Natures Religion:

Nature's Religion Robert S. Corrington, 1997-10-16 In the wake of both the semiotic and the psychoanalytic revolutions how is it possible to describe the object of religious worship in realist terms Semioticians argue that each object is known only insofar as it gives birth to a series of signs and interpretants new signs From the psychoanalytic side religious beliefs are seen to belong to transference energies and projections that contaminate the religious object with all too human complexes In Nature's Religion distinguished theologian and philosopher Robert S Corrington weaves together the concept of infinite semiosis with that of the transference to show that the self does have access to something in nature that is intrinsically religious Corrington argues that signs and our various transference fields can and do connect us with fully natural religious powers that are not of our own making thereby opening up a path past the Western monotheisms to a capacious religion of nature With a foreword by Robert C Neville Nature's Religion is essential reading for philosophers of religion scholars of the psychology of religion and theologians

A Religion of Nature Donald A. Crosby, 2012-02-01 The beauty sublimity and wonder of nature have been justly celebrated in all of the religious traditions of the world but usually these traditions have focused on beings or powers presumed to lie behind nature providing nature's ultimate explanation and meaning In a radical departure Donald A Crosby makes an eloquent case for regarding nature itself as the focus of religion conceived without God gods or animating spirits of any kind and argues that nature is metaphysically ultimate He explores the concept of nature the place of humans in nature the responsibilities of humans to one another and to their natural environments and offers a religious vision that grants to nature the kind of reverence awe love and devotion formerly reserved for God Crosby also shares his personal journey from theistic faith to a religion of nature
