Natures Destiny How The Laws Of Biology Reveal Purpose In The Universe:

Nature's Destiny Michael Denton, 2002-02 A leading evolutionary thinker biologist and medical researcher asks the question Could life elsewhere be substantially different from life on Earth and builds a step by step argument for human inevitability 65 illustrations photos

Nature's Destiny Michael J. Denton, 2004-02-01 Could life elsewhere in the universe be significantly different from life on Earth Must it rely on carbon water DNA amino acids and proteins Could there be an alternative to DNA or could DNA be constructed out of different components From these building blocks Denton asks the question Is it possible there are life forms radically different from those realized during the course of evolution on Earth Is a Homo sapiens like creature the only possible highly intelligent species given the laws of biology that exist throughout the universe The answer to his last question is yes For life to develop beyond the most primitive stage requires an earthlike planet with earthlike atmosphere and oceans Shows that our biosphere is central to nature s destiny Illustrated

Laws of Nature, Laws of God? Louise Hickman, Neil Spurway, 2015-09-18 Up until the time of Newton scientists regarded the understandings of the physical world at which they were arriving as glimpses of the working of the Creator s mind Thus the generalisations being formulated about the behaviour of matter the Laws of Nature were seen as the Creator s injunctions to created matter as to how it was to act They were laws in the same sense as laws Divine or human about how people should behave that is why the same word was used for both And even now scientific laws are occasionally spoken of as being obeyed However it is doubtful whether any practising scientist religious believer or not now thinks of laws in the way that the word literally implies How instead scientists do or should view scientific laws has been debated since the time of Hume and Kant and it is a vigorous field of investigation among current philosophers of science In this book scientists physical and biological historians and students of ideas all of them theologically informed tackle this topic from many angles They do so in relation to the lead public lecture at the conference from which the book stems given by the eminent and iconoclastic philosopher of science Professor Nancy Cartwright She asked the question How could laws make things happen and her answer was They couldn t

The Nature and Limits of Human Understanding Anthony Sanford, Philip Nicholas Johnson-Laird, 2003-05-01 This book is an exploration of human understanding from the perspectives of psychology philosophy biology and theology The six contributors are among the most internationally eminent in their fields Though scholarly the writing is non technical No background in psychology philosophy or theology is presumed No other interdisciplinary work has undertaken to explore the nature of human understanding This book is unique and highly significant for anyone interested in or concerned about the human condition
