Peter Dinklage, President, American Electric Power

"We cannot become complacent. We must always be looking for ways to improve our performance. We must always be looking for ways to improve our performance."

— Peter Dinklage, President, American Electric Power

Managing effectively is a skill that can be learned. It is a skill that is essential for success in any organization. The most effective managers are those who are able to motivate their employees, set clear goals, and communicate effectively. They are also able to delegate responsibility and to listen to their employees. Managing effectively is not a one-time event; it is a continuous process. Managers must constantly evaluate their performance and make adjustments as needed. Managing effectively is a skill that can be learned and it is a skill that is essential for success in any organization.
