Multilingualism in 19th-Century European Literature Jana-Katharina Mende, 2023-08-21 The disparagement of multilingualism is a European development of the 18th and 19th centuries in which one national language and national literature were advocated established and institutionalised Multilingual writers made use of the creative potential of several languages even then However they often adapted to an increasingly monolingual book market which made their individual multilingualism invisible This is evident in literary historiography which established a monolingual national canon Researching hidden multilingualism is often difficult since multilingual texts by multilingual writers were often not published or were published in a monolingual version sources are scarce Literary histories of the time often do not mention multilingualism Furthermore many multilingual writers were members of minority groups women Jewish Non European and thus often neglected The volume offers methods and theories to systematically approach this hidden material as well as case studies on authors and national literatures in a multilingual context It thus contributes to the restructuring of a multilingual transnational literary history that is applicable to different philologies

Multilingualism in the Graeco-Roman Worlds

Alex Mullen, Patrick James, 2012-09-06 Through words and images employed both by individuals and by a range of communities across the Graeco Roman worlds this book explores the complexity of multilingual representations of identity Starting with the advent of literacy in the Mediterranean it encompasses not just the Greek and Roman empires but also the transformation of the Graeco Roman world under Islam and within the medieval mind By treating a range of materials contexts languages and temporal and political boundaries the contributors consider points of cross cultural similarity and difference and the changing linguistic landscape of East and West from antiquity into the medieval period Insights from contemporary multilingualism theory and interdisciplinary perspectives are employed throughout to exploit the material fully

Preparing Teachers to Work with Multilingual Learners

Meike Wernicke, Svenja Hammer, Antje Hansen, Tobias Schroedler, 2021-04-15 This collection examines a diverse range of approaches to multilingualism in teacher education programmes across Europe and North America The authors investigate how pre service teachers are being prepared to work in multilingual contexts and discuss the key features of current pre service teacher education initiatives that address the increasing linguistic and cultural diversity evident in classrooms in their respective countries The focus is not only on migrant background learners but includes students from Indigenous autochthonous and heritage language backgrounds and speakers of minoritised regional varieties The chapters contextualise both historically and ideologically the specific initiatives and measures taken in the participating countries They also reveal the complexity of each educational context and the role that history language policies and institutional and programmatic priorities play in the development and implementation of a multilingual focus in teacher education In exploring how pre service teachers are being prepared to work in multilingual contexts the authors take a critical view of how multilingualism itself is conceptualised within and across contexts The book highlights the valuable impact that explicit instruction on theories of multilingualism pedagogies in multilingual classrooms and lived realities of multilingual children can have on the beliefs and practices of pre service teachers

Literary

Multilingualism in the Borderlands Marianna Deganutti, 2023-08-24 This book focuses on literary multilingualism and specifically on the challenging condition of writing in Trieste a key European borderland located at the intersection between the Latin Germanic and Slav civilisations By focusing on some of the most representative modern writers operating in the area such as Italo Svevo Boris Pahor Claudio Magris and James Joyce this work offers a wide ranging discussion of multilingual practices deriving from the different language choices made by these writers Along with the most common manifest strategies such as code switching and hybridisations Deganutti highlights how Triestine writers found innovative latent practices to engage with multilingualism such as writing in an analogical way or exploiting internal linguistic stratifications Moreover she shows how they provided answers to the several linguistic cultural and even political challenges they were subjected to with the result of redefining linguistic boundaries that clearly separate different tongues This book will be of interest to graduate students researchers and academics interested in literary multilingualism in the fields of sociolinguistics borderland studies and comparative literature
