us recall briefly the most outstanding among them A variety of models have been constructed concerning the optimal scheduling and sequence of water supply projects dynamic programming for solving multi bjective functions in water resource development planning models for coordinating regional water resource supply and demand etc Other studies have devised water quality management models including multi period design of regional or municipal wastewater systems cost allocation methods to induce effluent dischargers to participate in regional water systems models to predict the quality of effluent in particular whether it meets certain established standards models for finding optimal waste removal policies at each of the polluting sources and so on Man and Water L. Douglas James, 2021-10-21 Modern man is beginning painfully to learn that he can continue to enjoy basic resources like water only through careful planning and control This book indicates what social scientists have contributed in the past and seeks to encourage their future participation in this critical area The study first describes the background of water use planning and defines the specific problems of control Then five social scientists representing the fields of anthropology economics geography political science and sociology review the contributions their disciplines have made and discuss the problems they can do most toward solving Concluding chapters offer additional commentary and provide an overall evaluation of the present situation in water resource management and suggestions for more meaningful participation by social scientists Merrimack Wastewater Management: Summary report United States.
