Recollections of the Olden Days

The road from the twelve mile house to Flambeau Farm was opened for travel in 1868—but, although it was called a road, it was little more than a trail through the woods.

The writer made his first trip through in 1869, and at that time there were only two settlers on that line of road. James Kelly, one of the first settlers in that part of the country, built a "stopping place" about 11 miles from the Twelve Mile House in 1868; and a man by the name of Orsina Shirts had taken a homestead about two miles farther on. He had a few acres cleared and a log house built, in which he and his family lived; he had taken his claim in 1868.

The Flambeau Farm was situated on the south side of the Chippewa river opposite the mouth of the Flambeau. This was a very pretty place, as the buildings were on high ground and gave a fine view both up the Flambeau river and down the Chippewa. The said farm had been opened and operated by the Daniel Shaw company and a man by the name of Thos. Butler. In 1869, when the writer first saw the place there was quite a clearing, with a large log house and several buildings for barns.

The road from the Twelve Mile House to Big Bend was not opened at that time for summer travel, so all the woodsmen had to go by the farm, which gave them a large trade in keeping "stoppers."

A man by the name of John Norton had a place joining the farm on the town river side; also there were some Frenchmen and half breed Indians living farther down river, but I do not recall their names, except the Gokeys and Corbines.

The old pioneer Brunett, had lived at Brunett Falls, on the Chippewa river, where Cornell is now situated, for a number of years, and kept a stopping place for loggers when they had to take their supplies to their camps by boats.

In those days logging was the important question, and although the men engaged in this industry removed such a large amount of wealth from the land, and left only stumps where valuable timber had stood, still they filled a place in the development of the country—for they gave employment to men—and made a market for what the farmers could raise—and also where the lumber was manufactured they helped to build up cities. But the men who have built up the country are the hard-working, industrious class who took up land to make homes for themselves and families. They often had little but an axe and a hoe to commence with.

I feel like taking off my hat to those old pioneers who, in order to make homes for themselves and families, decided to endure all the hardships, trials and inconveniences which they knew were in store for them by going into the wilderness to make a fight to conquer the conditions which had ruled there for possibly thousands of years. But they were men and women of iron constitutions, independence of character—with lots of grit and backbone, who did not know the meaning of the word "fail" but, with a determination to win, accomplished things that would appear almost impossible to the young generation of today.

I believe the names of these early settlers deserve a place in the history of the State, and that each county in the county should make a list as near as possible of those who really laid the foundation for the wealth of the county to rest upon; for, as the lumber industry took the wealth away leaving little permanent benefits those people builded for the future, and laid the foundation for future prosperity, blazing the way for others to follow.
