Natural Resources Management And Gender A Global Source Oxfam Gender Society And Development:

Natural Resources Management and Gender Minke Valk, 2002 Increasing recognition of the interaction between poverty and resources and environmental degradation has led to interventions that put more and more emphasis on working with local communities to improve the management of the environment and natural resources Identifying and overcoming the barriers to women's and men's full participation in the management of resources is a necessary first step towards the ultimate goals of poverty alleviation and sustainable development Understanding the environmental roles and responsibilities of women and men is critical to sustainable resource management practices The chapters in the book reflect experiences with mainstreaming gender and women's issues in natural resources management The introductory paper focusing on the history and current status of gender and natural resources management is followed by five further papers presenting cases of this approach written by experts and practitioners from different parts of the world The papers examine diverse natural resources from different perspectives ranging from the household and community level to national and regional policy They examine the security of women's rights to common property resources and land in West Africa mainstreaming gender in water policy and institutions in Gujarat India gender responsive planning in wetland development in Uganda empowering women in managing natural resources in mountain areas of the Hindu Kush Himalayas of Pakistan and the development of gender policies for environmental ministries in Mesoamerica The papers are complemented by an extensive annotated bibliography including references to books journals and electronic documents and a list of relevant Web resources Together these resources provide a global overview of the work in this field Published in association with KIT Publishers Natural Resources Management and Gender, 2002 Land Registration and Women's Land Rights in Amhara Region, Ethiopia Askale Teklu, 2005 Gender, Citizenship and Governance Minke Valk, 2004 In this book four case studies describe civil society initiatives that have intervened in governance and brought about changes in institutional practice aiming to secure strategic gender interests with a global perspective on governance and gender Land Tenure, Gender and Globalisation Dzodzi Tsikata, Pamela Golah, 2010 Drawing from field research in Cameroon Ghana Vietnam and the Amazon forests of Brazil Bolivia and Peru this book explores the relationship between gender and land revealing the workings of global capital and of people's responses to it A central theme is the people's resistance to global forces frequently through an insistence on the uniqueness of their livelihoods For instance in the Amazon the focus is on the social movements that have emerged in the context of struggles over land rights concerning the extraction of Brazil nuts and babacu kernels in an increasingly globalised market In Vietnam the process of de-collectivising rights to land is examined with a view to understand how gender and other social differences are reworked in a market economy The book addresses a gap in the literature on land tenure and gender in developing countries It raises new questions about the process of globalisation particularly about who the actors are local people the state NGOs multinational companies and the shifting relations amongst them The book also challenges the very concepts of gender and globalization Gender and ICTs for Development, 2005 Around the world information and communication technologies ICTs have changed the lives of individuals organizations and indeed entire nations ICTs can have profound implications for women and men in terms of employment education health environmental sustainability and community development Because of systemic gender biases in ICTs and their applications women are far more likely than men to experience discrimination in the new information society In spite of this resource poor and non literate women and their organizations are aware of the power of information technologies and communication processes and are using them to advance their basic needs and strategic interests improve their livelihoods and help them achieve their human rights Gender and ICTs for Development brings together case studies about women and their communities in developing countries and how they have been influenced by and have used ICTs in development An introduction by Helen Hambly Odame now at the University of Guelph in Canada formerly with the International Service for National Agricultural Research provides a global overview of the issues and a framework for responding to the case studies This book the seventh of these Global Sourcebooks features five major case studies which examine the diverse ways in which women have been able to make the most of digital opportunities e commerce in Bhutan entrepreneurship by women workers in China post conflict communication using radio and ICTs in Sierra Leone sustainable fisheries production in Ghana and information exchange related to HIV AIDS in the Caribbean The extensive and up to date critical bibliography of print and online resources makes this a truly global sourcebook on the topic Published in association with KIT Publishers Revisiting Gender Training Maitrayee Mukhopadhyay, Franz Wong, 2007 Revisiting Gender Training is concerned with the thinking behind gender education and training rather than with day to day practice It explores the explicit and implicit assumptions in gender training about the nature of knowledge epistemology about how knowledge is imparted pedagogy and about knowing cognition The book brings together case studies at country regional and global level to look critically behind the practice Jashodhara Dasgupta examines whether the primarily political nature of the feminist project has been unobtrusively dismantled by the language and tools of development in India including the use of gender training Josephine Ahikire analyses gender training in Uganda post Beijing Conference and the ways in which it has changed over time She focuses on the point where international imperatives meet the national context and considers the impact of gender training on the feminist intellectual and political project Lina Abou Habib considers gender training in the Machreq Maghreb region in the Middle East and North Africa She highlights the transformatory potential of such training and the ways in which it has dealt with patriarchal mindsets and institutions Claudy Vouhe discusses the conditions and factors that limit or strengthen the impact of gender training This contribution is the output from an international conference on gender training in the French speaking world in 2006 Shamim Meer explores the power of rights based development approaches for advancing ideas and action for social change including change to unequal gender power relations Starting with experience in South Africa she teases out the particular understandings of rights and agency and reflects on a methodology for linking reflection and action through starting from the personal Maitrayee Mukhopadhyay and Franz Wong introduce the book and establish its focus on gender training and feminist epistemology its tone of critical reflection and its aim of looking beneath the surface of much of the day to day gender activity and considering the assumptions made about of the links that exist between knowledge attitudes behaviours and practice An extensive and up to date annotated bibliography of international resources print and online makes this a truly global sourcebook on the topic Book jacket
