Designing XR Peter (Zak) Zakrzewski, 2022-02-14 In Designing XR H C immersion is presented as a multi dimensional design problem which addresses the question of How can transformative design thinking based knowledge systems complement the existing HCI invention model to contribute to the creation of more socially viable and humane immersive media environments

Discrete Choice Experiments in Marketing Klaus Zwerina, 2013-06-29 The chapter starts with a positioning of this dissertation in the marketing discipline It then provides a comparison of the two most popular methods for studying consumer preferences choices namely conjoint analysis and discrete choice experiments Chapter 1 continues with a description of the context of discrete choice experiments Subsequently the research problems and the objectives of this dissertation are discussed The chapter concludes with an outline of the organization of this dissertation 1 1 Positioning of the Dissertation During this century increasing globalization and technological progress has forced companies to undergo rapid and dramatic changes for some a threat for others it offers new opportunities Companies have to survive in a Darwinian marketplace where the principle of natural selection applies Marketplace success goes to those companies that are able to produce marketable value Le products and services that others are willing to purchase Kotler 1997 Every company must be engaged in new product development to create the new products customers want because competitors will do their best to supply them Besides offering competitive advantages new products usually lead to sales growth and stability As household incomes increase and consumers become more selective firms need to know how consumers respond to different features and appeals Successful products and services begin with a thorough understanding of consumer needs and wants Stated otherwise companies need to know about consumer preferences to manufacture tailor made products consumers are willing to buy

Borrowing Constitutional Designs Cindy Skach, 2011-02-11 After the collapse of communism some thirty countries scrambled to craft democratic constitutions Surprisingly the constitutional model they most often chose was neither the pure parliamentary model found in most of Western Europe at the time nor the presidential model of the Americas Rather it was semi presidentialism a rare model known more generally as the French type This constitutional model melded elements of pure presidentialism with those of pure parliamentarism Specifically semi presidentialism combined a popularly elected head of state with a head of government responsible to a legislature Borrowing Constitutional Designs questions the hasty adoption of semi presidentialism by new democracies Drawing on rich case studies of two of the most important countries for European politics in the twentieth century Weimar Germany and the French Fifth Republic Cindy Skach offers the first theoretically focused and historically grounded analysis of semi presidentialism and democracy She demonstrates that constitutional choice matters because under certain conditions semi presidentialism structures incentives that make democratic consolidation difficult or that actually contribute to democratic collapse She offers a new theory of constitutional design integrating insights from law and the social sciences In doing so Skach challenges both democratic theory and democratic practice This book will be welcomed not only by scholars and practitioners of constitutional law but also by those in fields such as comparative politics European politics and history and international and public affairs
