Londinium: A Biography Richard Hingley, 2018-08-23 Winner of the PROSE Award 2019 for Classics This major new work on Roman London brings together the many new discoveries of the last generation and provides a detailed overview of the city from before its foundation in the first century to the fifth century AD Richard Hingley explores the archaeological and historical evidence for London under the Romans assessing the city in the context of its province and the wider empire He explores the multiple functions of Londinium over time considering economy industry trade status and urban infrastructure but also looking at how power status gender and identity are reflected through the materiality of the terrain and waterscape of the evolving city A particular focus of the book is the ritual and religious context in which these activities occurred Hingley looks at how places within the developing urban landscape were inherited and considers how the history and meanings of Londinium built upon earlier associations from its recent and ancient past As well as drawing together a much needed synthesis of recent scholarship and material evidence Hingley offers new perspectives that will inspire future debate and research for years to come This volume not only provides an accessible introduction for undergraduate students and anyone interested in the ancient city of London but also an essential account for more advanced students and scholars

London in Cinema Charlotte Brunsdon, 2019-07-25 Charlotte Brunsdon's illuminating study explores the variety of cinematic Londons that appear in films made since 1945 Brunsdon traces the familiar ways that film makers establish that a film is set in London by use of recognisable landmarks and the city's shorthand iconography of red buses and black taxis as well as the ways in which these icons are avoided She looks at London weather fog and rain and everyday locations like the pub and the housing estate while also examining the recurring patterns of representation associated with films set in the East and West Ends of London from Spring in Park Lane 1948 to Mona Lisa 1986 and from Night and the City 1950 to From Hell 2001 Brunsdon provides a detailed analysis of a selection of films exploring their contribution to the cinematic geography of London and showing the ways in which feature films have responded to and created changing views of the city She traces London's transformation from imperial capital to global city through the different ways in which the local is imagined in films ranging from Ealing comedies to Pressure 1974 as well as through the shifting imagery of the River Thames and the Docks She addresses the role of cinematic genres such as horror and film noir in the constitution of the cinematic city as well as the recurrence of figures such as the cockney the gangster and the housewife Challenging the view that London is not a particularly cinematic city Brunsdon demonstrates that many London set films offer their own meditation on the complex relationships between the cinema and the city

Rural Settlements and Society in Anglo-Saxon England Helena Hamerow, 2012-07-05 In the course of the fifth century the farms and villas of lowland Britain were replaced by a new distinctive form of rural settlement the settlements of the Anglo Saxons This volume presents the first major synthesis of the evidence which has expanded enormously in recent years for such settlements from across England and throughout the Anglo Saxon period and what it reveals about the communities who built and lived in them and whose daily lives went almost wholly unrecorded Helena Hamerow examines the appearance function and life cycles of their buildings the relationship of Anglo Saxon settlements to the Romano British landscape and to later medieval villages the role of ritual in daily life and the relationship between farming regimes and settlement forms A central theme throughout the book is the impact on rural producers of the rise of lordship and markets and how this impact is reflected in the remains of their settlements Hamerow provides an introduction to the wealth of information yielded by settlement archaeology and to the enormous contribution that it makes to our understanding of Anglo Saxon society

English Landscapes and Identities Chris Gosden, Chris Green, Anwen Cooper, Miranda Creswell, Victoria Donnelly, Tyler Franconi, Roger Glyde, Zena Kamash, Sarah Mallet, Laura Morley, Daniel Stansbie, Letty ten Harkel, 2021-05-06 Long before the Norman Conquest of 1066 England saw periods of profound change that transformed the landscape and the identities of those who occupied it The Bronze and Iron Ages saw the introduction of now familiar animals and plants such as sheep horses wheat and oats as well as new forms of production and exchange and the first laying out of substantial fields and trackways which continued into the earliest Romano British landscapes The Anglo Saxon period saw the creation of new villages based around church and manor with ridge and furrow cultivation strips still preserved today The basis for this volume is The English Landscapes and Identities project which synthesised all the major available sources of information on English archaeology to examine this crucial period of landscape history from the middle Bronze Age c 1500 BC to the Domesday survey c 1086 AD It looks at the nature of archaeological work undertaken across England to assess its strengths and weaknesses when writing long term histories Among many other topics it examines the interaction of ecology and human action in shaping the landscape issues of movement across the landscape in various periods changing forms of food over time

an understanding of spatial scale and questions of enclosing and naming the landscape culminating in a discussion of the links between landscape and identity The result is the first comprehensive account of the English landscape over a crucial 2500 year period It also offers a celebration of many centuries of archaeological work especially the intensive large scale investigations that have taken place since the 1960s and transformed our understanding of England s past Down By the River Benjamin Gearey,Andy Howard,Henry Chapman,2016-05-31 East Anglia has long been known for its internationally significant cultural and environmental Palaeolithic archaeology often overshadowing the potential of its Holocene resource This volume details the results of 8 years of palaeoenvironmental archaeological and geoarchaeological investigations focused on the post glacial history and evolution of the Suffolk river valleys funded by Historic England and a number of commercial developers The volume illustrates the largely untapped research potential of the region and provides information concerning the timing pattern and process of alluvial development landscape change and human activity The highlight of these investigations was the excavation and associated analyses of three well preserved later prehistoric timber alignments and their environmental records discovered during flood alleviation works on the floodplain of the lower Waveney Valley As well as documenting these internationally significant remains the research described includes innovative approaches to wetland archaeological and palaeoenvironmental study highlighting important methodological considerations with respect to radiocarbon dating and chronology applying novel geophysical approaches to site prospection and recording wooden artefacts using 3 D laser scanning The volume also discusses the results of groundwater monitoring of sediments containing the late prehistoric timber alignment at Beccles and considers the longer term preservation potential of these fragile remains which as with other wetland archaeological sites are at ever increasing risk from development pressures as well as the longer term impacts of climate and environmental change
