Gale, Vivien Gardner, 2004 Arguing that women use autobiography and performance for expression and as a means of controlling their public and private selves the contributors of these 11 essays examine the lives and work of a variety of artists ranging from actors as working women in the eighteenth century to monologists and performance artists today Subjects include several performers including Alma Ellerslie Kitty Marion Ina Rozant Susan Glaspell Adrienne Kennedy Emma Robinson Lena Ashwell Tilly Wedekind Clare Dowie Janet Cardiff Tracey Emin and in an interview Bobby Baker as well as essays on Latina theater and lesbians as performers constructing themselves and their community Annotation 2005 Book News Inc Portland OR booknews com Origins and Development of Recollection Simona Ghetti, Patricia J. Bauer, 2012-03-01 The ability to remember unique personal events is at the core of what we consider to be memory How does the vivid experience of reinstatement of our past emerge What is the contribution of this experience to our life histories These questions have intrigued psychologists neuroscientists and philosophers for decades and are the subject of this volume In recent years the science of memory has made extraordinary progress in the conceptualization and assessment of different forms of memory Instead of thinking of memory as a monolithic construct memory is now thought of in terms of dissociable classes of constructs Within declarative memory the type of memory that one can consciously access we make distinctions between the constructs of recollection and episodic memory and the constructs of familiarity and semantic memory respectively Contributors to this volume discuss new methods to assess these types of memory in studies that refine our understanding of the functions necessary for conscious and vivid recollection The work has led to substantial increases in our understanding of the building blocks of recollection and its developmental course The volume also addresses the exciting new research on the neural basis of recollection Never before has the connection between brain and function been so close Contributors review neuroimaging studies of the healthy brain and neuropsychological investigations of patients with brain damage that reveal the specific brain structures involved in the ability to recollect These brain structures undergo important developmental change during childhood and adolescence

Giffen, 2004-10-18 In the 1940s the Manitoba Royal Commission on Adult Education investigated directions for the modernization of the province in the post war era of change It was charged particularly with looking at rural Manitoba s cultural educational and leadership opportunities in the wake of new technologies dwindling populations and altered political and social affiliations The commission engaged Jim Giffen then a young sociologist from the University of Toronto to undertake a detailed field study of three rural Manitoba towns in this context Giffen's extensive study examined the towns of Carman Elgin and Rossburn all significantly different in terms of their ethnic makeup and level of political and organizational sophistication. He remained in the province for a year and a half at the end of which his report and analysis of education for leadership was considered too revealing for public release. It remained in the Ontario Legislative Library until it was retrieved 50 years later by well-known historian Gerald Friesen who has written an extensive postscript to the report. As a snapshot of rural agricultural life in prairie Canada at a time of great change, the study is invaluable. Despite the differences in the three towns, they retain some common characteristics that define a particular socio-cultural view of the larger world. Giffen looks at characteristics such as leadership in the community, ethnic differences, hierarchy of roles, participation in organizations and aims and activities of young people. Friesen's postscript provides a wider context to this study and an assessment of what these differences and commonalities meant to the province.

Cinema and Desire Jing Wang, Tani E. Barlow, 2020-05-05 Dai Jinhua is one of contemporary China's most influential theoreticians and cultural critics. A feminist Marxist, her literary film and TV commentary has over the last decade addressed an expanding audience in China, Taiwan and Hong Kong. Cinema and Desire presents Dai Jinhua's best work to date. In it, she examines the Orientalism that made Zhang Yimou the darling of international film festivals, establishes Huang Shuqin's Human Woman as the People's Republic's first genuinely feminist film, comments on TV representations of the Chinese diaspora in New York, speculates on the value of Mao Zedong as an icon of post-revolutionary consumerism and analyses the rise of shopping plazas in 1990s urban China as a strange montage in which the political memories of Tiananmen Square and the logic of the global capitalist marketplace are intertwined.

The Literary Life and Correspondence of the Countess of Blessington R. R. Madden, 1855

Gaidar's Revolution Petr Aven, Alfred Kokh, 2015-07-02 After the collapse of the Soviet Union, a team of young economic reformers led by Yegor Gaidar worked to create a new economic future for Russia. Against an overwhelming threat of looming hunger and civil war, they created a market economy which is still in place today. In the face of crisis, a process of shock therapy involving the end of price regulation, the introduction of privatisation and a reduction in public spending appeared necessary. Their plans have been the subject of controversy ever since the path to the new economy was not smooth and Russia continued to struggle with economic crises throughout the 1990s. Yet Gaidar's plans have been widely praised for saving the country from complete collapse. For the first time in this book, the participants in the process reveal their experiences during those frantic days, their insights into Yegor Gaidar and of the formation of post-Soviet Russia. In doing so, this book provides a unique perspective on contemporary Russia, making it an indispensable resource for understanding its economic and political complexities.
