Nonlinear Diffusion Equations and Their Equilibrium States, 3 N.G Lloyd,M.G. Ni,L.A. Peletier,J. Serrin,1991-06-01

Nonlinear diffusion equations have held a prominent place in the theory of partial differential equations both for the challenging and deep mathematical questions posed by such equations and the important role they play in many areas of science and technology Examples of current interest are biological and chemical pattern formation semiconductor design environmental problems such as solute transport in groundwater flow phase transitions and combustion theory Central to the theory is the equation $U_t = \Delta U + f(u)$ Here Δ denotes the n dimensional Laplacian u and f are given functions and the solution is defined on some domain $\Omega \times [0, T]$ in space time Fundamental questions concern the existence uniqueness and regularity of solutions the existence of interfaces or free boundaries the question as to whether or not the solution can be continued for all time the asymptotic behavior both in time and space and the development of singularities for instance when the solution ceases to exist after finite time either through extinction or through blow up

Classification of Radial Solutions Arising in the Study of Thermal Structures with Thermal Equilibrium or No Flux at the Boundary Alfonso Castro, Victor Padron, 2010 The authors provide a complete classification of the radial solutions to a class of reaction diffusion equations arising in the study of thermal structures such as plasmas with thermal equilibrium or no flux at the boundary In particular their study includes rapidly growing nonlinearities that is those where an exponent exceeds the critical exponent They describe the corresponding bifurcation diagrams and determine existence and uniqueness of ground states which play a central role in characterizing those diagrams They also provide information on the stability/unstability of the radial steady states

Calculus of Variations and Partial Differential Equations Luigi Ambrosio, Norman Dancer, 2012-12-06 At the summer school in Pisa in September 1996 Luigi Ambrosio and Norman Dancer each gave a course on the geometric problem of evolution of a surface by mean curvature and degree theory with applications to PDEs respectively This self contained presentation accessible to PhD students bridged the gap between standard courses and advanced research on these topics The resulting book is divided accordingly into 2 parts and neatly illustrates the 2 way interaction of problems and methods Each of the courses is augmented and complemented by additional short chapters by other authors describing current research problems and results

Variational Methods for Discontinuous Structures Raul Serapioni, Franco Tomarelli, 2012-12-06 In recent years many researchers in material science have focused their attention on the study of composite materials equilibrium of crystals and crack distribution in continua subject to loads At the same time several new issues in computer vision and image processing have been studied in depth The understanding of many of these problems has made significant progress thanks to new methods developed in calculus of variations geometric measure theory and partial differential equations In particular new technical tools have been introduced and successfully applied For example in order to describe the geometrical complexity of unknown patterns a new class of problems in calculus of variations has been introduced together with a suitable functional setting the free discontinuity problems and the special BV and BH functions The conference held at Villa Olmo on Lake Como in September 1994 spawned successful discussion of these topics among
