Richard Poirier one of America's most eminent critics reveals in this book the creative but mostly hidden alliance between American pragmatism and American poetry. He brilliantly traces pragmatism as a philosophical and literary practice grounded in a linguistic skepticism that runs from Emerson and William James to the work of Robert Frost, Gertrude Stein and Wallace Stevens and on to the cultural debates of today. More powerfully than ever before, Poirier shows that pragmatism had its start in Emerson, the great example to all his successors of how it is possible to redeem even as you set out to change the literature of the past. Poirier demonstrates that Emerson and later William James were essentially philosophers of language and that it is language that embodies our cultural past, an inheritance to be struggled with and transformed before being handed on to future generations. He maintains that in Emersonian pragmatist writing any loss, personal or cultural, gives way to a quest for what he calls "superfluousness," a kind of rhetorical excess by which powerfully creative individuals try to elude deprivation and stasis. In a wide-ranging meditation on what James called the "vague," Poirier extols the authentic voice of individualism, which he argues is tentative and casual rather than aggressive and dogmatic. The concluding chapters describe the possibilities for criticism created by this radically different understanding of reading and writing, which are nothing less than a reinvention of literary tradition itself. Poirier's discovery of this tradition illuminates the work of many of the most important figures in American philosophy and poetry. His reanimation of pragmatism also calls for a redirection of contemporary criticism so that readers inside as well as outside the academy can begin to respond to poetic language as the source of meaning, not to meaning as the source of language.

Chaucer's Romaunt of the Rose, Troilus and Creseide and the Minor Poems Geoffrey Chaucer, 1846 The Serpent and the Rose: The Immaculate Conception and Hispanic Poetry in the Late Medieval Period Lesley K. Twomey, 2008-06-03

The Serpent and the Rose examines the theological and liturgical context for the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception in the Middle Ages from primary sources in Iberian archives. Its main focus is a study of Marian poetry from Alfonso the Wise and Gonzalo de Berceo through to the poetry collections of the late fifteenth century, showing how poets took themes from the Bible and apocryphal literature, combining them to defend and praise Mary's conception without sin. Individual chapters assess how they depicted Mary's prefiguration in the Old Testament by the Woman who defeated the serpent, the young bride of the Song of Songs, or the semi-deity Wisdom, how they portray her as the mystic rose and as the new Eve.

This collection of essays is conceived not as a summary of past endeavours but as the beginning of an attempt to present a sense of the wholeness of a distinctively English literature from Beowulf to Spenser The native alliterative tradition of England is represented by its final flowering in two essays on Sir Gawain and the Green Knight and three on Piers Plowman The renewal of English letters in the fourteenth century inspired by continental models in French and Italian is represented by four essays on Chaucer The poetic achievement of these three medieval masters remains unmatched until Spenser announces himself in a third great age in the history of English poetry and this is represented by three essays on the first three books of The Faerie Queene Spenser's indebtedness to Langland and Chaucer and his philosophical conservatism in drawing on the thought of Aristotle and the tradition of medieval commentary surrounding the works of Aristotle ensure that the tradition of English poetry in the Renaissance is securely rooted in its medieval inheritance

Poems of Cupid, God of Love Thelma S. Fenster, Mary Carpenter Erler, 2023-08-21 The lightheartedness of these works both masks and enhances their engagement with provocative issues of continuing interest today conduct in society literary practice and moral praxis relations between men and women the value of received wisdom This volume offers texts of two medieval French poems by Christine de Pizan the Epistre au dieu d'amours and Dit de la Rose together with the first translation of these poems into modern English The medieval English adaptation of Christine's Epistre Thomas Hoccleve's The Letter of Cupid is likewise presented here and provided with a modern English translation Finally an eighteenth century version of Hoccleve's poem George Sewall's The Proclamation of Cupid is edited here for the first time The editions of these poems by Christine last edited a century ago are based on the most recent scholarly findings The edition of Hoccleve's poem reproduces its authorial punctuation from manuscript for the first time and thus sheds light on the vexed question of fifteenth century English metrics The lively modern English translations of both can be used by students scholars and the general reader
