no less likely to exploit marginalized communities than dirtier forms of energy Drawing from ethnographic research on clean energy corporations and community solar campaigns in New York City Lennon argues that both groups overlook solar s extractive underside because they primarily experience energy from the sun in the virtual world of the cloud He shows how the material properties of solar technology its shiny surfaces decentralized spatiality and modularity work closely with images digital platforms and quantitative graphics to shape utopic visions in which renewable energy can eradicate the constitutive tensions of racial capitalism As a corrective to this virtual world Lennon calls for an equitable energy transition that centers the senses and sensibilities neglected by screenwork one s haptic care for their local environment the full bodied feel of infrastructural labor and the sublime affect of the sun
