Gilbert, 1967 This anthology of literary criticism is no simple collection of fragments from great critics. It is in a way a documentary history of literary taste or better a documentary history of the taste of literary critics. It contains material that is inaccessible in many university libraries and an index which ties together the various selections and gives the book a unity which most anthologies unfortunately lack. Cover The Strong Verb in Martin Opitz Charlotte Chafer Fleischmann, 1921 The German Poetry of Paul Fleming Marian R. Sperberg-McQueen, 2020-05-01 This study reassesses the poetry of Paul Fleming 1609-1640 in the context of its own literary, historical, and social background. The four chapters focus initially on generic and historical context. The study of selected texts leads to more general considerations of the sources and significance of certain major themes. A number of poems by Fleming and poets contemporary with him, uncovered in the twentieth century, are evaluated here for the first time. The result is a substantially revised view of Fleming's poetic development. Fleming is shown to have been a more complex and wide-ranging poet than was conventionally thought, one whose debt to Renaissance literary traditions has been underestimated. Classical Rhetoric and the German Poet Anna Carrdus, 2017-12-02 This study relates theory to the details of poetic practice; it presents Opitz, Burger, and Aichendorff as representatives of their times and demonstrates how they adapt the classical arts to their particular talents and beliefs. All three poets are shown at work within a tradition flexible enough to persist even into the present. The author shows how the influence of rhetoric on German poetry did not vanish in the mid-18th century as is widely supposed. The first chapter briefly compares theoretical statements by Martin Opitz and the 20th-century poet Peter Rühmkorf; it uses the comparison to introduce two main arguments: that classical rhetoric and poetics exert a persistent though constantly changing influence on the composition of German poetry.

and that the theoretical precepts and natural talent are mutually interdependent. These arguments are developed through the examination of works by three German poets taken from periods of major literary change. Opitz is representative of the Baroque, Bürger of the Sturm und Drang, and Eichendorff of Romanticism. Three main chapters reconstruct the working method of each poet, applying his own theory and that of near contemporaries to detailed analysis of one of two of his poems. This procedure illustrates how each poet adapts rhetorical and poetic traditions to his own personal talent and to the literary preoccupations of his time.

Konstruktion Lynne Tatlock, 1990 The Teaching and Learning of Arabic in Early Modern Europe, 2017-02-13

This volume brings together the leading experts in the history of European Oriental Studies. Their essays present a comprehensive history of the teaching and learning of Arabic in early modern Europe, covering a wide geographical area from southern to northern Europe and discussing the many ways and purposes for which the Arabic language was taught and studied by scholars, theologians, merchants, diplomats, and prisoners. The contributions shed light on different methods and contents of language teaching in a variety of academic, scholarly, and missionary contexts in the Protestant and the Roman Catholic world. But they also look beyond the institutional history of Arabic studies and consider the importance of alternative ways in which the study of Arabic was pursued. Contributors are Asaph Ben Tov, Maurits H. van den Boogert, Sonja Brentjes, Mordechai Feingold, Mercedes Garcá Arenal, John Paul A. Ghobrial, Aurélien Girard, Alastair Hamilton, Jan Loop, Nuria Martínez de Castilla, Muñoz Simon, Mills, Fernando Rodríguez Mediano, Bernd Roling, Arnoud Vrolijk.
