When the State Speaks, What Should It Say? Corey Brettschneider,2012-07-22 How should a liberal democracy respond to hate groups and others that oppose the ideal of free and equal citizenship The democratic state faces the hard choice of either protecting the rights of hate groups and allowing their views to spread or banning their views and violating citizens rights to freedoms of expression association and religion Avoiding the familiar yet problematic responses to these issues political theorist Corey Brettschneider proposes a new approach called value democracy The theory of value democracy argues that the state should protect the right to express illiberal beliefs but the state should also engage in democratic persuasion when it speaks through its various expressive capacities publicly criticizing and giving reasons to reject hate based or other discriminatory viewpoints Distinguishing between two kinds of state action expressive and coercive Brettschneider contends that public criticism of viewpoints advocating discrimination based on race gender or sexual orientation should be pursued through the state s expressive capacities as speaker educator and spender When the state uses its expressive capacities to promote the values of free and equal citizenship it engages in democratic persuasion By using democratic persuasion the state can both respect rights and counter hateful or discriminatory viewpoints Brettschneider extends this analysis from freedom of expression to the freedoms of religion and association and he shows that value democracy can uphold the protection of these freedoms while promoting equality for all citizens

What People Believe When They Say That People Believe Todd Jones,2010-10-26 In modern life we often hear people say things like Catholics don t believe in using birth control There are many reasons that we want to know what groups of people such as Catholics are thinking and doing But it s hard to understand which social situations are being described by such statements It s also difficult to understand what speakers believe when they make such statements even when the speakers are social scientists In this work cognitive scientist and philosopher Todd Jones looks at the different things that social scientists and ordinary speakers mean when they make statements ascribing beliefs or actions to groups rather than individuals Such statements are often denigrated as mere stereotypes or generalizations Yet they are also used by people to strategize about what actions to take and even for social scientific explanations In this work Jones takes a detailed look at the different things these kinds of statements about groups can mean and the various social structures they correspond to He also looks at how such statements can and can t be used to successfully explain the behavior of individuals or groups While many people broadly dismiss such statements about groups Jones gives a careful discussion of the problems and possibilities such statements have

Fienup-Riordan,2016-10-15 In October of 2010 six men who were serving on the board of the Calista Elders Council CEC gathered in Anchorage with CEC staff to spend three days speaking about the subsistence way of life The men shared stories of their early years growing up on the land and harvesting through the seasons and the dangers they encountered there The gathering was striking for its regional breadth as elders came from the Bering Sea coast as well as the Yukon and Kuskokwim rivers And while their accounts had some commonalities they also served to demonstrate the wide range of different approaches to subsistence in different regions This book gathers the men s stories for the current generation and those to come Taken together they become more than simply oral histories rather they testify to the importance of transmitting memories and culture and of preserving knowledge of vanishing ways of life Mother's Milk Deena Aranoff,2025-09-02
