Municipal Waste Management in Europe N. Buclet, 2013-06-29 Nicolas Buclet Waste management issues can be approached in several ways The question of which treatment technique to adopt is essentially a downstream problem In our view the issue needed to be tackled further upstream Waste management is not only a technical problem it is also an area which involves various actors throughout society In this book as in the previous volume Buclet Godard 2000 the organisation of waste management is seen in terms of regimes A regime is an entire form of institutional technical economic and social organisation relating to a specific field no matter how complex that field is Regime formation is generally a long drawn out process rooted in the multiple interactions of the actors involved Legislation plays a crucial role but would not of itself lead to the formation of a regime There is always the old question of causality and which element occurs first the behaviour of actors who constitute the reality or the legislation that models their behaviour Besides legislation other formal or informal conventions influence the behaviour of actors approaching a common path making co ordination easier between them In this book we have insisted on conventional principles They are the real guides for actors within each national regime
