As a gerontological clinical educator/research nurse, I will often use this as a reference. Evidence-Based Geriatric Nursing Protocols for Best Practice is intended to bring the most current evidence-based protocols known to experts in geriatric nursing to the audience of students, both graduate and undergraduate practitioners at the staff level, from novice to expert clinicians in specialty roles, educators, care managers, and advanced practice nurses and nursing leaders of all levels. We owe a debt of gratitude to the many authors and the editors for bringing this work to us. From the preface by Susan Bowar Ferres, PhD, RN, CNAA, BC, Senior Vice President, Clinical Nurse Specialist, Durham Veterans Administration Medical Center, Geriatric Research, Education, and Clinical Center. Preventing Falls in a Medical Surgical Unit Shalini Singh, 2019 The prevention of patient falls continues to remain a challenge in healthcare. Up to 30% of falls often result in injury, which includes fractures, soft tissue trauma, or even death. Titler, 2016 Out of the recorded number of falls in hospitals worldwide, between 4% to 7% result in severe injuries to the patients. Falls in the hospital can prolong a hospital stay, increase hospital costs, and extend a discharge from home to a long-term care facility. With the prolonged stay of patients who fall in hospitals, hospital costs are on a rise. Falls can increase the cost, not just for hospitals but higher hospital bills for the patient as an outcome. There will be a commitment to meet all patient needs and make improvements to what is not working. Safety is critical to a Medical Surgical unit, and to keep our patients safe from falling, we have fall prevention tools implemented on the unit, such as yellow armband, bed chair alarms, and signs outside the door that let everyone know that the patient is at high risk for falls An ongoing commitment to the patient has been reinforced and daily huddles are performed to remind the staff on safety implementations In order to decrease the patient fall rate and increase patient s safety a reinforcement training on the practice and standard work for patient toileting alarms and hourly rounding is needed for continuous improvement Keywords falls fall education safety protocols and fall prevention

An Educational Program Using Pictograms in Reducing Patient Falls ,2014 Preventing patient falls in an acute care setting is a significant challenge for healthcare organizations across the nation It is the sixth most reported adverse event in hospitals and has been identified by The Joint Commission TJC as one of the top five sentinel events There is an abundance of nursing literature examining risk factors and interventions implemented to prevent falls However how to communicate patient specific fall prevention plans among healthcare members is lacking specifically the use of pictograms to enhance the communication of a patient s fall risk status and fall prevention plan among the healthcare providers and its effect in reducing patient falls The purpose of this study was to examine the use of pictograms at the patient s bedside to communicate a patient s fall risk status and fall prevention plan and its effect on patient falls A quasi experimental pretest and posttest study design was used for this study Results of this study revealed that there is no statistically significant difference $\chi^2 2 34 p .05$ between patient fall rates pre and post implementation of the pictogram However the study did reveal that there was a statistically significant difference $\chi^2 2 7 43 p .05$ in the staffs perception of the communication of high risk patients and fall prevention interventions pre and post implementation of the pictogram These results indicated that the staffs perception of the communication of high risk for fall patients and fall prevention interventions post implementation of the pictogram did increase The findings of this study are both timely and relevant as nurses move into the next era of healthcare which includes healthcare reform increased scrutiny by regulatory agencies and healthcare payers as well as the expectations of the patients and or family members to provide high quality care and keep the patients safe and free from injury Slip, Trip, and Fall Prevention Steven Di Pilla,2016-04-19 A comprehensive reference for the prevention control and mitigation of slip trip and fall accidents this volume covers standards and best practices relating to facility design effective management control programs test methods and standards relating to pedestrian safety and slip resistance methods Providing information on slip fall accident reporting investigation and mitigation it includes checklists handouts case studies rich online resources and an extensive bibliography
