Banking Reform in Transtition Stijn Claessens, 1999 August 1996 The institutional capacity of banks in transition economies improves faster when a new or parallel private banking system is allowed to emerge than it does when the government tries simply to reform existing state owned banks Banking reform should stress decentralized institution building and penalties for weak banks In reforming the financial sector in transition economies one important debate is about whether governments should try to reform existing state owned banks the rehabilitation approach or whether a new private banking system should be allowed to emerge a new entry approach Or should there be a mix of the two approaches in which the activities of state banks are restricted while a parallel private banking system develops Claessens s cross country comparison of banks institutional development in 25 transition economies suggests that progress can be faster under the new entry approach especially relative to initial conditions Progress under the rehabilitation approach appears to be inhibited by poor incentives In most countries even those with a good banking infrastructure and a large segment of good banks a two track process has evolved with large and growing differences between weak and strong banks Whatever the banking reform approach taken weak banks have moved very little beyond central planning Regression estimates suggest that in transition economies three things are associated with slow progress of weak banks overconcentration preferential treatment by governments and limited entry for new banks The direction of causality is often unclear Policies and structural conditions can affect bank quality but whenever a banking system has a certain quality particular policies may also arise or structures exist The role of banks will remain limited in many transition economies because of weak legal infrastructures much uncertainty and inside information and problems associated with highly leveraged financial intermediaries including fraud political interference and implicit guarantees In the short run self finance and intermediation among enterprises and through nonbank financial institutions may prevail This paper a product of the Office of the Senior Vice President Development Economics was written as a background paper for World Development Report 1996 From Plan to Market Privatization and Restructuring in Central and Eastern Europe Gerhard Pohl,1997-01-01 Why do women in most developing countries lag behind men in literacy Why do women get less schooling than men This anthology examines the educational decisions that deprive women of an equal education It assembles the most up to date data organized by region Each paper links the data with other measures of economic and social development This approach helps explain the effects different levels of education have on womens fertility mortality rates life expectancy and income Also described are the effects of women s education on family welfare The authors look at family size and women s labor status and earnings They examine child and maternal health as well as investments in children s education Their investigation demonstrates that women with a better education enjoy greater economic growth and provide a more nurturing family life It suggests that when a country denies women an equal education the nation s welfare suffers Current strategies used to improve schooling for girls and women are examined in detail The authors suggest an ambitious agenda for educating women It seeks to close the gender gap by the next century Published for The World Bank by The Johns Hopkins University Press China in the New Millennium James A. Dorn,1998 China is expected to become the world s largest economy in less than two decades Whether it does so will depend on continued growth of the non state sector and how well China adapts to global market forces The essays in this volume consider the state of China s economic reforms the institutional changes necessary for China to become a global economic power and the interplay between market reforms and social development in China Corporate Governance in Transition Economies Erik Berglöf,1994 When is Transition Over? Annette N. Brown,1999 Contains six lectures which discuss criteria for determining the end of the transition process These include changes in the characteristics of the economic system outcomes of the transition process and institutional reforms Restructuring Banks and Enterprises Michael S.
