Recreation Economic Decisions Comparing Benefits And Costs Comparing Benefits And Costs:

Recreation Economic Decisions Richard G. Walsh,1986 Recreation Economic Decisions John B. Loomis,Richard G. Walsh,1997-01-01 It is up to decision makers at the field state and national level to balance the different effects of their projects against those of competing projects or programs and make the right decision The approach to decision making throughout this text is that of the decision maker who considers the benefits and costs of alternative recreation activities and programs then chooses the most beneficial one possible at the lowest possible cost The emphasis is on how decisions ought to be made to maximize benefits This text is written for college students who are preparing to become managers of parks and recreation areas forests wildlife and related natural resources The first section of this book establishes an appropriate framework for consumer decision making and presents unique definitions of quantity and price appropriate to outdoor recreation The second section focuses on the demand for outdoor recreation The final section introduces benefit cost analysis of public recreation projects and programs Comparative Environmental Economic Assessment R. J. G. M. Florax,Peter Nijkamp,Kenneth George Willis,2002-09-26 Over the last decade economists have increasingly recognized the role of meta analysis and value transfer in synthesizing knowledge and efficiently exploiting the existing pool of knowledge Comparative Environmental Economic Assessment explores the potential significance of using these techniques particularly in environmental economics Both meta analysis and value transfer constitute major research tools which efficiently use knowledge previously acquired from other studies The book focuses on the potential role and usefulness of these tools in environmental economic research and goes on to address their validity relevance and applicability A future agenda for research is also illustrated Cost-Benefit Analysis Euston Quah,E.J. Mishan,2007-05-07 Should Malaysia build a new steel mill or New York City an urban motorway Should higher education expand or water supplies be improved These are typical questions to which cost benefit analysis the key economic tool for analyzing problems of social choice can contribute to as well as providing a useful vehicle for understanding the practical value of welfare economics This invaluable text covers the main problems that arise in a typical cost benefit exercise Cost benefit analysis is used everywhere but its techniques are particularly prominent in fields where there is some kind of ethical dimension For this edition E J Mishan has been joined by Euston Quah to explore new themes including the impact of uncertainty on cost benefit analysis and to introduce a host of new and up to date case studies Cost-Benefit Analysis E.J. Mishan,Euston Quah,2020-08-19 Cost benefit analysis CBA is the systematic and analytical process of comparing benefits and costs in evaluating the desirability of a project or programme often of a social nature It attempts to answer such questions as whether a proposed project is worthwhile the optimal scale of a proposed project and the relevant constraints CBA is fundamental to government decision making and is established as a formal technique for making informed decisions on the use of society s scarce resources This timely sixth edition of the classic Cost Benefit Analysis text continues to build on the successful approach of previous editions with lucid explanation of key ideas simple but effective expository short chapters and an appendix on various useful statistical and mathematical concepts and derivatives The book examines important developments in the discipline with relevant examples and illustrations as well as new and expanded chapters which build upon standard materials on CBA Highlights include updated historical background of CBA extended non market goods valuation methods the impact of uncertainty evaluation of programmes and services behavioural economics decision rules and heuristics CBA and regulatory reforms CBA in developed and developing countries value of household production other topics frequently encountered in CBA such as costs of diseases and air pollution and value of statistical life This book is a valuable source and guide to international funding agencies governments interested professional economists and senior undergraduate and graduate students The text is fully supported by a companion website which includes discussion questions and PowerPoint slides for each chapter

Nature Tourism, Conservation, and Development in Kwazulu-Natal, South Africa Bruce A. Aylward, Ernst Lutz, 2003 This publication considers environmental social and economic issues concerning the development of nature tourism Using KwaZulu Natal in South Africa as a case study it highlights the benefits and trade offs in promoting and managing sustainable nature tourism development and examines how to promote the objectives of economic growth poverty reduction and conservation Three key issues are explored the need to move beyond development of a wildlife industry to the creation of a true nature tourism economy that supports biodiversity the role of the private sector in achieving equitable development and job creation while generating conservation finance and alternative pricing and other market mechanisms to encourage the growth and economic viability of nature tourism

Workplace Health John Kerr, Tom Cox, Amanda Jane Griffiths, 2020-11-26 Given the growing awareness of the negative effects of work related stress Many Businesses Are Focusing On Active Health Promotion To Enhance employee health well being and performance This text aims to review the state of the art and offer ideas and suggestions for how stress related employee health problems can be combated through the provision of effective fitness and exercise programmes

Freshwater Fisheries Ecology John F. Craig, 2016-01-12 Inland fisheries are vital for the livelihoods and food resources of humans worldwide but their importance is underestimated probably because large numbers of small local operators are involved Freshwater Fisheries Ecology defines what we have globally what we are going to lose and mitigate for and what given the right tools we can save To estimate potential production the dynamics of freshwater ecosystems rivers lakes and estuaries need to be understood These dynamics are diverse as are the earths freshwater fisheries resources from boreal to tropical regions and these influence how fisheries are both utilized and abused Three main types of fisheries are illustrated within the book artisanal commercial and recreational and the tools which have evolved for fisheries governance and management including assessment methods are described The book also covers in detail fisheries development providing information on improving fisheries through environmental and habitat evaluation enhancement and rehabilitation aquaculture genetically modified fishes and sustainability The book thoroughly reviews the negative impacts on fisheries including excessive harvesting climate change toxicology impoundments barriers and abstractions non native species and eutrophication Finally key areas of future research are outlined Freshwater Fisheries Ecology is truly a landmark publication containing contributions from over 100 leading experts and supported by the Fisheries Society of the British Isles The global approach makes this book essential reading for fish biologists fisheries scientists and ecologists and upper level students in these disciplines Libraries in all universities and research establishments where biological and fisheries sciences are studied and taught should have multiple copies of this hugely valuable resource About the Editor John Craig is Editor in Chief of the Journal of Fish Biology and has an enormous range of expertise and a wealth of knowledge of freshwater fishes and their ecology having studied them around the globe including in Asia North America Africa the Middle East and Europe His particular interests have been in population dynamics and life history strategies He is a Fellow of the Linnean Society of London and the Royal Society of Biology

Tourism, Recreation and Regional Development Jean-Christophe Dissart,Jeffrey Dehez,Jean-Bernard Marsat,2016-03-03 What factors contribute to tourism and recreation development How can we characterise stakeholder rationales and organisation modes to enhance tourism resources and foster tourism and recreation services To what extent do tourism and recreation contribute to regional development What changes are taking place in terms of new destinations stakeholders policy objectives Bringing together scholars from the fields of planning economics sociology management studies and geography this book examines cross cutting issues in tourism and recreation with the aim of developing an extended view of leisure time Focusing mainly on France with comparison to the experience of Northern and Southern European countries and North America it combines a diverse range of case studies to address issues such as contrasting rural dynamics changing public policies sustainable development imperatives evolving user behaviour and increasingly diverse recreation activities and stakeholder organisation Specific topics are highlighted such as the role of social capital or culture as factors of recreation development resort organisation from international and experience based perspectives and the usefulness of the capability approach to evaluate tourism impacts on local development Emphasising policy recommendations to help public or collective action on the issues and presenting emerging trends in the field this book should be of interest to students scholars and stakeholders in tourism recreation planning and management

Forestry Economics John E. Wagner,2011-07-26 Forestry Economics introduces students and practitioners to all aspects of the management and economics of forestry The book adopts the approach of managerial economics textbooks and applies this to the unique processes and problems faced by managers of forests While most forestry economics books are written by economists for future economists what many future forest and natural resource managers need is to understand what economic information is and how to use it to make better business and management decisions John E Wagner draws on his twenty years of experience teaching and working in the field of forest resource economics to present students with an accessible understanding of the unique production processes and problems faced by forest and other natural resource managers There are three unique features of this book The first is its organization The material is organized around two common economic models used in forest and natural resources management decision making The second is the use of case studies from various disciplines Outdoor and Commercial Recreation Wood Products Engineering Forest Products and Forestry The purpose of these case studies is to provide students with applications of the concepts being discussed within the text The third is revisiting the question of how to use economic information to make better business decisions at the end of each chapter This ties each chapter to the preceding ones and reinforces the hypothesis that a solid working knowledge of these economic models and the information they contain are necessary for making better business decisions This textbook is an invaluable source of clear and accessible information on forestry economics and management for not only economics students but for students of other disciplines and those already working in forestry and natural resources Investing in Science Massimo Florio, 2019-10-15 A proposal for using cost benefit analysis to evaluate the socioeconomic impact of public investment in large scientific projects Large particle accelerators outer space probes genomics platforms all are scientific enterprises managed through the new form of the research infrastructure in which communities of scientists collaborate across nations universities research institutions and disciplines Such large projects are often publicly funded with no accepted way to measure the benefits to society of these investments In this book Massimo Florio suggests the use of cost benefit analysis CBA to evaluate the socioeconomic impact of public investment in large and costly scientific projects The core concept of CBA of any infrastructure is to undertake the consistent intertemporal accounting of social welfare effects using the available information Florio develops a simple framework for such accounting in the research infrastructure context and then offers a systematic analysis of the benefits in terms of the social agents involved He measures the benefits to scientists students and postdoctoral researchers the effect on firms of knowledge spillovers the benefits to users of information technology and science based innovation the welfare effects on the general public of cultural services provided by RIs and the willingness of taxpayers to fund scientific knowledge creation Finally Florio shows how these costs and benefits can be expressed in the form of stochastic net present value and other summary indicators Research Paper SE, 1991 Wallowa-Whitman National Forest (N.F.)
