Through the Reading Glass Suellen Diaconoff,2012-02-01 2005 CHOICE Outstanding Academic Title Through the Reading Glass explores the practices and protocols that surrounded women's reading in eighteenth century France Looking at texts as various as fairy tales memoirs historical romances short stories love letters novels and the pages of the new female periodical press Suellen Diaconoff shows how a reading culture one in which books sex and acts of reading were richly and evocatively intertwined was constructed for and by women Diaconoff proposes that the underlying discourse of virtue found in women s work was both an empowering strategy intended to create new kinds of responsible and not merely responsive readers and an integral part of the conviction that domestic reading does not have to be trivial The Papers of the Bibliographical Society of America Bibliographical Society of America,1998 Text and Picture in Anglo-Saxon England Catherine E. Karkov,2001-11 This book explores the complex interrelationship between texts and drawings in the late tenth or early eleventh century Junius II manuscript the only surviving illustrated Anglo Saxon poetic manuscript The book which contains a plate section of sixty one illustrations focuses on the way in which the drawings both illustrate the text and translate it into a new visual language Poems and illustrations work to create a carefully crafted and unified manuscript but both also use formulaic language iconography and compositions to construct a web of intertextual and intervisual references that open the poems to readings far more diverse than those of the biblical books on which they are based Together poems and drawings create a new and unique version of biblical history and suggest ways in which biblical history relates to Anglo Saxon history and the manuscript s Anglo Saxon audience a process which has been extended by the manuscript s many editors to include contemporary history and the contemporary reader The Book Lover Warren Elbridge Price,1899
