

Taboo: The Wishbone Trilogy, Part 1, by Yusef Komunyakaa.
Farrar, Straus and Giroux. $20.00.

Imhotep, Rubens's wife, Henry the Navigator, Aphra Behn, Queen Marie-Thérèse of France, Phillis Wheatley, Thomas Jefferson and Sally Hemmings, Baudelaire, Benito Cereno, Brindis de Sala, Faulkner, Othello, John Singer Sargent, Delmore Schwartz, Marilyn Monroe, Frank O'Hara, and the female pharaoh Hatshepsut—the Taboo of Komunyakaa's title refers to miscegenation, but the only fatal attraction here is between Komunyakaa and library research. "The serpent speaks / like a Lacan signifier," he writes, and does it ever. Most of the action in this book takes place not in the prim three-line stanzas in which its poems are dispersed, but somewhere just under the page, in imaginary footnotes.

Komunyakaa's method is to build his poems around a character of obliquely mentioned facts: so in "Twilight Seduction" we are told that Duke Ellington knew a Harlem air shaft could recall the whole night in an echo

because there is a famous Duke Ellington composition, "Harlem Air Shaft," which, Duke Ellington has written, sets out to do precisely that. We are given, in pointlessly indirect feints, Elizabeth Barrett Browning's childhood address (50 Wimpole Street!), the year Louis Armstrong first went to Chicago (1922!), and the full title of the grandfather of Dumas père (the Marquis de la Pailleterie!). This is meant to illuminate "the role of blacks in Western history," but Komunyakaa's peculiar habit of partly disguising readily available information makes it read like a bashful textbook. There are moments when Komunyakaa's historical sympathy ripens into something more stirring—as in "Antebellum Silhouettes," a powerful poem about racism and incest after the Civil War—but for the most part Taboo's scholarly accretion of racial synecdoches fails to reveal the danger beneath its archival dust.

Poetry Kaleidoscope Nicolae Sfetcu, 2014-05-12 Introduction in poetry nature of poetry tools history terms periods styles and movements technical means tropes measures of verse verse forms national poetry Poetry ancient Greek poieo I create is traditionally a written art form although there is also an ancient and modern poetry which relies mainly upon oral or pictorial representations in which human language is used for its aesthetic qualities in addition to or instead of its notional and semantic content The increased emphasis on the aesthetics of language and the deliberate use of features such as repetition meter and rhyme are what are commonly used to distinguish poetry from prose but debates over such distinctions still persist while the issue is confounded by such forms as prose poetry and poetic prose Some modernists such as the Surrealists approach this problem of definition by defining poetry not as a literary genre within a set of genres but as the very manifestation of human imagination the substance which all creative acts derive from The Life and Poetry of Ted

Kooser Mary K. Stillwell, 2013-09-01 Like a flash of lightning it came to him the unathletic high school student Ted Kooser saw a future as a famous poet that promised everything glory immortality a bohemian lifestyle no more doing dishes no more cleaning his room and particularly important to the lonely teenager girls Unlike most kids with a sudden ambition Kooser winner of the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry and thirteenth poet laureate of the United States made good on his dream But glory was a long time coming and along the way Kooser lived the life that has made his poetry what it is as deeply grounded in family work and the natural world as it is attuned to the nuances of language Just as so much of Kooser's own writing weaves geography history and family stories into its measures so does this first critical biography consider the poet's work and life together his upbringing in Iowa his studies in Nebraska with poet Karl Shapiro as mentor his career in insurance his family life his bout with cancer and always his poetry Combining a fine appreciation of Kooser's work and life this book finally provides a fuller and more complex picture of a writer who perhaps more than any other has brought the Great Plains and the Midwest lived large and small into the poetry of our day Post-Agreement Northern Irish Literature Birte

Heidemann, 2016-06-23 This book uncovers a new genre of post-Agreement literature consisting of a body of texts fiction poetry and drama by Northern Irish writers who grew up during the Troubles but published their work in the aftermath of the Good Friday Agreement In an attempt to demarcate the literary aesthetic parameters of the genre the book proposes a selective revision of postcolonial theories on liminality through a subset of concepts such as negative liminality liminal suspension and liminal permanence These conceptual interventions as the readings demonstrate help articulate how the Agreement's rhetorical negation of the sectarian past and its aggressive neoliberal campaign towards a progressive future breed new forms of violence that produce liminally suspended subject positions The First Book Jesse Zuba, 2025-07-15

An illuminating look at the poetic debut in twentieth century American literary culture We have many poets of the First Book

the poet and critic Louis Simpson remarked in 1957 describing a sense that the debut poetry collection not only launched the contemporary poetic career but also had come to define it. Surveying American poetry over the past hundred years, The First Book explores the emergence of the poetic debut as a unique literary production with its own tradition, conventions, and dynamic role in the literary market. Through new readings of poets ranging from Wallace Stevens and Marianne Moore to John Ashbery and Louise Glück, Jesse Zuba illuminates the importance of the first book in twentieth-century American literary culture, which involved complex struggles for legitimacy on the part of poets, critics, and publishers alike. Zuba investigates poets' diverse responses to the question of how to launch a career in an increasingly professionalized literary scene that threatened the authenticity of the poetic calling. He shows how modernist debuts evoke markedly idiosyncratic paths, while postwar first books evoke trajectories that balance professional imperatives with traditional literary ideals. Debut titles ranging from Simpson's The Arrivistes to Ken Chen's Juvenilia stress the strikingly pervasive theme of beginning, accommodating a new demand for career development even as it distances the poets from that demand. Combining literary analysis with cultural history, The First Book will interest scholars and students of twentieth-century literature as well as readers and writers of poetry.

Poetry in General Keegan Cook Finberg, 2025-11-04 In the second half of the twentieth century, poetry leapt out of books and became an interdisciplinary public form. Poetry entered bureaucratic systems of organization like index card catalogues; it pushed the boundaries of privately owned public parks. Keegan Cook Finberg argues that poetry became an increasingly capacious force during this period because it could speak directly to the degradation of the social-democratic notion of the public. Poetry in General explores how poets expanded their practice into the realms of politics, work, and everyday life from 1960 to the present, from the apex of the welfare state to an era of privatization and austerity. It considers a compelling array of figures including Yoko Ono, George Brecht, Frank O'Hara, Amiri Baraka, Bernadette Mayer, Eleanor Antin, Adrian Piper, and M. NourbeSe Philip, whose works draw on conceptual techniques to transform official documents and spaces. Finberg shows how these public texts expose the mechanisms of the neoliberal consensus about work and leisure, the state's facilitation of capitalism, and enduring racial and gender inequities. She also provides politically charged ways to interpret and critique racial capitalism, anti-abortion legislation, and mass debt. A new literary and institutional history of postwar poetics, this book shows how poetic experiments address the privatization of collective life and rethink the category of the public.

The Reluctant Political Thinker Sherman W. Garnett, 2025-05-19 Czesław Miłosz was a poet and public writer for almost eight decades and still remains a tremendous figure in world literature. Four decades after he won the Nobel Prize and two decades after his death, Miłosz saw himself as an artist flying above the political fray, but he left the building blocks for an analysis of his political and social thought in plain sight. In this book, Sherman Garnett explores this crucial neglected aspect of Miłosz's thinking by closely

Journey with No Maps Sandra Djwa, 2012-10-01 Journey with No Maps is the first biography of P K Page a brilliant twentieth century poet and a fine artist The product of over a decade's research and writing the book follows

Page as she becomes one of Canada's best loved and most influential writers. A borderline being as she called herself, she recognized the new choices offered to women by modern life but followed only those related to her quest for self discovery. Tracing Page's life through two wars, world travels, the rise of modernist and Canadian cultures, and later Sufi study, biographer Sandra Djwa details the people and events that inspired her work. Page's independent spirit propelled her from Canada to England, from work as a radio actress to a scriptwriter for the National Film Board, from an affair with poet F. R. Scott to an enduring marriage with diplomat Arthur Irwin. Page wrote her story in poems, fiction, diaries, librettos, and her visual art. Journey with No Maps reads like a novel, drawing on the poet's voice from interviews, diaries, letters, and writings, as well as the voices of her contemporaries. With the vividness of a work of fiction and the thoroughness of scholarly dedication, Djwa illustrates the complexities of Page's private experience while also documenting her public emergence as an internationally known poet. It is both the captivating story of a remarkable woman and a major contribution to the study of Canada's literary and artistic history.

Thick and Dazzling Darkness Peter O'Leary, 2017-11-21. How do poets use language to render the transcendent, often dizzyingly inexpressible nature of the divine? In an age of secularism, does spirituality have a place in modern American poetry? In Thick and Dazzling Darkness, Peter O'Leary reads a diverse set of writers to argue for the existence and importance of religious poetry in twentieth and twenty-first century American literature. He traces a poetic genealogy that begins with Whitman and Dickinson and continues in the work of contemporary writers to illuminate an often obscured but still central spiritual impulse that has shaped the production and imagination of American poetry. O'Leary presents close and comprehensive readings of the modernist, late modernist, and postmodern poets Robinson Jeffers, Frank Samperi, and Robert Duncan, as well as the contemporary poets Joseph Donahue, Geoffrey Hill, Fanny Howe, Nathaniel Mackey, Pam Rehm, and Lissa Wolsak. Examining how these poets drew on a variety of traditions, including Catholicism, Gnosticism, the Kabbalah, and mysticism, the book considers how modern and contemporary poets have articulated the spiritual in their work. O'Leary also argues that an anxiety of misunderstanding exists in the study and writing of poetry between secular and religious impulses and that the religious nature of poets' works is too often marginalized or misunderstood. Examining the works of a specific poet in each chapter, O'Leary reveals their complexity and offers a defense of the value and meaning of religious poetry against the grain of a secular society.

Poetry, Print, and the Making of Postcolonial Literature Nathan Suhr-Sytsma, 2017-07-10. The book reveals how mid-twentieth-century African, Caribbean, Irish, and British poets profoundly affected each other in person and in print.
