Nader And The Power Of Everyman:

Nader and the Power of Everyman Hays Gorey, 1975      Science, Technology and Society Wenceslao J. González, 2005

The emphasis on the realm of Science Technology and Society or Science and Technology Studies may have the same degree of relevance that the historical turn had in the past. It is a social turn which affects philosophy of science as well as philosophy of technology. It includes a new vision of the aims, processes and results of scientific activities and technological doings because the focus of attention is on several aspects of science and technology which used to be considered as secondary or even irrelevant. This turn highlights science and technology as social undertakings rather than intellectual contents. According to this new vision there are several important changes as to what should be studied, the objects of research, how it should be studied, the method and what the consequences for those studies are. The new focus of attention can be seen in many changes and among them are several of special interest: a) from what science and technology are in themselves, mainly epistemic contents, to how science and technology are made, largely social constructions; b) from the language and structure of basic science to the characteristics of applied science and the applications of science; c) from technology as a feature through which human beings control their natural surroundings, a step beyond technics, due to the contribution of science to technology as a social practice and an instrument of power; and d) from the role of internal values necessary for mature science and innovative technology to the role of contextual or external values: cultural, political, economic of science and technology. Wenceslao J. Gonzalez is professor of logic and philosophy of science at the University of A Coruña, Spain. He has been vicedean of the School of Humanities and president of the Committee of Doctoral Programs at the University. He has been a visiting researcher at the Universities of St Andrews, Münster and London, London School of Economics as well as Visiting fellow at the Center for Philosophy of Science, University of Pittsburgh. He has given lectures at the Universities of Pittsburgh, Stanford, Quebec and Helsinki. The conferences in which he has participated include those organized by the Universities of Uppsala, New South Wales, Bologne and Canterbury, New Zealand. He has edited 20 volumes and published 70 papers. He is the editor of the monographic issues on Philosophy and Methodology of Economics (1998) and Lakatos's Philosophy Today (2001). His writings include Economic Prediction and Human Activity: An Analysis of Prediction in Economics from Action Theory (1994), On the Theoretical Basis of Prediction in Economics (1996), Rationality in Economics and Scientific Predictions: A Critical Reconstruction of Bounded Rationality and its Role in Economic Predictions (1997), Lakatos's Approach on Prediction and Novel Facts (2001), *Rationality in Experimental Economics: An Analysis of R. The book also includes more than 40 entries about consumer movements in Europe Asia Africa and Latin America A timeline of key events and a listing of the most important books on the subject of consumer activism help provide context for the individual entries as do two introductory essays Cross references in each entry establish linkages among topics

Prosperity for All Matthew Hilton, 2011-05-02 The history of consumerism is about much more than just shopping Ever since the eighteenth century citizen consumers have protested against the abuses of the market by boycotting products and promoting fair instead of free trade In recent decades consumer activism has responded to the challenges of affluence by helping to guide consumers through an increasingly complex and alien marketplace In doing so it has challenged the very meaning of consumer society and tackled some of the key economic social and political issues associated with the era of globalization In Prosperity for All the first international history of consumer activism Matthew Hilton shows that modern consumer advocacy reached the peak of its influence in the decades after World War II Growing out of the product testing activities of Consumer Reports and its international counterparts including Which in the United Kingdom Que Choisir in France and Test in Germany consumerism evolved into a truly global social movement Consumer unions NGOs and individual activists like Ralph Nader emerged in countries around the world including developing countries in Southeast Asia and Latin America concerned with creating a more equitable marketplace and articulating a politics of consumption that addressed the needs of both individuals and society as a whole Consumer activists achieved many victories from making cars safer to highlighting the dangers of using baby formula instead of breast milk in countries with no access to clean water The 1980s saw a reversal in the consumer movement's fortunes thanks in large part to the rise of an antiregulatory agenda both in the United States and internationally In the process the definition of consumerism changed focusing more on choice than on access As Hilton shows this change reflects more broadly on the dilemmas we all face as consumers Do we want more stuff and more prosperity for ourselves or do we want others less fortunate to be able to enjoy the same opportunities and standard of living that we do Prosperity for All makes clear that by abandoning a more idealistic vision for consumer society we reduce consumers to little more than shoppers and we deny the vast majority of the world's population the fruits of affluence

The Unmanageable Consumer Yiannis Gabriel, Tim Lang, 2006-04-07 This book was radically challenging when it was first published and is only more so today as the concept of consumer collapses under the weight of its many meanings Madeleine Bunting Columnist The Guardian Western style consumerism appears unstoppable Yet it is has failed to deliver greater happiness and is now facing major environmental population and political challenges This book examines the key Western traditions of thinking about and being a consumer Each chapter posits a consumer model with examples from the international community Readers are invited to enter an exciting and radical analysis of contemporary consumerism which suggests that consumerism is fragile and consumers unpredictable Updated with new material this Second Edition looks at the impact of new technologies on consumerism and the consolidation of consumerism and consumer language in spheres like education and health The authors discuss the spread of consumerism to developing countries like India and the effect of demographic change and migration The fallout from 9 11 and United States military hegemony is examined as is the influence on consumerism of Islamic fundamentalism the anti globalization movement environmental concerns and depleting natural resources This book is of interest to advanced undergraduate postgraduate and MBA students taking courses on behaviour buyer behaviour customer behaviour consumers and society and retailing Any one interested in better understanding consumerism will also find this book a fascinating read Consumers, Commissions, and Congress
