Recognizing Faculty Work Reward Systems For The Year :

Recognizing Faculty Work: Reward Systems for the Year 2000 Robert M. Diamond, Bronwyn E. Adam, 1993-07-23 It is not an easy time for higher education in the United States Major reports from the National Endowment for the Humanities the National Institute of Education the Association of American Colleges and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching have called for greater emphasis on teaching clearer statements of institutional missions improved assessment practices and the development of cohesive and appropriate curricula Initiatives are under way across the country to rethink the nature of scholarship to redefine faculty work and to redesign the reward system used to recognize professional effort and achievement This volume of New Directions for Higher Education is structured to provide practical assistance to those engaged in the review of faculty reward systems on their campuses and to provide guidelines to academic administrators deans and chairs who are leading these efforts Chapters have been designed to address major issues relating to promotion tenure and merit pay The different ways in which campuses have approached the process of clarifying their missions and modifying their faculty reward structures are illustrated Reference materials from scholarly associations and accreditation agencies are included to demonstrate disciplinary perspectives A model for change is presented along with criteria for assessing a promotion and tenure system A professional portfolio to document the work of faculty is also described This is the 81st issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Higher Education For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page

Recognizing Faculty Work, 1993 The Academic Portfolio Peter Seldin, J. Elizabeth Miller, 2010-12-28 This comprehensive book focuses squarely on academic portfolios which may prove to be the most innovative and promising faculty evaluation and development technique in years The authors identify key issues red flag warnings and benchmarks for success describing the what why and how of developing academic portfolios The book includes an extensively tested step by step approach to creating portfolios and lists 21 possible portfolio items covering teaching research scholarship and service from which faculty can choose the ones most relevant to them The thrust of this book is unique It provides time tested strategies and proven advice for getting started with portfolios It includes a research based rubric grounded in input from 200 faculty members and department chairs from across disciplines and institutions It examines specific guiding questions to consider when preparing every subsection of the portfolio It presents 18 portfolio models from 16 different academic disciplines Designed for faculty members department chairs deans and members of promotion and tenure committees all of whom are essential partners in developing successful academic portfolio programs the book will also be useful to graduate students especially those planning careers as faculty members

Higher Education: Handbook of Theory and Research John C. Smart, Michael B. Paulsen, 2011-03-24 Published annually since 1985 the Handbook series provides a compendium of thorough and integrative literature reviews on a diverse array of topics of interest to the higher education scholarly and policy communities Each chapter provides a comprehensive review of research findings on a selected topic critiques the research literature in terms of its conceptual and methodological rigor and sets forth an agenda for future research intended to advance knowledge on the chosen topic The Handbook focuses on twelve general areas that encompass the salient dimensions of scholarly and policy inquiries undertaken in the international higher education community The series is fortunate to have attracted annual contributions from distinguished scholars throughout the world

Analyzing Faculty Workload Jon F. Wergin,1994 The question being asked with increasing regularity is Just what do faculty members do Studies of faculty workload have been commissioned in state after state Taken together the studies indicate that college faculty members are working harder than ever but are probably teaching less and are almost certainly having less contact with students particularly undergraduates This volume of New Directions for Institutional Research explores how the public discourse about faculty work might be improved and suggests how colleges and universities might document that work in a fashion that not only more faithfully describes what faculty do but also allows for reports that are more comprehensive and useful This is the 83rd issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Institutional Research For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page

Academic Promotion for Clinicians Anne Walling,2017-11-10 This book is a practical guide to the appointment promotion and tenure APT process for clinical faculty members employed by medical schools The number of clinical faculty members in US medical schools has increased exponentially in the last two decades At the same time faculty career tracks and promotion requirements have changed dramatically and medical schools have introduced multiple non tenure career tracks Currently only about 25% of the approximately 150 000 members of clinical departments This book provides insights and recommendations on career planning and academic promotion for clinical faculty members It also addresses much of the mythology surrounding the APT process and demonstrates how academic promotion should be used as a career building process rather than a daunting high risk event Topics include concepts and processes within academic promotion navigating the academic promotion and tenure process and managing the outcome of the APT application Academic Promotion for Clinicians is a valuable resource for clinical medicine faculty members as they engage in and successfully handle the challenges in the APT process and thus realize their career goals

The Teaching of Psychology Stephen F. The Last Professors Frank Donoghue, 2018-04-03 What makes the modern university different from any other corporation asked Columbia's Andrew Delbanco recently in the New York Times There is more and more reason to think less and less he answered In this provocative book Frank Donoghue shows how this growing corporate culture of higher education threatens its most fundamental values by erasing one of its defining features the tenured professor Taking a clear eyed look at American higher education over the last twenty years Donoghue outlines a web of forces social political and institutional dismantling the professoriate Today fewer than 30 percent of college and university teachers are tenured or on tenure tracks and signs point to a future where professors will disappear Why What will universities look like without professors Who will teach Why should it matter The fate of the professor Donoghue shows has always been tied to that of the liberal arts with the humanities at its core The rise to prominence of the American university has been defined by the strength of the humanities and by the central role of the autonomous tenured professor who can be both scholar and teacher Yet in today's market driven rank and ratings obsessed world of higher education corporate logic prevails faculties are to be managed for optimal efficiency productivity and competitive advantage casual armies of adjuncts and graduate students now fill the demand for teachers Bypassing the distractions of the culture wars and other crises Donoghue sheds light on the structural changes in higher education the rise of community colleges and for profit universities the frenzied pursuit of prestige everywhere the brutally competitive realities facing new Ph D's that threaten the survival of professors as we've known them There are no quick fixes in The Last Professors rather Donoghue offers his fellow teachers and scholars an essential field guide to making their way in a world that no longer has room for their dreams First published in 2008 The Last Professors have largely had its arguments borne out in the interim as the percentage of courses taught by tenured professors continues to dwindle This new edition includes a substantial Preface that elaborates on recent developments and offers tough but productive analysis that will be crucial for today's academics to heed

From the Eye of the Storm B.W. Jongbloed, P.A. Maassen, G. Neave, 2013-03-14 In order to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary the third lustrum of our Center we at CHEPS decided to collectively write a book on the issue of how higher education institutions deal with the demand for change Institutional change is without any doubt one of the burning issues for researchers in higher education and policy studies in general but even more so for administrators at the institutional level institutional leadership deans and planners of higher education in public life government agencies intermediary organisations international organisations Whereas the lustrumbook we wrote for our second lustrum concentrated on comparative policy studies many of them focusing on comparisons between different national higher education systems this time the object of our analyses is the institution itself Today s higher education institutions are faced by demands from a multitude of actors from inside the institution students staff as well as from the institution s environment governments employers research councils sponsors These demands require changes in policy practice systems and culture The ways in which institutions respond to these demands and how their behaviour may be understood and predicted is the challenge tackled by the authors of this volume each from their own perspective and each looking at different aspects of the educational organisation
