The Human Relationship to Nature Matthew R. Foster, 2016-11-02 Growing alarm over the harm done by humans to the natural world and even to the viability of our own industrial civilization compels us to ask the deeper moral question What should be the human relationship to nature Matthew R Foster starts by assessing three contrasting patterns of moral reasoning the Progress Ethic that created the world we live in the biblically inspired Stewardship Ethic and the Connection Ethic based on scientific understanding of the interdependence of all natural entities Critical analysis reveals that none of these ethics is able to sustain the values it advocates due to two unsupportable presumptions that the norms of human morality are commensurate with the natural world and that the value of an entity is an intrinsic property Foster argues that in order for a future environmental ethic to be both logically coherent and environmentally constructive it must start from unconventional notions First because nature will never be commensurate with human moral reasoning non rational resources must be employed despite the risks involved Second value resides in the relationship of one entity to another and does not belong intrinsically to either in short value is foremost a verb rather than a noun Foster proposes a new paradigm attentive to the realm of value relations among all natural entities one which offers mediating opportunities between nature and morality In this new ethic there are no shoulds Rather moral responsibilities to the natural entities around us are elective placing us in an unfamiliar yet potentially liberating network of relationships This book will be of interest to scholars both instructors and students of environmental ethics philosophy religion and intellectual history and all who are concerned about the environmental challenges of our time

Jack Long,1988 Information about the earth weather plants and animals presented in a question and answer format Modern Philosophies of Human Nature Peter E. Langford,1986-07-31 General Argument My aim is to survey some of the most influential philosophical writers on human nature from the time that Augustine codified Christian belief to the present During this period philosophical opinions about human nature underwent a transformation from the God centered views of Augustine and the scholastics to the human centered ideas of Nietzsche Freud and Sartre While one aim has simply been to provide a handy survey I do have three polemical purposes One is to oppose the notion that the modernism of more recent writers was produced by methodological innovations According to both Freud and Sartre as well as other key figures like Lacan and Heidegger their views were the product of new methods of investigating human nature namely those of psychoanalysis and the phenomenological reduction Psychoanalysis claimed to use the interpretation of both dreams and the relationship between analyst and patient to penetrate the unconscious Phenomenology has claimed that trained philosophers are able to obtain a privileged view of consciousness by a special act of thought called the phenomenological reduction which enables them to view consciousness without preconceptions On many issues my sympathies are with Nietzsche rather than with Freud or phenomenology This is also the case regarding methodology Nietzsche saw quite clearly that the possibility of popularising the views he himself held came from the decline of Christianity My rejection of exclusive reliance upon the methodologies of psychoanalysis and phenomenology is based on two lines of argument Argumentation in Prime Minister's Question Time Dima Mohammed,2018-12-06 When political actors respond to criticism by pointing at an inconsistency in the critic s position a tricky political practice emerges Turning the criticism back to the critic can be a constructive move that restores coherence but it may also be a disruptive move that silences the critical voice and obstructs accountability What distinguishes constructive cases from disruptive ones This is the question this book sets out to answer The question is addressed by adopting an argumentative perspective Argumentation in Prime Minister s Question Time focuses on the turnabout employed by the British Prime Minister in response to the Leader of the Opposition The turnabout is characterised as a particular way of strategic manoeuvring The manoeuvring is analysed and evaluated by combining pragmatic dialectical and rhetorical insights with considerations from the realm of politics The outcome is an account of the turnabout s strategic functions and an assessment guide for evaluating its reasonableness The book will be of interest to advanced students and researchers of argumentation discourse analysis communication and rhetoric Love-life in Nature Wilhelm Bölsche,1926 Computable Universe, A: Understanding
