Transatlantic Security Cooperation in the Asia-Pacific Julianne Smith,Erik Brattberg,Rachel Rizzo,2016 When the Obama administration announced its strategic rebalance to the Asia Pacific region in 2011 a number of European capitals initially worried that it would be followed by a commensurate decline of U S engagement in Europe Some experts felt as though Washington s decision not to invite the EU to join the pivot meant that America did not view Europe as a relevant actor in the Asia Pacific region and that Europe would be increasingly neglected for regions that the United States deemed more important However five years later Europe has come to better understand and accept this policy Alongside this acceptance though are many open ended questions about Europe s policies toward Asia Should for example Europe try to develop its own rebalance in coordination with the United States Or should it leave the foreign and defense issues of the Asia Pacific region largely to the United States The answers to those questions vary by country making a single European policy on Asia impossible to construct As a result Washington has made only modest efforts to enhance its cooperation with Europe in Asia But the next U S president could and should do more to develop a comprehensive and long term strategy toward the region in coordination with European partners This report examines the achievements of the rebalance over the last five years and explores what transatlantic security and defense cooperation in the Asia Pacific should seek to accomplish under the next U S administration Do Washington and European capitals see eye to eye on regional developments and threat assessments today or are there key differences in their respective strategic outlooks Where specifically can Europe bring added value to broader U S security efforts in the Asia Pacific What do expectations on both sides look like Can those expectations be met Publisher s web site
