and U.S. Education Compared Edward R. Beauchamp, 1992 This document presents a comparative analysis of education in Japan and the United States The report explores differences between U S and Japanese culture While the United States may be characterized by its diversity Japanese culture is distinctive in the extent of its uniformity Japan moreover has a highly centralized educational system U S education is extremely decentralized Education is compulsory in both countries until age 16 in most U S states and until 15 in Japan While many students in the United States work or participate in other activities Japan tends to view schooling as a student s job Japanese students face a longer school year and a more rigorous government controlled curriculum than do their U S counterparts In Japan teaching is a more highly respected and rewarded field than it is in the United States There are major attitudinal differences concerning schooling in the two countries The United States tends to emphasize students abilities while the Japanese place greater emphasis on persistence and personal responsibility From the Japanese system the United States can learn 1 the true value of taking education seriously 2 the need to raise academic standards and 3 the ability to spend wisely on education Contains 15 references LBG Resources in Education, 1991-04 The Portfolio Approach to Assessment Emily Grady, 1992 The shortcomings of standardized testing as the predominant form of student assessment in the United States are reviewed and the use and potential benefits of portfolio assessment are explored Children s educational experiences and their future job prospects and standards of living are being decided by test scores Moreover these test scores may be unfair or biased against some students Instead of more tests we need a new attitude toward assessment one that encourages a variety of assessments Portfolio assessment through collections of student works can be an encompassing format for this new philosophy Before considering what a portfolio should contain it is important to establish the purpose of the assessment The experiences of Vermont illustrate the development of a portfolio assessment with consistent standards Examples of guidelines for mathematics and language arts portfolios make it clear that it is possible to establish consistent practices It is also necessary to reflect on the portfolio occasionally using self evaluations and direct questions or profiles Educators also find portfolios useful tools for preservice teachers Portfolio assessment can be the framework for a new curricular structure that integrates assessment into the learning loop SLD School Leadership Stuart Carl Smith, Philip K. Piele, 1989 Recognizing the importance of good leadership to the achievement of educational excellence the second edition of this handbook synthesizes a large body of school leadership literature and explores the subject from three perspectives the person the structure and the skills Part I examines characteristics of today s educational leaders effective leadership styles and qualities administrator training hiring and induction methods and the scarcity of female and black school leaders Part II looks at the organizational supports underlying school leadership This section examines the balance of authority between the central office and the school site the team approach to management the decision making context and the components of school climate Part III highlights leadership abilities needed by today s school administrators Besides knowing how to manage the school s instructional program and staff administrators must be able to communicate in today's more open sharing organization build coalitions of community groups make meetings more productive and manage time stress and conflict more effectively Concerned about integrating theory with practice the book offers many practical suggestions for using the information presented

Accompanying each chapter are extensive bibliographical references that appear at the end of the volume MLH Religion and the Schools Eugene T. Connors, 1988 This fastback examines the U S Supreme Court decisions and a few lower court decisions concerning religion and education rendered in the 1980s and for background purposes it also includes some decisions prior to the 1980s The first of four parts discusses cases pertaining to prayer and religious activities in school Included in the discussion are cases concerning moment of silence posting the Ten Commandments school clubs and the Equal Access Act religious holidays and holiday observances Christmas pageants and other seasonal observances and prayers during school functions The second part discusses cases involving aid to parochial schools Litigation involving shared time programs and Chapter I services is discussed along with tax deductions for education expenses The third part addresses religion in the curriculum reviewing cases on religious objections to compulsory school attendance creationism and evolution using the Bible in the school curriculum teachers rights to refuse to teach objectionable material and textbooks and secular humanism A list of cases is appended TE A Primer on Music for Non-musician Educators Margaret Dee Merrion, Marilyn Vincent, 1988 The objectives of this pamphlet are to 1 introduce the processes of music learning to non musician educators 2 illustrate how music learning serves as a model for all learning 3 enable educators to gain a new perspective of the demands and processes needed to develop musical talent and 4 help non musician administrators understand that music learning has many benefits beyond the public performances that entertain the community For most individuals music learning is developmental and requires continuing effort spread over a period of time It has cognitive psychomotor and affective domains The cognitive or intellectual component of music includes music history and a body of knowledge in music theory The musical elements of rhythm harmony melody form style and dynamics are the fundamentals of music theory The psychomotor aspect of music learning involves sensory stimulation and perceptual processes and the cognitive and psychomotor elements in the music learning process are transformed into affective learning experiences As music is essentially an aural phenomenon the ears play a major role in music processing From the ear musical impulses are picked up and transmitted via a neurological network to the brain To help students develop musical skill and insight music must be experienced Musicianship can be developed to some degree by almost all persons through engaging in musical experiences SM The High-performing Educational Manager William E. Webster, 1988 This step by step guide is intended to help educators learn about the characteristics and activities of high performing managers It synthesizes the ideas of several experts on business management performance and includes examples of highly successful educational managers It also briefly presents a comprehensive strategy that educational managers can adapt in whole or in part for improving their own management performance The first section provides a checklist of characteristics of high performers The second section describes the activities of high performers including personal core values analysis developing the mission statement communicating the mission reviewing progress staying in touch with the people understanding the changing environment serving as motivator and teacher and recognizing colleagues special skills The third section describes an approach to developing a personal work plan while the final section offers tips for gathering and using data Appended are questionnaires and personalized forms intended to help school managers analyze their current management style and compare it with the styles used by effective organizational leaders TE

Education, by Invitation Only William Watson Purkey, John M. Novak, 1988 Invitational Education is a metaphor for an emerging model of the educative process consisting of four value based assumptions about the nature of people and their potential 1 people are able valuable and responsible and should be treated accordingly 2 education should be a collaborative cooperative activity 3 people possess untapped potential in all areas of human endeavor and 4 human potential can best be realized by places policies and processes that are specifically designed to invite development and by people who are intentionally inviting with themselves and others personally and professionally This fastback presents a conceptual model for invitational education and suggests some practical strategies for making schools the most inviting place in town intellectually psychologically and physically Part 1 describes the assumptions elements and theoretical foundations of invitational education Part 2 provides tips on translating theory into practice through transformation of the places people policies and programs of a school to ensure that each school day is an invitation to learning Part 3 provides tips for Increasing Your Invitational Quotient both personally and professionally TE

Extraordinary Educators Charles A. Reavis, 1988 Profiles are presented of six superior educators whose students achieved an excellence far beyond what might be expected of them The subjects were a speech and drama teacher a girls basketball coach a choral music teacher an art teacher and principals of an elementary and a secondary school The major finding of the study was that without exception these leaders gave a high number of correctives Any deviations even minor ones from their high standards were corrected quickly and not infrequently very sharply Other significant findings were 1 they were purposive demanding perfectionists 2 they had a sense of humor and tended toward self deprecation 3 they gave only a limited amount of praise 4 they stressed self discipline responsibility and always doing one s best 5 they attained a high amount of time on task and 6 they were very family oriented Comparisons are made between the characteristics of these educators and leaders in the business world Recommendations are made for teacher and administrator education JD

Mission Possible Stephen Franse, 1988 The Bronx Education Endowment Fund BEEF established in 1985 provides mini grants of up to 100 to fund simple projects aimed at educational improvement During the first two years of the program 18 mini grants were awarded to 16 teachers one student and one parent organization A large number of both regular and special education students from pre kindergarten to 12th grade received benefits from the projects The projects were cost efficient and encouraged active student participation in the educational process Many of the programs were characterized by the following 1 a hands on approach to learning 2 the use of outside human resources 3 culminating activities that served as an evaluative measure 4 an investigative approach to learning and 5 a focus on the specific needs of the pupils BEEF uses a simplified proposal process Some projects in the following areas are described 1 the humanities and social sciences 2 mathematics and science and 3 special education Photographs illustrate the text A short bibliography is included BJV

Rakow, 1986 The use of the inquiry approach in the teaching of elementary science is examined and advocated in this publication The position that an inquiry approach is the best way to teach and learn science is upheld and its influence on the development of positive attitudes towards science is stressed Section titles include 1 A Tale of Two Teachers contrasting the approaches taken by two science teachers 2 What Is Inquiry explaining the process of inquiry as it relates to the nature of science the teaching of science and the learning of science 3 The Learning Cycle A Model of Inquiry Teaching Learning discussing the stages of this model and 4 Status of the Inquiry Approach in Science Education including recommendations for promoting the inquiry approach A list of ten references is also provided ML

Developing an Effective Teacher Mentor Program Melvin P. Heller, Nancy W. Sindelar, 1991 School districts considering a mentoring program need to consider four things 1 the reasons for a teacher mentor program 2 how to start such a program 3 administrative support needed for a successful program and 4 pitfalls to avoid The reasons for having a mentor program are that it benefits the new teacher the mentor and the school The new teacher s opportunities to exchange views with an experienced teacher is a distinct benefit to him her The mentor benefits also however because of the opportunity to share views experiences and strategies The improved teaching that usually results is an asset to the school Starting a program involves six stages establishing a rationale setting criteria for the selection of mentors defining roles inviting the mentors training the mentors and evaluating the program To be successful the program must have administrative support from the board of education the superintendent the central office staff the teacher union and the principal As with any new program anticipating problems can help to avoid them Some pitfalls are overdependence on the part of the protege ego problems on the part of the mentor and the evaluation dilemma arising from the mentor s dual role of confidant and evaluator Mentorship programs promote professionalism by providing continuous staff development during the first year of teaching AMH
