Savoy, 2011-02-01 An anthology of nature writing by people of color providing deeply personal connections to or disconnects from nature NPR From African American to Asian American indigenous to immigrant multiracial to mixed blood the diversity of cultures in this world is matched only by the diversity of stories explaining our cultural origins stories of creation and destruction displacement and heartbreak hope and mystery With writing from Jamaica Kincaid on the fallacies of national myths Yusef Komunyakaa connecting the toxic legacy of his hometown Bogalusa LA to a blind faith in capitalism and bell hooks relating the quashing of multiculturalism to the destruction of nature that is considered unpredictable among more than thirty five other examinations of the relationship between culture and nature this collection points toward the trouble of ignoring our cultural heritage but also reveals how opening our eyes and our minds might provide a more livable future Contributors Elmaz Abinader Faith Adiele Francisco X Alarcón Fred Arroyo Kimberly Blaeser Joseph Bruchac Robert D Bullard Debra Kang Dean Camille Dungy Nikky Finney Ray Gonzalez Kimiko Hahn bell hooks Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston Pualani Kanaka ʻōle Kanahele Robin Wall Kimmerer Jamaica Kincaid Yusef Komunyakaa J Drew Lanham David Mas Masumoto Maria Melendez Thyllias Moss Gary Paul Nabhan Nalini Nadkarni Melissa Nelson Jennifer Oladipo Louis Owens Enrique Salmon Aileen Suzara A J Verdelle Gerald Vizenor Patricia Jabbeh Wesley Al Young Ofelia Zepeda This notable anthology assembles thinkers and writers with firsthand experience or insight on how economic and racial inequalities affect a person's understanding of nature an illuminating read Bloomsbury Review An unprecedented and invaluable collection Booklist The Colors of Nature Alison Hawthorne Deming, Lauret E. Savoy, 2002 Challenging Euro American ideas of wilderness as absurd the writers in this book reaffirm the importance of nature to cultural identity whether Native American Chicano Mestizo or Hawaiian whether of Japanese Lebanese or African American descent back cover Culture and Identity in a Muslim Society Gary S. Gregg, 2007-02-15 In the last fifteen years psychologists have rediscovered culture and its influence on emotion thought and self Many researchers have come to the conclusion that the world's cultures can be ranked according to the degree to which they are individualist or collectivist with Western cultures falling at the individualist end and non Western cultures at the collectivist end These scholars argue that while individualist cultures give rise to independent selves leading Westerners to think and act autonomously collectivist cultures foster interdependent selves leading non Westerners embedded in social relationships to think and act relationally Culture and Identity in a Muslim Society presents an alternative to the individualist collectivist approach to identity Unlike most psychological and anthropological studies of culture and self Gary Gregg's work directly investigates individuals using study of lives style interviews with young adults living in villages and small towns in southern Morocco Analyzing these young adults life narratives Gregg builds a theory of culture and identity that differs from prevailing psychological and anthropological models in important respects In contrast to modernist theories of identity as unified the life narratives show individuals to articulate a small set of shifting identities In contrast to post modern theories that claim people have a kaleidoscopic multiplicity of fluid identities the narratives show that the identities are integrated by repeated use of culturally specific self symbols metaphors and story plots Most importantly the life narratives show these young Moroccans self representations to be pervasively shaped by the volatile cultural struggle between Western style modernity and authentic Muslim tradition Offering a new approach to the study of identity the volume will be of interest to cross cultural psychologists anthropologists scholars of Middle East societies and researchers specializing in the study of lives

Geography, Science and National Identity Charles W. J. Withers, 2001-10-04 Charles Withers book brings together work on the history of geography and the history of science with extensive archival analysis to explore how geographical knowledge has been used to shape an understanding of the nation Using Scotland as an exemplar the author places geographical knowledge in its wider intellectual context to afford insights into perspectives of empire national identity and the geographies of science In so doing he advances a new area of geographical enquiry the historical geography of geographical knowledge and demonstrates how and why different forms of geographical knowledge have been used in the past to constitute national identity and where those forms were constructed and received The book will make an important contribution to the study of nationhood and empire and will therefore interest historians as well as students of historical geography and historians of science It is theoretically engaging empirically rich and beautifully illustrated

Cultural Identity and Global Process Jonathan Friedman, 1994-10-05 This fascinating book explores the interface between global processes identity formation and the production of culture Examining ideas ranging from world systems theory to postmodernism Jonathan Friedman investigates the relations between the global and the local to show how cultural fragmentation and modernist homogenization are equally constitutive trends of global reality With examples taken from a rich variety of theoretical sources ethnographic accounts of historical eras the analysis ranges across the cultural formations of ancient

Greece contemporary processes of Hawaiian cultural identification and Congolese beauty cults Throughout the author examines the interdependency of world market and local cultural transformations and demonstrates the complex interrelations between globally structured social processes and the organization of identity Jonathan Friedman also documents the development and significance of a global perspective in an anthropology that illuminates a wide variety of domains from prehistory to world hegemony In so doing he interrogates the emergence of the concept of culture and suggests that anthropology itself is best understood within the trajectory of modernity

A Human Right to Culture and Identity Janne Mende, 2016-06-15 Is it desirable or even necessary to have distinct human rights for cultural identities Do different conceptions of culture and identity and their potential to frame human rights violations as culturally appropriate complicate the question How should a human right to collective identity be outlined Claims to human rights as applying to a whole ethnic religious or cultural group instead of the individual prove to be complex This book reveals the pitfalls benefits and demands that surround the debate for and against culture and identity in human rights It connects a continuous and nuanced theoretical debate with highly topical empirical findings about collective rights for indigenous groups which for centuries have been suppressed and marginalized and now stand at the forefront of successfully demanding a human right to their own culture and distinct identity This book shows the ambivalences of those demands and discusses solutions so that human rights neither exclude marginalized cultural groups nor reproduce rigid distinctions between seemingly exclusive cultures

Wallin, 2013-04-17 Nature and Identity in Cross Cultural Perspective presents 20 essays which explore diverse cultural interpretations of the earth's surface Contrasted with each other and with the potentially cosmopolitan culture of science these detailed studies of ways in which different cultures conceptualise nature appear in the context of global environmental change Understanding across cultural lines has never been more important This book shows how individual cultures see their own histories as offering protection for nature while often viewing others as lacking such ethical restraints Through such writing a discourse of understanding and common action becomes possible The authors come from the places they discuss and offer passionate as well as scholarly visions of nature within their cultural homes Audience This volume is of interest to academics and professionals working in the fields of cultural geography environmental history environmental studies history of environmental ideas environmental education landscape and literature nature and culture It can be used for courses in the above mentioned areas and seminars in comparative literature It can also be used as a complementary text to provide cultural context to literary readings and for seminars on cultural aspects of the environment
