

Fieldwork enquiry skills that will be examined in Component 3

Examples (in italics) are to aid understanding and suggest range, and these are not compulsory.

The enquiry process	Individuals should learn how to
1.1 What is the geographical enquiry process?	1.1 Pose questions about geographical processes/concepts that include questioning about spatial patterns and geographical processes/change. Test hypotheses.
1.2 How is evidence collected?	1.2 Design fieldwork data collection sheets. Select specific locations at which data can be collected. Establish control groups. Justify sample size and sampling technique, coverage to include sampling using random, systematic, opportunistic and/or stratified techniques. Use fieldwork equipment to obtain accurate and reliable results (for example the use of clinometer or quadrats). Collect data using quantitative and qualitative techniques. Quantitative techniques should include those that measure: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • flow (for example, discharge, infiltration, traffic) • scale (for example, river width, pebble size, gradient) • spatial pattern (for example, retail land use, sediment sorting) • temporal change (for example, temperature, rainfall, pressure). Qualitative techniques should include use of questionnaires, bi-polar techniques and annotation of photos/sketches. Use secondary sources of evidence to include satellite images, aerial and oblique photographs, large databases (for example, National Statistics) and GIS (for example, Environment Agency).
1.3 How can evidence be processed and presented?	1.3 Process evidence to include calculation of percentages and mean. Present evidence to include maps, graphs and diagrams. Reference secondary data sources accurately. For details of numerical and statistical skills, including specific graphical and cartographic representation techniques, see Appendix A pages 27-28.
1.4 How can evidence be analysed and how do patterns and trends evidenced by fieldwork relate to wider geographical knowledge and understanding?	1.4 Identify, analyse and interpret trends and patterns. Apply knowledge and understanding of broad geographical concepts and processes to specific evidence collected during the enquiry.
1.5 What conclusions may be drawn from fieldwork enquiries?	1.5 Synthesise findings to reach evidenced conclusions that relate to the initial aim of the enquiry. Appreciate that geography can be 'messy' i.e. that fieldwork does not always match typical or predicted outcomes.
1.6 What evaluative techniques should be applied to the enquiry process?	1.6 Identify the limitations of geographical evidence: accuracy, reliability and bias. Reflect critically on the strengths and limitations of both primary and secondary data, methods used, conclusions drawn and knowledge gained. Appreciate that stakeholders may have vested interests (for example, where primary or secondary sources of data rely on opinion).

Questionnaires And Interviews In Geographical Research Concepts And Techniques In Modern Geography 18:

Questionnaires and Interviews in Geographical Research Chris J. Dixon, Bridget Leach, 1978 Economic Activity and Land Use The Changing Information Base for Local and Regional Studies Michael J. Healey, 2014-10-13 Concerned primarily with statistical data this text aims to provide a guide to the nature, uses, availability and limitations of the main data sources for interpreting and undertaking regional studies of economic activity. It also considers the methods used for the collection of this data. Methods and Techniques in Human Geography Guy M. Robinson, 1998-07-03 The study of Human Geography has changed. From the quantitative revolution of the 1960s to the recent cultural turn, new theories, approaches, methodologies and arguments have completely remapped the discipline of Geography. Methods and Techniques in Human Geography provides the fullest available introduction and assessment of these changes in both quantitative and qualitative Geography. Clearly, concisely and generously written, Methods and Techniques in Human Geography will become the student's companion to one of the most widely misunderstood, contested and fascinating areas of Human Geography. Geography: Social Science Contents Introduction Exploring Geographical Data Testing Hypotheses Measuring Associations Multivariate Analysis Generalised Linear Models and Categorical Data Analysis Spatial Allocation Spatial Interaction Spatial Statistics Spatial Models and Spatial Structure Space and Time Systems and Geographical Information Systems Investigating Behaviour and Perception Qualitative Methods Marxist Analysis in Human Geography Feminist Geographies Postmodern Geographies Practising Human Geography Paul Cloke, Ian Cook, Philip Crang, Mark Goodwin, Joe Painter, Chris Philo, 2004-04-21 Filling an enormous gap in the geographic literature, here is a terrific book that shows us how to think about and practice human geographic research. Professor Jennifer Wolch, University of Southern California. Practising Human Geography lucidly, comprehensively and sometimes passionately shows why methodology matters and why it is often so hard. To choose a method is to choose the kind of geographical values one wants to uphold. You need to get it right. These authors do. Trevor Barnes, University of British Columbia. Practising Human Geography is a godsend for students. Written in an accessible and engaging style, the book demystifies the study of geographical methodology, offering a wealth of practical advice from the authors' own research experience. This is not a manual of approved geographical techniques. It is a reflexive, critical and highly personal account combining historical depth with up-to-the-minute examples of research in practice. Practising Human Geography is a comprehensive and theoretically informed introduction to the practices of fieldwork, data collection, interpretation and writing, enabling students to make sense of their own data and to develop a critical perspective on the existing literature. The book makes complicated ideas approachable through the effective use of case studies and a firm grasp of contemporary debates. Peter Jackson, Professor of Human Geography, University of Sheffield. Practising Human Geography is a critical introduction to key issues in the practice of human geography, informed by the question: how do geographers do research? In examining those methods and practices that are essential to doing geography, the text presents a theoretically informed discussion of the construction and interpretation of geographical data including the use of core research methodologies using official and non official sources and the interpretative role of the researcher Framed by an overview of how ideas of practising human geography have changed the twelve chapters offer a comprehensive and integrated overview of research methodologies The text is illustrated throughout with text boxes case studies and definitions of key terms Practising Human Geography will introduce geographers from undergraduate to faculty to the core issues that inform research design and practice The Student's Companion to Geography Alisdair Rogers, Heather A.

Viles, 2002-11-22 This essential guide to studying geography has been updated to ensure it remains a valuable resource for all those on geography courses as well as those considering studying the subject at university Second edition of this popular and wide ranging guide to studying geography Includes contributions from many key geographers around the world Provides answers to questions from before starting a degree course right through to further study and careers Includes lots of practical tips for improving geographical study and research skills Fully revised and updated to ensure it remains an invaluable resource for students Introduction to Statistics for Geographers and Earth Scientists R. B. G. Williams, 1984

The aims of statistics Types of numerical data Populations and samples Probability and randomness Frequency distributions Measures of central tendency Measures of dispersion and skewness The binomial and poisson distributions The normal and log normal distributions Hypothesis testing One sample tests based on Z and t Interval estimation based on z and t Paired sample test based on t and w Two sample tests based on F t and U Chi square tests the product moment coefficient of correlation The interpretation of correlation coefficients Linear regression Confidence limits and significance tests for sample regression lines Geographical Data Analysis Nigel Walford, 1995-07-05 It is increasingly important for the earth science student to appreciate that the acquisition of skills in statistics and computerised data analysis is as much part of modern geography as work in the field laboratory or library In this respect Geographical Data Analysis aims to link the use of statistical techniques by means of computer software to the acquisition of geographical knowledge and the scientific method of enquiry The book has three objectives to explain basic statistical techniques and demonstrate their application to quantitative geography to equip students with the knowledge and skills necessary for carrying out research projects and to make the link between statistical analysis and the substantive topics taught as part of a geography course An important innovative feature of the book is its project orientated approach which utilises exemplar projects drawn from human and physical geography Each exemplar project shows the progress from the conception of the initial research through to the formulation of tentative hypotheses and the subsequent statistical analysis The projects exemplify both primary and secondary methods for collecting geographical data with the computer based application of a wide range of statistical techniques Thus these projects allow discussion of sample design data collection and computerisation and a selection of appropriate statistical techniques As such Geographical Data Analysis integrates quantitative and geographical methodologies and provides a thorough understanding of basic statistical techniques for the undergraduate geography student it will be of use from first year through to final degree dissertations
