

DOUGLAS KAHN

The background of the entire cover is a high-contrast, blue-toned image of a person's face. The person's eyes are closed, and their mouth is open in a wide, joyful expression. Overlaid on the mouth area is a grid of squares, each containing a different texture or pattern, creating a complex, multi-layered visual effect. The title 'NOISE WATER MEAT' is printed in large, bold, yellow capital letters across the middle of the face, partially obscuring the grid.

Noise Water Meat A History Of Sound In The Arts:

Noise, Water, Meat Douglas Kahn, 2001-08-24 An examination of the role of sound in twentieth century arts This interdisciplinary history and theory of sound in the arts reads the twentieth century by listening to it to the emphatic and exceptional sounds of modernism and those on the cusp of postmodernism recorded sound noise silence the fluid sounds of immersion and dripping and the meat voices of viruses screams and bestial cries Focusing on Europe in the first half of the century and the United States in the postwar years Douglas Kahn explores aural activities in literature music visual arts theater and film Placing aurality at the center of the history of the arts he revisits key artistic questions listening to the sounds that drown out the politics and poetics that generated them Artists discussed include Antonin Artaud George Brecht William Burroughs John Cage Sergei Eisenstein Fluxus Allan Kaprow Michael McClure Yoko Ono Jackson Pollock Luigi Russolo and Dziga Vertov

The Soundscape of Modernity Emily Thompson, 2004-09-17 A vibrant history of acoustical technology and aural culture in early twentieth century America In this history of aural culture in early twentieth century America Emily Thompson charts dramatic transformations in what people heard and how they listened What they heard was a new kind of sound that was the product of modern technology They listened as newly critical consumers of aural commodities By examining the technologies that produced this sound as well as the culture that enthusiastically consumed it Thompson recovers a lost dimension of the Machine Age and deepens our understanding of the experience of change that characterized the era Reverberation equations sound meters microphones and acoustical tiles were deployed in places as varied as Boston's Symphony Hall New York's office skyscrapers and the soundstages of Hollywood The control provided by these technologies however was applied in ways that denied the particularity of place and the diverse spaces of modern America began to sound alike as a universal new sound predominated Although this sound clear direct efficient and nonreverberant had little to say about the physical spaces in which it was produced it speaks volumes about the culture that created it By listening to it Thompson constructs a compelling new account of the experience of modernity in America

Constructing Urban Space with Sounds and Music Ricciarda Belgiojoso, 2016-05-23 While we are used to looking around us we are less used to listening to what happens around us And yet the noises we produce reveal our way of life and learning to master them is a necessity This book aims at drawing the reader's attention to the sound of the urban environment The topic is by its very nature complex as it involves sounds and noises urban space and social activities Using an interdisciplinary approach it examines a heterogeneous selection of experimentations from the domains of music art and architecture Significant case studies of pieces of music public art works and scientific research in the field of urban planning are analyzed investigating the methods that have been adopted and the aural processes that have been generated It then uses the findings to reconstruct the underlying theories and practices and to show what might be drawn from these procedures applied to urban planning The overall objective is to learn to build and enrich space with sound arguing that there is a need to reconsider architecture and urban planning beyond building and to look to the world of the arts and other disciplines In doing so the book guides the reader toward a sensorial architecture and more generally toward consciously creating environmental architecture which is sustainable and connects with art and which diffuses a culture of sound and interrogate Europe's various conceptualizations from a variety of viewpoints. It explores the broad, complex and heterogeneous communityies produced in and by European films taking in Kurdish Hollywood and Singapore cinema as comfortably as the cinema of Poland, Spanish colonial films or the European gangster genre. Chapters cover numerous topics including individual films, film movements, filmmakers, stars, scholarship, representations and identities, audiences, production practices, genres and more, all analysed in their contexts so as to construct an image of Europe as it emerges from Europe's film corpus. The Companion opens the study of European cinema to a broad readership and is ideal for students and scholars in film, European studies, queer studies and cultural studies as well as historians with an interest in audio-visual culture, nationalism and transnationalism and those working in language-based area studies.

The Routledge History of the Senses Andrew Kettler, Will Tullett, 2025-06-26

The Routledge History of the Senses presents readers with an overview of the field. As well as pointing to directions for the future of the discipline, it illustrates the extent to which the subject offers a considerable space for the exploration of diverse historical topics through the lens of sensory experience. The handbook brings together essays and case studies from some of the leading academics on the history of the senses. Together they not only chart topics and arguments in existing scholarship but introduce fresh methodologies for future analyses. Specifically, the chapters collectively show that the senses of the historical body often portray the intensity of the invasion of capital upon the functions of the mind throughout global history. As a global history, this work arrives at a time when many sensory historians are looking for a touchstone for moving beyond the often heavily Western frameworks that dominate the existing literature on the historical senses. Not only will this book appeal to students and scholars of the history of senses, visual studies, art history, food studies and many of the social sciences, but individual chapters also offer useful reading material for a wide range of history modules and contemporary topics.

Museum Media Michelle Henning, 2020-11-17

MUSEUM MEDIA Edited by Michelle Henning. Museum Media explores the contemporary uses of diverse media in museum contexts and discusses how technology is reinventing the museum. It considers how technological changes from photography and television through to digital mobile media have given rise to new habits, forms of attention and behaviors. It explores how research methods can be used to understand people's relationships with media technologies and display techniques in museum contexts as well as the new opportunities media offer for museums to engage with their visitors. Entries written by leading experts examine the transformation of history and memory by new media, the ways in which exhibitions mediate visitor experience, how designers and curators can establish new kinds of relationships with visitors, the expansion of the museum beyond its walls and its insertion into a wider commercial and corporate landscape. Focusing on formal, theoretical and technical aspects of exhibition practice, this in-depth volume explores questions of temporality, attachment to objects, atmospheric and immersive exhibition design, the reinvention of the exhibition medium and much more.
