Reconceiving Writing, Rethinking Writing Instruction Joseph Petraglia, 1995 First Published in 1995 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Toward a Composition Made Whole Jody L. Shipka, 2011-04-30 To many academics composition still represents typewritten texts on 8 5 x 11 pages that follow rote argumentative guidelines In Toward a Composition Made Whole Jody Shipka views composition as an act of communication that can be expressed through any number of media and as a path to meaning making Her study offers an in depth examination of multimodality via the processes values structures and semiotic practices people employ every day to compose and communicate their thoughts Shipka counters current associations that equate multimodality only with computer digitized or screen mediated texts which are often self limiting She stretches the boundaries of composition to include a hybridization of aural visual and written forms Shipka analyzes the work of current scholars in multimodality and combines this with recent writing theory to create her own teaching framework Among her methods Shipka employs process oriented reflection and a statement of goals and choices to prepare students to compose using various media in ways that spur their rhetorical and material awareness They are encouraged to produce unusual text forms while also learning to understand the composition process as a whole Shipka presents several case studies of students working in multimodal composition and explains the strategies tools and spaces they employ She then offers methods to critically assess multimodal writing projects Toward a Composition Made Whole challenges theorists and compositionists to further investigate communication practices and broaden the scope of writing to include all composing methods While Shipka views writing as crucial to discourse she challenges us to always consider the various purposes that writing serves Reshaping Technical Communication Barbara Mirel, Rachel Spilka, 2002-06-01 This anthology brings together voices from industry and academia in a call for elevating the status identity value and influence of technical communicators Editors Barbara Mirel and Rachel Spilka assert that technical communicators must depart from their traditional roles moving instead in a more influential and expansive direction To help readers explore the possibilities contributions from innovative thinkers and leaders in technical communication propose ways to redefine the field s identity and purposes and to expand the parameters of its work The chapters included here all point toward new directions for greater growth and influence of the field Contributors depart from traditional ideas and solutions and discuss new and in some cases radical points provoking further thought and discussion Its exploration of fresh territory uncovers new research topics and directions and provides an examination of both internal industry academia relationships and external relationships between technical communicators and other professionals In its entirety this collection represents an inclusive vision for the future targeting such wide ranging issues as creating effective professional organizations disseminating research to diverse audiences transitioning to more influential job roles exerting leadership in usability and creating hybrid identities and collaborative programs between industry and academic to support them The diverse voices from industry and academia will inspire readers to think differently about the discipline's identity and direction and to build on the ideas they find herein to effect change within their own spheres As required reading for academics and professionals in technical communication this collection is a critical step in reshaping and reinvigorating the technical communication field to ensure its survival and growth in the 21st century The Locations of Composition Christopher J. Keller, Christian R. Weisser, 2007-07-05 Explores the concepts of space and place within composition studies Communicating Mobility and Technology Ehren Helmut Pflugfelder, 2016-07-07 Winner of the 2018 CCCC Technical and Scientific Communication Award in the category of Best Book in Technical or Scientific Communication Responding to the effects of human mobility and crises such as depleting oil supplies Ehren Helmut Pflugfelder turns specifically to automobility a term used to describe the kinds of mobility afforded by autonomous automobile based movement technologies and their ramifications Thus far few studies in technical communication have explored the development of mobility technologies the immense power that highly structured environmentally significant systems have in the world or the human machine interactions that take place in such activities Applying kinaesthetic rhetoric a rhetoric that is sensitive to and developed from the mobile material context of these technologies Pflugfelder looks at transportation projects such as electric taxi cabs from the turn of the century to modern day open source vehicle projects and a large case study of an autonomous electric pod car network that ultimately failed Kinaesthetic rhetoric illuminates how mobility technologies have always been persuasive wherever and whenever linguistic symbol systems and material interactions enroll us often unconsciously into regimes of movement and ways of experiencing the world As Pflugfelder shows mobility technologies involve networks of sustained arguments that are as durable as the bonds between the actors in their networks Composition In The University Sharon Crowley, 1998-05-15 Composition in the University examines the required introductory course in composition within American colleges and universities According to Sharon Crowley the required composition course has never been conceived in the way that other introductory courses have been as an introduction to the principles and practices of a field of study Rather it has been constructed throughout much of its history as a site from which larger educational and ideological agendas could be advanced and such agendas have not always served the interests of students or teachers even though they are usually touted as programs of study that students need If there is a master narrative of the history of composition it is told in the institutional attitude that has governed administration design and staffing of the course from its beginnings the attitude that the universal requirement is in place in order to construct docile academic subjects Crowley argues that due to its association with literary studies in English departments composition instruction has been inappropriately influenced by humanist pedagogy and that modern humanism is not a satisfactory rationale for the study of writing She examines historical attempts to reconfigure the required course in nonhumanist terms such as the advent of communications studies during the 1940s Crowley devotes two essays to this phenomenon concentrating on the furor caused by the adoption of a communications program at the University of Iowa

Composition in the University concludes with a pair of essays that argue against maintenance of the universal requirement In the last of these Crowley envisions possible nonhumanist rationales that could be developed for vertical curricula in writing instruction were the universal requirement not in place Crowley presents her findings in a series of essays because she feels the history of the required composition course cannot easily be understood as a coherent narrative since understandings of the purpose of the required course have altered rapidly from decade to decade sometimes in shockingly sudden and erratic fashion The essays in this book are informed by Crowley s long career of teaching composition administering a composition program and training teachers of the required introductory course The book also draw on experience she gained while working with committees formed by the Conference on College Composition and Communication toward implementation of the Wyoming Resolution an attempt to better the working conditions of post secondary teachers of writing Handbook for Arabic Language Teaching Professionals in the 21st Century, Volume II Kassem M. Composition, Rhetoric, and Disciplinarity Rita Malenczyk, Susan Miller-Cochran, Elizabeth Wardle, Kathleen Yancey, 2018-04-02 Edited by four nationally recognized leaders of composition scholarship Composition Rhetoric and Disciplinarity asks a fundamental question can Composition and Rhetoric as a discipline continue its historical commitment to pedagogy without sacrificing equal attention to other areas such as research and theory In response contributors to the volume address disagreements about what it means to be called a discipline rather than a profession or a field elucidate tensions over the defined breadth of Composition and Rhetoric and consider the roles of research and responsibility as Composition and Rhetoric shifts from field to discipline Outlining a field with a complex and unusual formation story Composition Rhetoric and Disciplinarity employs several lenses for understanding disciplinarity theory history labor and pedagogy and for teasing out the implications of disciplinarity for students faculty institutions and Composition and Rhetoric itself Collectively the chapters speak to the intellectual and embodied history leading to this point to questions about how disciplinarity is and might be understood especially with regard to Composition and Rhetoric to the curricular conceptual labor and other sites of tension inherent in thinking about Composition and Rhetoric as a discipline and to the implications of Composition and Rhetoric's disciplinarity for the future

Securing a Place for Reading in Composition Ellen C. Carillo, 2015-01-15 Securing a Place for Reading in Composition addresses the dissonance between the need to prepare students to read not just write complex texts and the lack of recent scholarship on reading writing connections Author Ellen C Carillo argues that including attention to reading practices is crucial for developing more comprehensive literacy pedagogies Students who can read actively and reflectively will be able to work successfully with the range of complex texts they will encounter throughout their post secondary academic careers and beyond Considering the role of reading within composition from both historical and contemporary perspectives Carillo makes recommendations for the productive integration of reading instruction into first year writing courses She details a mindful reading framework wherein instructors help students cultivate a repertoire of approaches upon which they consistently reflect as they apply them to various texts This metacognitive frame allows students to become knowledgeable and deliberate about how they read and gives them the opportunity to develop the skills useful for moving among reading approaches in mindful ways thus preparing them to actively and productively read in courses and contexts outside first year composition Securing a Place for Reading in Composition also explores how the field of composition might begin to effectively address reading including conducting research on reading revising outcome statements and revisiting the core courses in graduate programs It will be of great interest to writing program administrators and other compositionists and their graduate students

Style and the Future of Composition Studies Paul Butler, Brian Ray, Star Medzerian Vanguri, 2020-11-02 Style and the Future of Composition Studies explores style s potential for informing how students are taught to write well and its power as a tool for analyzing the language and discourse practices of writers and speakers in a range of contexts Many college writing teachers operate under the belief that style still refers primarily to the kinds of issues discussed in Strunk and White s popular but outdated book The Elements of Style This work not only challenges this view but also offers theories and pedagogies from diverse perspectives that help teachers and students develop strategic habits and mindsets to negotiate languages genres and discourse conventions The chapters explore the ways in which style directly affects and is affected by multiple sources of shifting disciplinary inquiry contributing new insights by drawing on research in cultural studies sociolinguistics discourse studies translingualism and writing across the curriculum as well as new approaches to classical rhetorical theory The reemergence of stylistic inquiry can be used dynamically to produce new insights not only about emerging disciplinary interests but also about the study of style as a kind of language in and of itself Style and the Future of Composition Studies demonstrates that style deserves to be a central focus of writing teaching More than just the next style collection the book advocates for style's larger prominence in composition discussions generally It will be of interest to a broad range of students and scholars of writing studies as well as a wider set of readers in academe Contributors Cydney Alexis Laura Aull Anthony Box Jimmy Butts Mike Duncan William FitzGerald Melissa Goldthwaite Eric House TR Johnson Almas Khan Zak Lancaster Eric Leake Andrea Olinger Thomas Pace Jarron Slater Jonathan Udelson
