Pacific Latin America In Prehistory The Evolution Of Archaic And Formative Cultures:

Pacific Latin America in Prehistory Michael Blake, 1999 A remarkable range of ancient societies and economies flourished in the environmentally diverse coastal regions of Pacific Latin America The essays report on archaeological research in Mexico Guatemala Panama Ecuador Peru and Chile

Histories of Maize in Mesoamerica John Staller, Robert Tykot, Bruce Benz, 2016-06-16 This volume reprints 20 chapters from the editors comprehensive Histories of Maize 2006 that are relevant to Mesoamerican specialists and students New findings and interpretations from the past three years have been included Histories of Maize is the most comprehensive reference source on the botanical genetic archaeological and anthropological aspects of ancient maize published Included in this abridged volume are new introductory and concluding chapters and updated material on isotopic research State of the art research on maize chronology molecular biology and stable carbon isotope research on ancient human diets have provided additional lines of evidence on the changing role of maize through time and space and its spread throughout the Americas The multidisciplinary evidence from the social and biological sciences presented in this volume have generated a much more complex picture of the economic political and religious significance of maize

Early Mesoamerican Social Transformations Richard G. Lesure, 2011-10-04 Between 3500 and 500 bc the social landscape of ancient Mesoamerica was completely transformed At the beginning of this period the mobile lifeways of a sparse population were oriented toward hunting and gathering Three millennia later protourban communities teemed with people These essays by leading Mesoamerican archaeologists examine developments of the era as they unfolded in the Soconusco region along the Pacific coast of Mexico and Guatemala a region that has emerged as crucial for understanding the rise of ancient civilizations in Mesoamerica The contributors explore topics including the gendered division of labor changes in subsistence the character of ceremonialism the emergence of social inequality and large scale patterns of population distribution and social change Together they demonstrate the contribution of Soconusco to cultural evolution in Mesoamerica and challenge what we thought we knew about the path toward social complexity

The Oxford Handbook of Mesoamerican Archaeology Deborah L. Nichols, Christopher A. Pool, 2012-08-22 The Oxford Handbook of Mesoamerican Archaeology provides a current and comprehensive guide to the recent and on going archaeology of Mesoamerica Though the emphasis is on prehispanic societies this Handbook also includes coverage of important new work by archaeologists on the Colonial and Republican periods Unique among recent works the text brings together in a single volume article length regional syntheses and topical overviews written by active scholars in the field of Mesoamerican archaeology The first section of the Handbook provides an overview of recent history and trends of Mesoamerica and articles on national archaeology programs and practice in Central America and Mexico written by archaeologists from these countries These are followed by regional syntheses organized by time period beginning with early hunter gatherer societies and the first farmers of Mesoamerica and concluding with a discussion of the Spanish Conquest and frontiers and peripheries of Mesoamerica Topical and comparative articles comprise the remainder of Handbook They cover important dimensions of prehispanic societies from ecology economy and environment to social and political relations and discuss significant methodological contributions such as geo chemical source studies as well as new theories and diverse theoretical perspectives The Handbook concludes with a section on the archaeology of the Spanish conquest and the Colonial and Republican periods to connect the prehispanic proto historic and historic periods This volume will be a must read for students and professional archaeologists as well as other scholars including historians art historians geographers and ethnographers with an interest in Mesoamerica

Paso de la Amada Richard G Lesure,2021-08-29 Paso de la Amada an archaeological site in the Soconusco region of the Pacific coast of Mexico was among the earliest sedentary ceramic using villages of Mesoamerica With an occupation that extended across 140 ha in 1600 BC it was also one of the largest communities of its era First settled around 1900 BC the site was abandoned 600 years later during what appears to have been a period of local political turmoil The decline of Paso de la Amada corresponded with a rupture in local traditions of material culture and local adoption of the Early Olmec style Stylistically the material culture of Paso de la Amada corresponds predominantly to the pre Olmec Mokaya tradition Excavations at the site have revealed significant earthen constructions from as early as 1700 BC Those include the earliest known Mesoamerican ball court and traces of a series of high status residences This monograph reports on large scale excavations in Mounds 1 12 and 32 as well as soundings in other locations The volume covers all aspects of excavations and artifacts and includes three lengthy interpretive chapters dealing with the main research questions which concern subsistence social inequality and the organizational history of the site

Histories of Maize John Staller,Robert Tykot,Bruce Benz,2016-12-05 Maize has been described as a primary catalyst to complex sociocultural development in the Americas State of the art research on maize chronology molecular biology and stable carbon isotope research on ancient human diets have provided additional lines of evidence on the changing role of maize through time and space and its spread throughout the Americas The multidisciplinary evidence from the social and biological sciences presented in this volume have generated a much more complex picture of the economic political and religious significance of maize The volume also includes ethnographic research on the uses and roles of maize in indigenous cultures and a linguistic section that includes chapters on indigenous folk taxonomies and the role and meaning of maize to the development of civilization Histories of Maize is the most comprehensive reference source on the botanical genetic archaeological and anthropological aspects of ancient maize published to date This book will appeal to a varied audience and have no titles competing with it because of its breadth and scope The volume offers a single source of high quality summary information unavailable elsewhere

Behaviour Behind Bones Sharyn Jones O'Day,Wim Van Neer,Anton

Ervynck,2003-12-01 This book is the first in a series of volumes which form the published proceedings of the 9th meeting of the International Council of Archaeozoology ICAZ held in Durham in 2002 The 35 papers present a series of case studies from around the world. They stretch beyond the standard zooarchaeological topics of economy and ecology and consider how zooarchaeological research can contribute to our understanding of human behaviour and social systems. The volume is divided into two parts. Part 1, Beyond Calories, focuses on the zooarchaeology of ritual and religion. Contributors discuss ways to approach questions of ritual and religion through the faunal record and consider how material culture depicting and/or associated with animals can provide clues about ideology, religious practices, and the role of animals within spiritual systems. Part 2, Equations for Inequality, looks at questions of identity, status, and other forms of social differentiation in former human societies. Contributors discuss how differences in food consumption, nutrition, and food procurement strategies can be related to various forms of social differentiation among individuals and groups.

The Archaeology of Andean Pastoralism José M. Capriles, Nicholas Tripcevich, 2016-05-01. In this book, leading experts uncover and discuss archaeological topics and themes surrounding the long-term trajectory of camelid, llama, and alpaca pastoralism in the Andean highlands of South America. The chapters open up these studies to a wider world by exploring the themes of intensification of herding over time, animal-human relationships, and social transformations, as well as navigating four areas of recent research: the origins of domesticated camelids, variation in the development of pastoralist traditions, ritual and animal sacrifice, and social interaction through caravans. Andeanists and pastoral scholars alike will find this comprehensive work an invaluable contribution to their library and studies.

Growing the Taraco Peninsula Maria C. Bruno, 2024-08-21. Growing the Taraco Peninsula is an examination of long-term human environmental interactions through agriculture among Indigenous communities of the Taraco Peninsula, Bolivia, located on the shores of Lake Titicaca in the Andes. Maria Bruno weaves together ethnographic observations of modern-day Aymara farming practices with an in-depth study of archaeological remains, particularly plants, to examine the development of agricultural landscapes through time. Beginning with the first small-scale communities of the Formative period (1500 BCE–500 CE) through the development of the Tiwanaku state (500–1100 CE), Bruno draws upon ethnographic insights from modern-day Indigenous farming practices on the peninsula, as well as archaeological evidence from excavations at four sites, to explore the landscapes and human-plant relationships that Taraco communities created through their agricultural practices. Through evaluation of environmental data on climate and land use dynamics, rainfall, lake level, and soil character and distribution, she proposes a new hypothesis of how raised-field agriculture may have emerged in the region. With a detailed analysis of foodways at the Kala Uyuni site, her study reveals how Indigenous Taraco communities sustainably incorporated crops and wild plants into their daily and special occasion meals, connecting the agricultural landscapes to local and regional social and political dynamics. Bringing together several indicators of the region's long-term history and demonstrating that shifts in agriculture do not neatly correspond to the changes traditionally highlighted by archaeological culture histories, Growing the Taraco Peninsula reveals Indigenous landscape creation through farming on the Taraco peninsula as a critical example of sustainability. This valuable contribution to Andean archaeology is also of interest to scholars students and the general reader concerned about the environment sustainable farming sustainability Andean history and the Indigenous peoples of the Americas Interregional Interaction in Ancient Mesoamerica Joshua Englehardt, Michael D. Carrasco, 2019-05-27 Interregional Interaction in Ancient Mesoamerica explores the role of interregional interaction in the dynamic sociocultural processes that shaped the pre Columbian societies of Mesoamerica Interdisciplinary contributions from leading scholars investigate linguistic exchange and borrowing scribal practices settlement patterns ceramics iconography and trade systems presenting a variety of case studies drawn from multiple spatial temporal and cultural contexts within Mesoamerica Archaeologists have long recognized the crucial role of interregional interaction in the development and cultural dynamics of ancient societies particularly in terms of the evolution of sociocultural complexity and economic systems Recent research has further expanded the archaeological art historical ethnographic and epigraphic records in Mesoamerica permitting a critical reassessment of the complex relationship between interaction and cultural dynamics This volume builds on and amplifies earlier research to examine sociocultural phenomena including movement migration symbolic exchange and material interaction in their role as catalysts for variability in cultural systems Interregional cultural exchange in pre Columbian Mesoamerica played a key role in the creation of systems of shared ideologies the production of regional or international artistic and architectural styles shifting sociopolitical patterns and changes in cultural practices and meanings Interregional Interaction in Ancient Mesoamerica highlights engages with and provokes questions pertinent to understanding the complex relationship between interaction sociocultural processes and cultural innovation and change in the ancient societies and cultural histories of Mesoamerica and will be of interest to archaeologists linguists and art historians Contributors Philip J Arnold III Lourdes Budar Jos Luis Punzo Diaz Gary Feinman David Freidel Elizabeth Jim nez Garcia Guy David Hepp Kerry M Hull Timothy J Knab Charles L F Knight Blanca E Maldonado Joyce Marcus Jesper Nielsen John M D Pohl Iv n Rivera D Bryan Schaeffer Niklas Schulze
