Reproductive Freedom, Torture and International Human Rights Ronli Sifris, 2013-12-13 This book contributes to a feminist understanding of international human rights by examining restrictions on reproductive freedom through the lens of the right to be free from torture and other cruel inhuman or degrading treatment Ronli Sifris challenges the view that torture only takes place within the traditional paradigm of interrogation punishment or intimidation of a detainee arguing that this traditional construction of the concept of torture prioritises the experiences of men over the experiences of women given that the pain and suffering from which women disproportionately suffer frequently occurs outside of this context She does this by conceptualising restrictions on women s reproductive freedom within the framework of the right to be free from torture The book considers the gendered nature of international law and the gender dimensions of the right to be free from torture It examines the extension of the prohibition of torture to encompass situations beyond the traditional detainee context in recent years to encompass situations such as rape and female genital mutilation It goes on to explore in detail whether denying access to abortion and involuntary sterilization constitutes torture or other cruel inhuman or degrading treatment under international law The book looks at whether limitations on reproductive freedom meet the determining criteria of torture which are severe pain or suffering being intentionally inflicted being based on discrimination linked in some way to a State official whether they constitute lawful sanctions and the importance of the concept of powerlessness In doing so the book also highlights how this right may be applicable to other gender based abuses including female genital mutilation and how this right may be universally applied to allow women worldwide the right to reproductive freedom

Abortion Rights as the Free Exercise of Religion Peter S. Wenz, 2025-07-18 This book is the first to analyze Supreme Court decisions related to religious freedom and abortion rights showing that the Court gives women a religious right to abortions at least during the first half of pregnancy The Court considers any sincerely claimed religious belief to be worthy of accommodation if it causes no great harm Therefore a woman who claims that having a child would interfere with work dedicated to God's glory should receive an accommodation that exempts her from state laws restricting abortion as that is the kind of relief accorded by the Court to others seeking religious exemptions from generally applicable laws and other rules The Court cannot claim in this case that abortion causes great harm because it maintains even in its most recent abortion decision that it is neutral on the question of when the unborn attains a right to life and loss of the unborn's life is the central harm claimed by others regarding abortion The book argues that 21 weeks of gestation is the earliest point at which a right to life can be attributed to the fetus on a scientific basis
