An Expert's Viewpoint:

Whirlpool developed a sales training program that mirrored MTV's The Real World. National training manager Jackie Seib helped come up with the idea of putting a dozen or so strangers (new salespeople) in a house full of Whirlpool appliances. The new hires stay in the home for two months, using the appliances and working with engineers to learn how they work. Seib says "We really wanted them to understand the appliances as a consumer would, so they can bring real-world stories about the appliances to the sales floor."
