Quester by the River and Other Poems. By Anniyil Tharakan. Notre Dame: Cross Cultural Publications, 1997. ISBN 0-940121-40-9. Pp. 117. $10.00.

We live in an age of massive social change. As Alvin Toffler and John Naisbitt have argued, we are living in the early stage of a wave of global change that is sweeping aside the remains of the Industrial Revolution and replacing it with new forms of society in which city, family, business, work, and politics are radically different. For the majority, the computer and the laboratory provide the keys to the human situation. However, for some—a much smaller group—language is still the instrument that unlocks the secrets of life, as it did for Augustine, Dante, and Shakespeare. The author of this book of poetry, a scholar and artist educated in India and America, shares the latter conviction.

Quester by the River and Other Poems is an attempt to unify faith with aesthetics in a cultural context: the faith is that of a Catholic priest-teacher who is a Thomas Christian of the Syrian rite; the culture is the Hinduism of Kerala, India. The volume's twenty-two poems include "The Cave," "The Vedic Waters," "Lines Written after Reading Pascal's Pensees," "The Night of the Soul," "An Evening in an Indian Teashop," "My Village," and two long poems that begin and end the collection—Quester by the River and Quester by the Tomb. The concluding poem was written in 1994 after the poet visited the tomb of Blessed Alphonsa, whom thousands of devotees in Kerala honor for her life of silence and self-sacrifice.

Anniyil Tharakan's opening poem, first published in 1983 in the Journal of Aesthetics and Literature, puts into words a unique vision of life that creatively combines images from the poet's own experience with those of his great grandfather and the founding of the Christian Church in India by St. Thomas the Apostle in 52 A.D. Quester by the River is also a love poem, a joyful celebration of forest trees towering in the air, birds, wild beasts, "weeds and branches, myrtles and roses" that make their homes where the sacred river Periyar ebbs and flows through one of the Malabar Coast's most beautiful wildlife sanctuaries.

Written not long after Christmas in 1982 and begun on the poet's fortieth birthday, one of those milestones that causes the religious to reflect on mortality and the upwardly-mobile to reassess their place in the academy or in the corporate universe, Quester by the River speaks prayerfully about life and death but mostly about the self's mysterious journey in time. With the poet's eye for what is crucial, Tharakan, who is currently President of St. John's College affiliated with the University of Kerala, starts his personal journey with a celebration of the day of his birth. He then moves forward as he sees "scraps of life scattered behind [him]," and in a style that recalls Dante and St. John of the Cross his quest takes him neither to the heart of darkness nor to the black depths of the Periyar but rather to the uplifting discovery of the nearness and beauty of a palpably present "other"—his inner self, soul, his "beloved," and his "Christ."

Throughout this 100-verse, 400-line, self-revelatory voyage to the inner realms of personal being, Tharakan bears witness to Plato's teaching that poetry pierces the gaps between the material world of sensory perception and the transcendent

 Daniel Xerri,2010 The late Ted Hughes felt that healing was the most fundamental characteristic of all poetry yet until now there has been no monograph on Hughes conception of poetry as a healing device This study discuss and interprets the healing quality in Hughes poetic works and evaluates the poet's notion of its significance for human civilization. Research includes Hughes and the immediate post-war generation of poets in Britain and Ireland. The Movement poets and Hughes' relations with them. Hughes as a cultural critic who perceives himself and his poetic talent as possessing redemptive function. Five chapters are devoted to Hughes' published works starting with HAWK IN THE RAIN and LUPERCAL; the collections are discussed focusing on violence as a manifestation of energy lacking in human affairs. CAVE BIRDS is analyzed in terms of the poet's adoption of alchemical motifs as a means of showing the quester's journey to redemption. MOORTOWN is made up of four parts and the healing cycle present in each of those parts is adumbrated along with analysis of arcana, use of symbolism and literary allusions. RIVER is discussed with a view to clarifying Hughes' interest in light healing and the redemptive elements of the end of the quest. Xerri also discusses Hughes as a skeptic and as a poet willing to explore the healing quest itself with an eye on spiritual discipline in the face of existential voids. An excellent study that belongs in any serious collection of Hughes' work. British 20th c poetry and the art of poetics. Ray Hanna. North American Literary Review. Georgetown.
