Rain Of Death:

The Dancing Dead W. E. A. van Beek, 2012-06-05 Walter E A van Beek draws on over four decades of extensive fieldwork to offer an in depth study of the religion of the Kapsiki Higi who live in the Mandara Mountains on the border between North Cameroon and Northeast Nigeria Concentrating on ritual as the core of traditional religion van Beek shows how Kapsiki Higi practices have endured through the long and turbulent history of the region Kapsiki rituals reveal a focus on two fundamental concepts dwelling and belonging Van Beek examines their sacrificial practices through which the Kapsiki show a complex and pervasive connection with the Mandara Mountains as well as the character of their relationships among themselves and with outsiders Van Beek also explores their rituals of belonging rites of passage which take place from birth through initiation and marriage and even death with the tradition of the dancing dead when a fully decorated corpse on the shoulders of a smith dances with his mourning kinsmen The Dancing Dead is the result of the author s lifelong study of the Kapsiki Higi It gives a unique description of the rituals in an African traditional religion based not upon ancestors but on a completely relational thought system where in the end all rituals are integrated into one major cycle

Death and Donation D. Scott Henderson, 2011-08-08 Since its inception in 1968 the brain death criterion for human death has enjoyed the status of one of the few relatively well settled issues in bioethics However over the last fifteen years or so a growing number of experts in medicine philosophy and religion have come to regard brain death as an untenable criterion for the determination of death Given that the debate about brain death has occupied a relatively small group of professionals few are aware that brain death fails to correspond to any coherent biological or philosophical conception of death This is significant for if the brain dead are not dead then the removal of their vital organs for transplantation is the direct cause of their deaths and a violation of the Dead Donor Rule This unique monograph synthesizes the social legal medical religious and philosophical problems inherent in current social policy allowing for organ donation under the brain death criterion In so doing this bioethical appraisal offers a provocative investigation of the ethical quandaries inherent in the way transplantable organs are currently procured Drawing together these multidisciplinary threads this book advocates the abandonment of the brain death criterion in light of its adverse failures and concludes by laying the groundwork for a new policy of death in an effort to further the good of organ donation and transplantation
