Medieval Farming And Technology:

Medieval Farming and Technology Grenville G. Astill, John Langdon, 1997 This is the first of three planned volumes which deal with the techniques and technology of agriculture in Europe in the period from 600 A D down to the 17th century The focus of this first volume is Scandinavia the British Isles Northern Germany the Low Countries and Northern France The volume discusses methodological approaches and their limitations the development of medieval agriculture in terms of the transmission of technological ideas improvements in productivity regional variations social responses to agricultural technology and those common trends that unite the Northwest European region The volume integrates material derived from the great advances made in medieval archaeology and the historical study of landscapes during the past 30 years and has a supranational character It will be of interest to all those working on the social economic and political history of Northwest Europe in the medieval and early modern periods as well as to those undertaking research in the specific field of the history of technology Technology and Change in History This new series of scholarly surveys is intended to offer an updating of the discussion of questions regarding the nature of technology and technological change first broached in the nine volume survey by R Forbes Studies in Ancient Technology The series will however take in not only the original scope of Forbes work namely the Ancient Near East and the Greco Roman world but will extend beyond this to cover the medieval and early modern periods 7 The volumes in the series will be in English of 300 800 pp divided into 10 15 topical chapters and aim to present to scholars graduate students and to non specialist scholars the current state of knowledge in the various fields in the history of technology They collect assimilate and present facts opinion sources and literature in the accessible way that Forbes did but will also identify issues that have not been plainly addressed and will in doing so indicate where the field might profitably be going Including notes and numerous illustrations the volumes address questions of a primarily historical nature such as 1 what technological options were open to peoples at different times and different places 2 what options did they choose and why 3 what impact did this have on their contemporaries and successors and on their technological choices Questions and problems more proper to political social and economic history will also be touched upon but the starting point and focus of this new series is the history of technology Volumes planned in the series include R J Curtis Food Technology in Antiquity 1999 M C Deprez Masson and N J Mayhew eds Metal Technology 600 1800 A D 2001 P Squatriti ed Medieval Hydrotechnology 2001 O Wikander ed Ancient Water Technology 1998 G R H Wright Ancient Building Technology 1999 J Langdon and G Astill eds Agrarian Technology in the Middle Ages Northwest Europe 1996 Medieval Farming and Technology ,2023-07-24 This is the first of three planned volumes which deal with the techniques and technology of agriculture in Europe in the period from 600 A D down to the 17th century The focus of this first volume is Scandinavia the British Isles Northern Germany the Low Countries and Northern France The volume discusses methodological approaches and their limitations the development of medieval agriculture in terms of the transmission of technological ideas improvements in productivity regional variations social responses to agricultural technology and those common trends that unite the Northwest European region The volume integrates material derived from the great advances made in medieval archaeology and the historical study of landscapes during the past 30 years and has a supranational character It will be of interest to all those working on the social economic and political history of Northwest Europe in the medieval and early modern periods as well as to those undertaking research in the specific field of the history of technology Medieval Farming and Technology : the Impact of Agricultural Change in Northwest Europe John Langdon, 1997

Agriculture in the Middle Ages Del Sweeney, 2016-11-11 Explores the cultural framework within which changes in agricultural technology and economic organization occur and the ways in which changes in the social fabric influence attitudes toward rural work and the peasantry Medieval Science, Technology, and Medicine Thomas F. Glick, Steven Livesey, Faith Wallis, 2014-01-27 Medieval Science Technology and Medicine details the whole scope of scientific knowledge in the medieval period in more than 300 A to Z entries This resource discusses the research application of knowledge cultural and technology exchanges experimentation and achievements in the many disciplines related to science and technology Coverage includes inventions discoveries concepts places and fields of study regions and significant contributors to various fields of science There are also entries on South Central and East Asian science This reference work provides an examination of medieval scientific tradition as well as an appreciation for the relationship between medieval science and the traditions it supplanted and those that replaced it For a full list of entries contributors and more visit the Routledge Encyclopedias of the Middle Ages website Routledge Revivals: Medieval Science, Technology and Medicine (2006) Thomas Glick, Steven J. Livesey, Faith Wallis, 2017-07-05 First published in 2005 this encyclopedia demonstrates that the millennium from the fall of the Roman Empire to the Renaissance was a period of great intellectual and practical achievement and innovation In Europe the Islamic world South and East Asia and the Americas individuals built on earlier achievements introduced sometimes radical refinements and laid the foundations for modern development Medieval Science Technology and Medicine details the whole scope of scientific knowledge in the medieval period in more than 300 A to Z entries This comprehensive resource discusses the research application of knowledge cultural and technology exchanges experimentation and achievements in the many disciplines related to science and technology It also looks at the relationship between medieval science and the traditions it supplanted Written by a select group of international scholars this reference work will be of great use to scholars students and general readers researching topics in many fields including medieval studies world history history of science history of technology history of medicine and cultural studies Field Systems and Farming Systems in Late Medieval England Bruce M.S. Campbell, 2023-05-31 The later Middle Ages was an overwhelmingly rural world with probably three out of four households reliant upon farming for a living Yet conventional accounts of the period rarely do justice to the variety of ways in which the land was managed and worked The thirteen essays collected in this volume draw upon the abundant documentary evidence of the period to explore that diversity In the process they engage with the issue of classification without which effective generalisation is impossible and offer a series of solutions to that particularly thorny methodological challenge Only through systematic and objective classification is it possible to differentiate between and map different field systems husbandry types and land use categories That in turn makes it possible to consider and evaluate the relative roles of soils and topography institutional structures and commercialised market demand in shaping farm enterprise both during the period of mounting population before the Black Death and the long era of demographic decline that followed it What emerges is an agrarian world more commercialised differentiated and complex than is usually appreciated whose institutional and agronomic contours shaped the course of agricultural development for centuries to come

A Cultural History of Work in the Medieval Age Valerie L. Garver, 2020-09-17 Winner of the 2020 PROSE Award for Multivolume Reference Humanities Work was central to medieval life Religious and secular authorities generally expected almost everyone to work Artistic and literary depictions underlined work's cultural value The vast majority of medieval people engaged in agriculture because it was the only way they could obtain food Yet their work led to innovations in technology and production and allowed others to engage in specialized labor helping to drive the growth of cities Many workers moved to seek employment and to improve their living conditions For those who could not work charity was often available and many individuals and institutions provided forms of social welfare Guilds protected their members and created means for the transmission of skills When they were not at work medieval Christians were to meet their religious obligations yet many also enjoyed various pastimes A consideration of medieval work is therefore one of medieval society in all its creativity and complexity and that is precisely what this volume provides A Cultural History of Work in the Medieval Age presents an overview of the period with essays on economies representations of work workplaces work cultures technology mobility society politics and leisure

Technology in Mediterranean and European Lands, 600–1600 Pamela O. Long, 2025-04-15 How medieval and Renaissance technology shaped Mediterranean and European society across a millennium In Technology in Mediterranean and European Lands 600–1600 Pamela O Long explores the intricate web of technological advancements that shaped Mediterranean and European societies during the medieval and early modern periods From the essential crafts of ploughing and tailoring to the sophisticated hydraulic systems and monumental building constructions Long illuminates how ordinary people harnessed and transformed their world Drawing on recent scholarship on environmental history and the history of technology as well as materials object biographies and the circulation of objects Long examines the circulation of ideas and technologies in Europe and the Mediterranean The book covers the evolution of food production transportation and communication as well as the crafting of pottery weapons and machines This in depth historical analysis shows how these technological advancements had profound social and economic impacts on everyday life Long's meticulous research and engaging narrative bring to light the interconnectedness of various crafts and their contributions to the broader tapestry of human history By integrating archaeological findings historical texts and modern scientific methods the book offers an interdisciplinary perspective on the technological practices of the pre modern world Perfect for scholars students and history enthusiasts Technology in Mediterranean and European Lands 600 1600 emphasizes the ingenuity and resilience of past civilizations and the enduring legacy of technological innovation The Rise and Decline of Dutch Technological Leadership (2 Vols) Karel Davids,2008-09-17 This book provides a wide ranging overview of Dutch technological leadership in the early modern Europe it explains whence this leadership came about and why it ended and it explores to what extent the Dutch case illuminates the evolution of technological leadership in general
