Managing For Results :

Managing For Results Peter Drucker, 2012-09-10 Managing for Results demonstrates Drucker's particular genius for breaking through conventional outlooks and opening up new perspectives for ultimate profits in the world of business. What must be done to make the organization perform, prosper and grow? What the executive, the maker of decisions must do to move the enterprise forward is the subject of this book. It will be of great value to students of management as well as executives in industry and commerce and it deals skilfully and perceptively with economic tasks which every business has to tackle in order to achieve sound performance and economic results. Managing for Results Gillian Watson, Kevin Gallagher, 2005 The text is designed to cater for all students studying the CIPD Managing for Results module as part of the recently introduced Leadership and Management Standards as well as for students taking an introductory management module on a management business or HR degree programme. BOOK JACKET Managing for Results Peter F. Murphy and John Carnevale Using evaluation to support performance management: a guide for federal executives. Kathryn E. Newcomer and Mary Ann Scheirer Managing for outcomes: milestone contracting in Oklahoma. Peter Frumkin Using performance data for accountability: the New York City Police Department's CompStat model of police management. Paul E. O'Connell Potential of the Government Performance and Results Act as a tool to manage third party government. David G. Frederickson Managing for Results, 2005 John M. Kamensky, Albert Morales, 2005 The managing for results movement that began in the early 1990s has now reached adolescence and is creating new challenges for government managers. After spending years creating planning and performance measuring systems, managers and policy makers now need to focus on how to use performance information to make data driven decisions. Managing Results for 2005 describes through a series of case studies the progress being made in federal, state and local governments in managing for results. Part I increases our understanding about the potential use of performance information in government. It starts with a chapter on how government leaders can overcome obstacles to using performance information. Another chapter presents a comprehensive framework for tying performance to the budget process. The book provides specific examples of how performance information has been used to dramatically improve program outcomes. Part II presents case studies on the use of performance information to improve results in a range of federal agencies in Texas state government and in the City of Baltimore. As pioneering efforts, these examples do not all present success stories nevertheless the lessons learned will be instructive to public managers as the managing for results movement advances toward maturity

Supervision John W. Newstrom, Lester R. Bittel, 2002 This book first published under the title of What Every Supervisor Should Know provides the very latest information and the most current points of view from authoritative sources

Managing for Results United States Accounting Office (GAO), 2018-06 Managing For Results Next Steps to Improve the Federal Government's Management and Performance

Managing for Results U.S. Government Accountability Office (G.U. S. Government Accountability Office), 2013-06 GAO discussed how federal agencies can better measure their performance to improve the effectiveness, efficiency, quality, and timeliness of federal programs. GAO noted that 1 federal agencies need to take certain actions to ensure the development of good performance measures 2 agencies need to use a strategic management process that focuses on agency missions, program goals, and desired results 3 stakeholders' consensus and involvement is critical to ensure proper development of performance measures 4 successful performance measurement systems have measures that are outcome-linked, responsive to multiple priorities, responsibility-linked, and based on credible financial and performance information 5 agencies should use performance information and benchmarking to set realistic goals and select appropriate process improvement techniques and 6 ongoing performance measurement and benchmarking are essential feedback mechanisms for controlling costs, correcting unanticipated problems in improved processes, and institutionalizing a results-oriented focus

Managing for Results U.S. Government Accountability Office (G.U. S. Government Accountability Office), 2013-06 GAO discussed actions needed to strengthen management in the federal government. GAO noted that the government needs to 1 develop more precise program and business goals and better performance measures 2 improve its operational effectiveness by taking better advantage of reengineering opportunities and investments in modern information technology 3 strengthen its financial management systems to improve management accountability and control its costs and 4 build a capable federal workforce to more effectively and efficiently implement and manage programs. GAO also noted that 1 recent legislation has been enacted to emphasize these practices but congressional oversight is essential to ensure that these actions are taken and 2 the lack of continued leadership in the executive branch has made it difficult for agencies to ensure that their programs are well managed, funds are properly spent, and initiatives are achieving intended results
