photographs from a humble combination of baby photos and bronzed booties to a masterwork by Alfred Stieglitz Although Batchen views each photograph within the context of broader social and political forces he also engages its own distinctive formal attributes In short he sees photography as something that is simultaneously material and cultural In an effort to evoke the lived experience of history he frequently relies on sheer description as the mode of analysis insisting that we look right at rather than beyond the photograph being discussed A constant theme throughout the book is the question of photography's past present and future identity

Votive Panels and Popular Piety in Early Modern Italy Fredrika H. Jacobs, 2013-10-07 In the late fifteenth century votive panel paintings or tavolette votive began to accumulate around reliquary shrines and miracle-working images throughout Italy

Although often dismissed as popular art of little aesthetic consequence more than 1 500 panels from the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries are extant a testimony to their ubiquity and importance in religious practice Humble in both their materiality and style they represent donors in prayer and supplicants petitioning a saint at a dramatic moment of crisis In this book Fredrika H Jacobs traces the origins and development of the use of votive panels in this period She examines the form context and functional value of votive panels and considers how they created meaning for the person who dedicated them as well as how they accrued meaning in relationship to other images and objects within a sacred space activated by practices of cultic culture
