2000 Annual Review of Development Effectiveness William Battaille, 2001-01-01 This Annual Review of Development Effectiveness ARDE builds on previous reviews i e the 1998 review released in a hostile environment of financial crisis concluded that improvements in project performance cannot be enough that improvements at a higher plane of program and country performance should also be present and the 1999 review inscribed within the Comprehensive Development Framework dilemmas and challenges identified practices for dealing with those challenges namely to be based on country commitments to poverty reduction and sustainable growth The ARDE 2000 finds that progress was solid on a broad front but that further progress is likely Portfolio performance is likely to exceed the Strategic Compact target of seventy five percent satisfactory outcomes and sustainability and institutional development ratings reflect improvements Though progress is commendable this review examines four tensions the Bank faces learning to reconcile client and corporate priorities adapting global prescriptions to local conditions balancing country performance and poverty incidence in allocating its resources and achieving efficiency selectivity seeking to implement a holistic vision of development Bank strategies should acknowledge client needs judicious adaptation to institutional social and political fronts should be pursued and an approach to poor performing countries should be addressed

Saving Across the World Klaus Schmidt-Hebbel, Luis Servén, 1997-01-01 World Bank Technical Paper No 349 The Bank's approach to water resources development has shifted from one of construction activities to one of improved management quality creating a new generation of water related projects and the need for new evaluation procedures This paper addresses the methodology for economic evaluation of this new group of projects and draws on the experience of the recently approved Mexico Water Resources Management project

Hydropower and irrigation projects involving reservoirs can displace thousands of people from their traditional lands and deprive them of their livelihoods If poorly planned they can also lead to environmental degradation Solutions to these problems must be found solutions that are technically feasible sustainable environmentally appropriate and acceptable to the people who are resettled This paper explains how the planned integrated development of fishery ecosystems in reservoirs not only can mitigate the negative social consequences of dam construction but also can enhance the economic benefits from hydropower and irrigation projects in many developing countries The paper draws on the success of fish farming efforts in the Saguling and Cirata reservoirs in Java which attests to the potential for creating employment in reservoirs that are in place and under construction around the world A Poverty Profile of Cambodia Nicholas M. Prescott,Menno

Pradhan,1997-01-01 China is in the throes of two transitions from a command economy to a market based one and from a rural agricultural society to an urban industrial one So far both transitions have been spectacularly successful China is the fastest growing economy in the world with per capita incomes more than quadrupling since 1978 achieving in two generations what took other countries centuries Although swift growth and structural change have resolved many problems they also have created new challenges employment insecurity growing inequality stubborn poverty mounting environmental pressures rising costs of food self sufficiency and periods of macroeconomic instability stemming from incomplete reforms Unmet these challenges could undermine the sustainability of growth and China s promise could fade China 2020 a seven volume set examines China s recent history where it is today and the path it should follow during the first two decades of the 21st century The volume in the set entitled Financing Health Care Issues and Options for China assesses the state of health care in China and addresses the problems facing the sector in terms of financial access to health care efficiency and total cost. Although the health sector is in relatively good condition today, this study asserts the need to promptly make policy changes to ensure universal health care coverage by either the public or the private sector over the next two decades. Chapters focus on the effects of reduced public health spending on rural populations, the likely increase in health costs as the population ages, the harmful effects of tobacco use, and fee-for-service provider systems.

Sustainability of a Government Targeted Credit Program Shahidur R. Khandker, Zahed H. Khan, M. A. Baqui Khalily, 1995-01-01 World Bank Technical Paper No 304. Reviews the status and availability in developing countries of photovoltaic PV technology and looks at the prospects for using this technology in light of current energy use and costs of other energy sources. The report provides the necessary background information and highlights the questions raised and the calculations that must be made whenever PV applications are being considered in the developing world.

Handbook on Development Policy and Management Colin H. Kirkpatrick, Ron Clarke, Charles Polidano, 2002-01-01. This is a book one would expect to find in all libraries and on all development studies reading lists. John Hailey, Journal of International Development. The Handbook is a unique reference tool on international development policy and management. Its format, both comprehensive in coverage and concise in content, will make it essential reading for the growing number of postgraduates studying development policy and management, as well as for public administration, foreign consultants, and aid workers in low and middle income countries. Andrew Nickson, Public Administration. This Handbook will surely prove to be an essential to the students, practitioners, and others concerned with improvement of human condition in developing countries. Pundarik Mukhopadhaya, The Singapore Economic Review. This Handbook offers a significant remedy to the scarcity of material in this important area. It is certainly very near the top of this reviewer's list of recommended reading for students, researchers, and practitioners concerned with development policy. Michael Tribe, Development Policy Review. The Handbook offers an excellent one-volume survey of modern development policy and practice in poor countries. Tony Jackson, The Journal of the Institution of Economic Development. This comprehensive collection contains an excellent introduction to all the major issues of development policy. Frances Stewart, Queen Elizabeth House, University of Oxford, UK. This important Handbook on international development policy and management covers a broad spectrum of contemporary topics across all the major areas of interest. With over 40 chapters, the book comprehensively explores the many themes and issues of significance for both policy and implementation and provides easily accessible reference material on current practice and research. The 42 contributors come from a diverse range of backgrounds and enjoy international reputations in their chosen fields. The Handbook is organised in two parts: one dealing with policy issues and the other with implementation and management issues. The first part on policy covers a wide range of economic, social, and environmental topics. The second part explores the political context of implementation and development practice and goes on to cover a range of issues relating to management in the public and non-state sectors and the management of development projects Each individual chapter provides background information on theory and practice describes the current state of play examines prospects for the future and includes an annotated guide to further reading This extensive handbook will become an essential reference on international development policy and management Although primarily designed for postgraduate students and scholars of development studies it will also be welcomed by development practitioners NGOs and aid agencies

Rural Extension Services Jock R. Anderson, Gershon Feder, 2003 Anderson and Feder analyze the considerations that lead policymakers to undertake extension investments as a key public responsibility as well as the complex set of factors and intra agency incentives that explain why different extension systems performance vary The authors provide a conceptual framework outlining farmers demand for information the welfare economic characterizations of extension services and the organizational and political attributes that govern the performance of extension systems They use the conceptual framework to examine several extension modalities and to analyze their likely and actual effectiveness Specifically the modalities reviewed include training and visit extension decentralized systems fee for service and privatized extension and farmer field schools The authors also discuss methodological issues pertaining to the assessment of extension outcomes and review the empirical literature on extension impact They emphasize the efficiency gains that can come from locally decentralized delivery systems with incentive structures based largely on private provision that in most poorer countries is still publicly funded In wealthier countries and for particular higher income farmer groups extension systems will likely evolve into fee for service organizations This paper a joint product of the Agriculture and Rural Development Department and Rural Development Development Research Group is part of a larger effort in the Bank to study the opportunities and challenges facing agricultural extension

Private Sector Development During Transition Michael S. Borish, Michel No© ±1, 1996-01-01 French edition World Bank Technical Paper No 298F Les filles et l cole en Afrique subsaharienne De lanalyse l action Summarizes the factors that constrain girls schooling in Sub Saharan Africa and outlines practical ways of designing programs that will accelerate female participation in education in the region Also available in English ISBN 0 8213 3373 9 Stock No 13373

Education Achievements and School Efficiency in Rural Bangladesh Shahidur R. Khandker, 1996-01-01 Two of the largest World Bank investment projects in Bangladesh are the general education project and the female secondary scholarship and assistance project This paper evaluates the expected results of these educational projects using the household and school survey data recently collected in rural Bangladesh Bangladesh spends only 2 percent of its GNP on education compared to 3 2 percent in an average low income country and 6 percent in an average high income country Low investment in education results in low literacy only 35 percent which in turn results in low productivity low incomes poor health and above all high population growth To counter these trends Bangladesh has invested substantially in the education sector in recent years with the help of the World Bank and other donor agencies The objective of this investment has been to improve both the quality and quantity of education especially among the female population

The general education and female secondary school assistance projects are in particular geared to promote better access to primary and secondary education as well as higher school participation and educational attainment Based on the rural household and school survey data on both supply and demand factors this report concludes that school interventions such as more and better schools better trained and educated teachers more female teachers and better water and sanitation facilities in schools promote literacy and improve school participation and school attainment rates Independent of school level interventions complementary investments in village infrastructure roads and electricity also have beneficial effects on educational outcomes The effects of all these interventions are more pronounced for girls than for boys Contains 28 data tables and figures Author TD
