Men, Masculinities, and Earth Paul M. Pulé, Martin Hultman, 2021-08-03 This book considers issues of social and ecological significance through a masculinities lens Earth our home for aeons is reeling The atmosphere is heating up causing reefs to bleach fisheries to collapse regions to flood and dry vast tracts to burn the polar ice caps to melt ancient glaciers to retreat biodiversity to decline exacerbated by the sixth great extinction and more Meanwhile social and economic disparities are widening Pandemics are cauterising global communities and altering our social mores Nationalism is feeding divisiveness and hate especially through men's violence Politically extreme individuals and groups are exalting freedom while scapegoating the marginalised Such are the symptoms of an emerging Anthropocene This anthology contends with these alarming trends pointing our attention towards their gendered origins Building on our monograph Ecological Masculinities: Theoretical Foundations and Practical Guidance 2018 this collection of essays is framed as a dinner party conversation grouped into six discursive themes Their views reflect a growing community of practice whose combined efforts capture the most recent perspectives on masculine ecologisation Together they aim to help create a more caring world for all moving the ecological masculinities conversation forward as it becomes an established international and pluralised field of study

Men, Masculinities and the Care of Children Martin Robb, 2019-11-21 Sharing the care of children in families is increasingly becoming the norm in modern day society as more mothers enter paid work and government campaigns endeavour to increase the number of men working in childcare However running alongside debates of gender imbalance in childcare there has also been mounting anxiety from the media and public about the risks of child abuse often perceived as being mostly perpetrated by men and calling for firmer regulation of men's involvement with children This book asks whether men's care for children both as fathers and practitioners actually differs at all from the care provided by mothers and female carers. In what ways do men and concepts of masculinity need to change if they are to play a greater role in the care of children or are such societal perceptions based on outdated gender stereotypes? Bringing together cutting edge theory up to date research and current practice this book analyses the role of both fathers and male professionals working with children and highlights the implications of this for future policy and practice. It also examines dominant notions of masculinity and representations of male carers in the media and popular culture asking how our societal expectations may need to evolve if men are to play an equal role in the care of children as demanded by current policy and wider social developments.

Men, Masculinities and Poverty in the UK Sandy Ruxton, 2002. Men Masculinities and Poverty in the UK was commissioned by Oxfam's UK Poverty Programme to explore how changing economic social and political circumstances are affecting gender relations. Sandy Ruxton draws upon a review of the relevant literature and the experience of a wide range of community based groups across the UK in particular those working in the fields of employment training men's health gender based violence and fatherhood. He highlights the importance of using a coherent gender analysis to assess the nature scope and effectiveness of work with men and concludes with recommendations for developing work with men in the UK in order to address poverty and gender inequality.

A Man's World? Bob Pease, Keith Pringle, 2001. Men face common issues but are experiencing them all over the world in very different contexts and are coming up with different priorities and strategies to address them. This new series provides a vehicle for understanding this diversity.
