Biodeterioration Research 1 Gerald C. Llewellyn, Charles E. O'Rear, 2012-12-06. Man-made textile fibers are frequently encountered as trace evidence in criminal investigations. This study examined the effects of burial in soil on the biodeterioration of synthetic textile fibers such as cellulose acetate, nylon, polyesters, and acrylics. Cellulose acetate fibers began to show signs of decomposition within two months after burial in common garden topsoil and were completely degraded within four to nine months. It was found that severely decomposed cellulose acetate fibers could be identified by pyrolysis gas liquid chromatography even when other methods such as polarized light microscopy and dispersion staining failed. The solubility behavior of the cellulose acetate fibers also was altered. The other types of fibers showed no detectable alteration at the end of the twelve-month study.

Museums and Archaeology Robin Skeates, 2022-06-19. Museums and Archaeology brings together a wide but carefully chosen selection of literature from around the world that connects museums and archaeology. Part of the successful Leicester Readers in Museum Studies series, it provides a combination of issue and practice-based perspectives. As such, it is a volume not only for students and researchers from a range of disciplines interested in museum, gallery, and heritage studies, including public archaeology and cultural resource management (CRM), but also the wide range of professionals and volunteers in the museum and heritage sector who work with archaeological collections. The volume's balance of theory and practice and its thematic and geographical breadth is explored and explained in an extended introduction which situates the readings in the context of the extensive literature on museum archaeology, highlighting the many tensions that exist between idealistic principles and real-life practice and the debates that surround these. In addition to this section, introductions and the seminal pieces themselves provide a comprehensive and contextualised resource on the interplay of museums and archaeology.
