The Problem of the Color[blind] Brandi Wilkins Catanese, 2012-10-16 Catanese s beautifully written and cogently argued book addresses one of the most persistent sociopolitical questions in contemporary culture She suggests that it is performance and the difference it makes that complicates the terms by which we can even understand multicultural and colorblind concepts A tremendously illuminating study that promises to break new ground in the fields of theatre and performance studies African American studies feminist theory cultural studies and film and television studies Daphne Brooks Princeton University Adds immeasurably to the ways in which we can understand the contradictory aspects of racial discourse and performance as they have emerged during the last two decades An ambitious smart and fascinating book Jennifer DeVere Brody Duke University Are we a multicultural nation or a colorblind one The Problem of the Color blind examines this vexed question in American culture by focusing on black performance in theater film and television The practice of colorblind casting choosing actors without regard to race assumes a performing body that is somehow race neutral But where exactly is race neutrality located in the eyes of the spectator in the body of the performer in the medium of the performance In analyzing and theorizing such questions Brandi Wilkins Catanese explores a range of engaging and provocative subjects including the infamous debate between playwright August Wilson and drama critic Robert Brustein the film career of Denzel Washington Suzan Lori Parks s play Venus the phenomenon of postblackness as represented in the Studio Museum in Harlem s Freestyle exhibition the performer Ice Cube s transformation from icon of gangsta rap to family movie star and the controversial reality television series Black White Concluding that ideologies of transcendence are ahistorical and therefore unenforceable Catanese advances the concept of racial transgression a process of acknowledging rather than ignoring the racialized histories of performance as her chapters move between readings of dramatic texts films popular culture and debates in critical race theory and the culture wars

Contemporary Issues of the Semiotics of Law Anne Wagner, Tracey Summerfield, Farid Samir Benavides

Vanegas, 2005-09-20 The law is a symbolic construction and therefore rests on a variety of undertakings What gives law its meaning is for some ideology for others the welfare of the majority However what is manifest is a conception of the law as a material structure that carries symbols of everyday life The analyses that are made in the law and semiotics movements show that the law's symbolism cannot be understood by reference only to itself a strictly legal meaning It is a symbol that conveys life a symbol that in itself is contaminated with life politics morality and so on Law and Semiotics is an obvious meeting point between traditions because it is the place where all the discussions about the law can find a common language This is a collection of different papers where the institution of the law is investigated in combination with and as part of a multiplicity of sign systems Firstly law can be understood as part of a global system of meaning Part I and secondly that despite the homogenising threat of globalisation the play of legal meaning retains a socio historical specificity Part II The global issues of human migration human rights colonisation and transnational power are played out in local spaces in the public discourses through which they are given localised representation in moments of activism and as a tool of subversion The law is a rhetorical device which at once constitutes these global and local truths but which is also constituted by them

Understanding White Privilege Frances E. Kendall, 2013 Understanding White Privilege delves into the complex interplay between race power and privilege in both organizations and private life America and the Black Body Carol E. Henderson, 2009 America and the Black Body is a timely exploration into the creative literary and visual uses of the black body in American print and visual culture More specifically this volume contemplates the social development of American identity and the multifarious ways this identity coalesces in the small gestures of preclusion that establish discernable markers of national belonging Such investigations underscore issues of power and disenfranchisement of race class and gender that mediate the representations of the black male and the black female body in real and imagined ways as it also reveals the invisible social and political ties that connect white men and women's identities to these racial imaginings Book Jacket

Theory of Racelessness

Sheena Michele Mason, 2022-05-27 This book presents a skeptical eliminativist philosophy of race and the theory of racelessness a methodological and pedagogical framework for analyzing race and racism It explores the history of skeptical eliminativism and constructionist eliminativism within the history of African American philosophy and literary studies and its consistent connection with movements for civil rights Sheena M Mason considers how current anti racist efforts reflect naturalist conservationist and constructionist reconstructionist philosophies of race that prevent more people from fully confronting the problem of racism not race thereby enabling racism to persist She then offers a three part solution for how scholars and people aspiring toward anti racism can avoid unintentionally upholding racism using literary studies as a case study to show how race often translates into racism itself The theory of racelessness helps more people undo racism by undoing the belief in race Colorblindness, Post-raciality, and Whiteness in the United States Sherrow O. The Cultural Politics of Colorblind TV Casting Kristen J. Warner, 2015-06-05 This book fills a significant gap in the critical conversation on race in media by extending interrogations of racial colorblindness in American television to the industrial practices that shape what we see on screen Specifically it frames the practice of colorblind casting as a potent lens for examining the interdependence of 21st century post racial politics and popular culture Applying a production as culture approach to a series of casting case studies from American primetime dramatic television including ABC's Grey's Anatomy and The CW's The Vampire Diaries Kristen Warner complicates our understanding of the cultural processes that inform casting and expounds the aesthetic and pragmatic industrial viewpoints that perpetuate limiting or downright exclusionary hiring norms She also examines the material effects of actors of color who knowingly participate in this system and justify their limited roles as a consequence of employment and finally speculates on what alternatives if any are available to correct these practices Warner's insights are a valuable addition to scholarship in media industry studies critical race theory ethnic studies and audience reception and will also appeal to those with a general interest in race in popular culture

Science, Sexuality, and Race in the United States and Australia, 1780-1940 Gregory D. Smithers, 2017 Science Sexuality and Race in the United States and Australia 1780 1940 Revised Edition is a sociohistorical tour de force that examines the entwined formation of racial theory and sexual constructs within settler colonialism in the United States and Australia from the Age of Revolution to the Great Depression Gregory D Smithers historicizes the dissemination and application of scientific and social scientific ideas within the process of nation building in two countries with large Indigenous populations and shows how intellectual constructs of race and sexuality were mobilized to subdue Aboriginal peoples Building on the comparative settler colonial and imperial histories that appeared after the book's original publication this completely revised edition includes two new chapters In this singular contribution to the study of transnational and comparative settler colonialism Smithers expands on recent scholarship to illuminate both the subject of the scientific study of race and sexuality and the national and interrelated histories of the United States and Australia Sensory Worlds in Early America Peter Charles Hoffer, 2005-12-12 Over the past half century historians have greatly enriched our understanding of America's past broadening their fields of inquiry from such traditional topics as politics and war to include the agency of class race ethnicity and gender and to focus on the lives of ordinary men and women We now know that homes and workplaces form a part of our history as important as battlefields and the corridors of power Only recently however have historians begun to examine the fundamentals of lived experience and how people perceive the world through the five senses In this ambitious work Peter Charles Hoffer presents a sensory history of early North America offering a bold new understanding of the role that sight sound smell taste and touch played in shaping the lives of Europeans Indians and Africans in the New World Reconstructing the most ephemeral aspects of America's colonial past the choking stench of black powder the cacophony of unfamiliar languages the taste of fresh water and new foods the first sight of strange peoples and foreign landscapes the rough texture of homespun the clumsy weight of a hoe Hoffer explores the impact of sensuous experiences on human thought and action He traces the effect sensation and perception had on the cause and course of events conventionally attributed to deeper cultural and material circumstances Hoffer revisits select key events encounters and writings from America's colonial past to uncover the sensory elements in each and decipher the ways in which sensual data were mediated by prevailing and often conflicting cultural norms Among the episodes he reexamines are the first meetings of Europeans and Native Americans belief in and encounters with the supernatural the experience of slavery and slave revolts the physical and emotional fervor of the Great Awakening and the feelings that prompted the Revolution Imaginatively conceived deeply informed and elegantly written Sensory Worlds of Early America convincingly establishes sensory experience as a legitimate object of historical inquiry and vividly brings America's colonial era to life Richard Godbeer author of Sexual Revolution in Early America
