Nutrition and AIDS Ronald L. Gordner, 1991

Nutrition and HIV Vivian Pribram, 2011-06-13 Today

over 40 million adults and children worldwide are infected with HIV however knowledge of the disease has increased greatly and the prognosis is now good for those with access to anti retroviral treatment For many HIV is now a long term chronic condition and with decreased mortality patient requirements and disease patterns have changed making it increasingly apparent to health care professionals that the treatment of HIV should include optimum nutrition and healthy lifestyle interventions to help sufferers lead long and healthy lives In this essential new book an international team of authors under the editorship of Specialist HIV Dietitian Vivian Pribram bring together the latest research to provide the practicing dietitian and nutritionist with a practical guide to the nutritional care of the HIV and AIDS patient Students and other health care professionals working and studying this area will also find Nutrition and HIV an important and valuable resource HIV and Aging M. Brennan-Ing,R.F. DeMarco,2016-11-22 Despite decades of attention on building a global HIV research and programming agenda HIV in older populations has generally been neglected until recently This new book focuses on HIV and aging in the context of ageism with regard to prevention treatment guidelines funding and the engagement of communities and health and social service organizations The lack of perceived HIV risk in late adulthood among older people themselves as well on the part of providers and society in general has led to a lack of investment in education testing and programmatic responses Ageism perpetuates the invisibility of older adults and in turn renders current medical and social service systems unprepared to respond to patients needs While ageism may lead to some advantages discounts for services for example it is the negative aspects that must be addressed when determining the appropriate community level response to the epidemic
