Radical childhoods Jessica Gerrard, 2016-05-16 At a time when education appears to be simply reproducing social class relations Radical childhoods offers a timely consideration of how children's and young people's education can confront and challenge social inequality Presenting detailed analysis of archival material and oral testimony the book examines the experiences of students and educators in two schooling initiatives that were connected to two of the most significant social movements in Britain Socialist Sunday Schools est 1892 and Black Saturday Supplementary Schools est 1967 Analysing across time the author explores the ways in which these two very different schooling movements incorporated large numbers of women challenged class and race inequality and attempted to create spaces of emancipatory education independent to the state It argues that despite appearing to be on the margins of the public sphere these schools were important if contested and complex sites of political struggle

Cape Radicals Crain Soudien, 2019-06-03 The history of a radical group of intellectuals who founded the New Era Fellowship which shaped human rights precedents and social justice policy in South Africa In 1937 a group of young Capetonians socialist intellectuals from the Workers Party of South Africa embarked on a project they called the New Era Fellowship NEF In doing so they sought to disrupt and challenge not only prevailing political narratives but the very premises class and race on which they were based In different forums public debates lectures study circles and cultural events the seeds of radical thinking were planted nurtured and brought to full flower Taking a position of non collaboration and non racialism the NEF played a vital role in challenging society s responses to events ranging from the problem of taking up arms during the Second World War for an empire intent on stripping people of colour of their human rights to the Hertzog Bills which foreshadowed apartheid in all its ruthless effectiveness In subsequent narratives of liberation their significance has been overlooked even disparaged and has never been fully understood and acknowledged By shining a contemporary light on the NEF and locating its contribution in current sociological and political discourse educationist Crain Soudien shows how its members were at the forefront of redefining the debate about social difference in a racially divided society The Unfinished Politics of Race Les

Back,Michael Keith,Kalbir Shukra,John Solomos,2022-12-01 The Unfinished Politics of Race argues that the past few decades have seen important transformations in the politics of race Contending that existing accounts have focused narrowly on the mainstream political sphere this study argues that there is a need to explore the role of race more widely By exploring the mainstream as well as transitional and alternative spheres of political mobilisation the authors stress the need to link the analysis of both local and national processes in order to make sense of the changing contours of racialised politics The underlying concern of this study is to outline both a theoretical frame for an analysis of racial politics and detailed empirical accounts of different arenas of political mobilisation By exploring the unfinished politics of race this study provides a timely reminder that the position of racial and ethnic minorities in political institutions remains deeply contested Radical

Sovereignty Tony Wood,2026-01-06 In the 1920s and 1930s Latin American radicals engaged in urgent debates over how to combat racism resist empire and reimagine the nation state Drawing on a global array of sources Radical Sovereignty reconstructs these transnational discussions that unfolded in such far flung locations as Mexico City Buenos Aires Havana Moscow and Brussels Energized by the Mexican and Russian Revolutions communists trade unionists peasant organizers and anti imperial activists emerged from these debates with innovative ideas for addressing historical oppressions including proposals for a pan continental confederation and calls to grant Black and Indigenous peoples in the Americas the right to form their own sovereign states While these projects did not come to fruition they left an enduring mark on Latin America s political landscape bequeathing approaches to race ethnicity and self determination that have resurfaced in recent years

Westheider, 1997-04 A very powerful account of a significant aspect of recent American military history Journal of Military History Westheider has researched very thoroughly an effort including extensive interviews with Vietnam veterans and he possesses a rare gift for narrative that makes the result of all this research eminently readable A highly desirable addition for both African American studies and military affairs collections an invaluable history Booklist Highly recommended Library Journal James E Westheider persuasively argues that black soldiers were the key factor in bringing about a more egalitarian military This book significantly advances our understanding of both race relations and armed forces Charles Moskos Northwestern University With this meticulous investigation of how institutional racism operated in the military of the 1960s and 70s James Westheider provides us with a model for making sense of institutional sexism in the Tailhook era military Cynthia Enloe author of The Morning After Sexual Politics at the End of the Cold War The racial tensions that have long plagued American society exist to a much lesser extent in the military where the bond of common pursuit and shared experience renders race less relevant Or so conventional wisdom has long held In this dramatic history of race relations during the Vietnam war James E Westheider illustrates how American soldiers in Vietnam grappled with many of the same racial conflicts that were tearing apart their homeland thousands of miles away Over seven years in the making

Fighting on Two Fronts draws on interviews with dozens of Vietnam veterans black and white and official Pentagon documents to paint the first complete picture of the African American experience in Vietnam Westheider reveals how preconceptions and petty misunderstandings often exacerbated racial anxieties during the conflict Military barbers for instance were often inexperienced with black hair leading black soldiers to cut each other's hair an act perceived as separatist by their white counterparts Similarly black soldiers often greeted one another with a ritualized handshake or dap as a sign of solidarity the unfamiliarity of which threatened many white soldiers and was a source of resentment until it was banned in 1973 Despite ample evidence of institutional racism in the armed forces the military elite responded only when outbreaks of racial violence became disruptive enough to threaten military discipline and attract negative attention from the civilian world A crucial addition to our understanding of Vietnam Fighting on Two Fronts is a compelling example of the new military history at its finest James E Westheider is a Lecturer in African American history at Northern Kentucky University He received his Ph D in History from the University of Cincinnati
