Sensory Qualities:

Analysis of Sensory Properties in Foods Edgar Chambers IV, 2019-08-23 The sensory properties of foods are the most important reason people eat the foods they eat What those properties are and how we best measure those properties are critical to understanding food and eating behavior Appearance flavor texture and even the sounds of food can impart a desire to eat or cause us to dismiss the food as unappetizing stale or even inappropriate from a cultural standpoint This Special Issue focuses on how sensory properties are measured the specific sensory properties of various foods and consumer behavior related to which properties might be most important in certain situations and how consumers use sensory attributes to make decisions about what they will eat This Special Issue contains both research papers and review articles

The Cognitive Foundations of Personality Traits Shulamith Kreitler, Hans Kreitler, 2013-06-29 Hardly anything in psychology is as irking as the trait concept Psychologists and laypersons alike use primarily adjective trait names to characterize and even conceptualize the individuals they encounter There are more than a hundred well defined personality traits and a great many questionnaires for their assessment some of which are designed to assess the same or very similar traits Little is known about their ontogenetic development and even less about their underlying dynamics Psychoanalytic theory was invoked for explaining the psychodynamics underlying a few personality traits without however presenting sufficient empirical evidence for the validity of these interpretations In a reductionistic vein behaviorally inclined psychologists have propounded the thesis that all traits are acquired behaviors Yet this view neither reduces the number of personality tests nor explains the resistance of traits to modification by means of reward and punishment Dissatisfied with these and some other less well known approaches to personality traits we decided to explore whether applying our psychosemantic theory of cognition to the trait concept would do better The way we had to follow was anything but easy

Stinking Philosophy! Benjamin Young, 2024-08-06 The nature of olfaction its importance for understanding perennial issues of philosophy of mind perception and consciousness and its implications for cognitive neuroscience What are smells Despite the best efforts of philosophy and the chemosciences the question remains vexing but no more perplexing than the historical lapse of the past centuries to seriously consider a sense that has a key place in philosophy of mind and perception Stinking Philosophy is Benjamin Young's answer to this critical lapse Drawing together more than a decade's research on olfactory philosophy the book offers a clear comprehensive look at the nature of odors how we perceive smells how we cognitively represent odors how we communicate about them as categories and what they can tell us about consciousness In Stinking Philosophy Young presents a methodology for addressing the philosophical and conceptual issues raised by the sense of smell Then in an exacting and coherent fashion he explores how the philosophy of smell contributes to and advances a wide range of debates within philosophy of mind perception and cognitive neuroscience Ultimately his work demonstrates how empirically informed philosophy can have a significant impact on interdisciplinary research on smell across philosophy the chemosciences and neuroscience The Oxford Handbook of Philosophy of Mind Brian McLaughlin, Ansgar Beckermann, Sven

Walter, 2009-01-15 This is the most authoritative and comprehensive guide ever published to the state of the art in philosophy of mind a flourishing area of research An outstanding team of contributors offer 45 new critical surveys of a wide range of topics A Pluralist Theory of Perception Neil Mehta, 2024-08-06 A new theory of perception that posits that conscious perception consists not of a single kind of awareness but of two radically different kinds deployed in concert Most contemporary theories of perception including leading forms of representationalism and naive realism are monistic they assume that to consciously perceive is to deploy only one kind of sensory awareness In A Pluralist Theory of Perception Neil Mehta instead argues for pluralism which says that to consciously perceive is to deploy two very different kinds of sensory awareness in concert Mehta argues that pluralism can simultaneously explain what is common to all forms of consciousness and what is distinctive about conscious perception Mehta's preferred version of pluralism which he calls rich pluralism says that conscious perception is constituted by successful sensory representation and deep awareness Successful sensory representation is a representational form of awareness whose targets include particulars It is found in perceptions whether conscious or unconscious but not in hallucinations By contrast deep awareness is a nonrepresentational form of sensory awareness whose targets are certain universals the sensory qualities Deep awareness constitutes one kind of consciousness it is common to conscious perceptions and hallucinations and it reveals part of the essences of its targets Mehta argues that although rich pluralism appears to be less parsimonious than monism it is not All monistic theories that are explanatorily adequate end up being even more complex than rich pluralism Thus rich pluralism is the most spartan theory that can shoulder the explanatory load The Mind's Construction Matthew Soteriou, 2013-08-29 Philosophers working on the ontology of mind have highlighted various distinctions that can be drawn between the ways in which different aspects of our minds fill time For example they note that whereas some elements of our mental lives obtain over time others unfold over time and some continue to occur throughout intervals of time Matthew Soteriou explores ways in which such distinctions can be put to work in helping to inform philosophical accounts of both sensory and cognitive aspects of consciousness Part One of The Mind's Construction argues that work in the ontology of mind that focuses on distinctions of temporal character has much to contribute to philosophical accounts of the phenomenology of various elements of sensory consciousness e.g. the phenomenology of perceptual experience bodily sensation and perceptual imagination Part Two argues that these ontological considerations can inform our understanding of conscious thinking and the form of self-conscious consciousness that we have as subjects capable of engaging in such activity by helping to account for and explain the respect in which agency is exercised in conscious thinking This in turn it is argued can illuminate the more general issue of the place and role of mental action in an account of the metaphysics of mind
