Gabriel Garcia Márquez' "One Hundred Years of Solitude" as critique on latin americans? Dorothee Koch, 2008-05-29 Essay from the year 2007 in the subject American Studies Miscellaneous grade A Bread Loaf School of English Middlebury College Bread Loaf School of English course 20th Century Latin American History language English abstract Garcia Marquez novel One Hundred Years of Solitude records the rise and fall of a fictional town called Macondo Although this town is invented by the author its foundation its development and its fall show social and political realities we know from Latin America s past and Colombia s history in particular The Buendía family who founded the town and lives in it for six generations throughout the novel mirrors Colombian reality post Spanish imperialism e g the Civil War the take over of the United Fruit Company of Boston the massacre of Cienega etc All these events can be found in the book and can be related to Latin American history Since the novel is amazingly rich and breaks narrative linearity through flashbacks and flashforwards the similarities and the obvious connection between reality and fiction is used as a framework for this paper and lead to the question of whether there is a political message in the book or not Using the history of Latin America and the events in the book referring to it I will prove that there is more than just a critique on the current behaviour of Latin Americans The use of magical realism concerning time shows that history is circular it repeats itself if you do not learn through your experiences if you refuse to progress but stick to the progress of others This is the mistake the Buendías commit and this mistake should be conferred to Latin America in order to finally combat a plague of amnesia Conniff 167

In the Shadow of World Literature Michael Allan, 2016-04-05 We have grown accustomed to understanding world literature as a collection of national or linguistic traditions bound together in the universality of storytelling Michael Allan challenges this way of thinking and argues instead that the disciplinary framework of world literature far from serving as the neutral meeting ground of national literary traditions levels differences between scripture poetry and prose and fashions textual forms into a particular pedagogical aesthetic and ethical practice In the Shadow of World Literature examines the shift from Qur'anic schooling to secular education in colonial Egypt and shows how an emergent literary discipline transforms the act of reading itself The various chapters draw from debates in literary theory and anthropology to consider sites of reception that complicate the secular religious divide from the discovery of the Rosetta stone and translations of the Qur'an to debates about Charles Darwin in the modern Arabic novel Through subtle analysis of competing interpretative frames Allan reveals the ethical capacities and sensibilities literary reading requires the conceptions of textuality and critique it institutionalizes and the forms of subjectivity it authorizes A brilliant and original exploration of what it means to be literate in the modern world this book is a unique meditation on the reading practices that define the contours of world literature
