Freedom of Seas, Passage Rights and the 1982 Law of the Sea Convention Myron H. Nordquist, Tommy Koh, John Norton Moore, 2009-02-28 Freedom of the seas and passage rights is a highly topical subject for the international community that cuts across a broad spectrum of scholarly disciplines and maritime operations. The contents of the book include in depth analysis of current international and regional approaches to freedom of navigation transit passage through straits used for international navigation archipelagic sea lanes passage scientific research and hydrographic surveys in the Exclusive Economic Zone EEZ military surveys in the EEZ as well as vessel source pollution and protection of the marine environment. Many of the chapters describe measures in place at multilateral and regional levels to improve information sharing and operational coordination. This collection will especially appeal to those concerned with freedom of the seas and passage rights. The CD accompanying the volume includes important documents such as the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea as well as many PowerPoint presentations delivered at the conference. It also includes a draft index to the multi volume series United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 A Commentary. This book contains the edited papers and associated documents from the 32nd annual Virginia conference held in Singapore January 9-10 2008. Presentations were delivered by government officials senior naval and coast guard commanders as well as by leading jurists and academics with impressive expertise in the law of the sea.

Exclusive Economic Zone, 1984 Navigating Semi-colonialism Anne Reinhardt, 2020-10-26. China's status in the world of expanding European empires of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries has long been under dispute. Its unequal relations with multiple powers secured through a system of treaties rather than through colonization has invited debate over the degree and significance of outside control and local sovereignty. Navigating Semi Colonialism examines steam navigation introduced by foreign powers to Chinese waters in the mid nineteenth century as a constitutive element of the treaty system to illuminate both conceptual and concrete aspects of this regime arguing for the specificity of China's experience its continuities with colonialism in other contexts and its links to global processes. Focusing on the shipping network of open treaty ports the book examines the expansion of steam navigation the growth of shipping enterprise and the social climate of the steamship in the late nineteenth century as arenas of contestation and collaboration that highlight the significance of partial Chinese sovereignty and the limitations imposed upon it. It further analyzes the transformation of this regime under the nationalism of the Republican period and pursues a comparison of shipping regimes in China and India to provide a novel perspective on China under the treaty system.

Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications, 1986 International Straits Ana G. López Martín, 2010-08-14. The four 1958 Geneva Conventions on the Law of the Sea which codified and progressively developed this sector of our legislation were rather ephemeral despite the fact that they were constituent Conventions. In fact the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea UNCLOS again undertook the same task with the same spirit 20 years later after a long drawn out global negotiation process in which all the marine areas and problems pending were analysed and discussed by the countries attending and an apparently strengthened majority was attained including the essential agreement between the principal naval powers and the third world countries symbolised most grossly in the recognition of exclusive economic areas which were 200 miles wide in exchange for a significant alteration to the legal rules applicable to the international straits From 1973 to 1982 the negotiations showed that there were a number of particular factors affecting the seas strait countries user countries long range shing countries embedded countries archipelagic countries broad platform countries etc In 1982 when the UNCLOS was adopted it seemed to be a text with justified pretensions to be in force for a long period of time as the nine years of negotiations required for its adoption had taken into account the main problems pending agreement although not absolutely all The Legal Regime of Straits Hugo Caminos, Vincent P. Nordquist, John Norton Moore, Robert Beckman, Ronán Long, 2014-10-09 Freedom of Navigation and Globalization offers a timely analysis of current issues in the Law of the Sea in six Parts Part I examines cooperative measures taken within the Southeast Asia region to combat piracy and armed robbery against ships and the historical activities of the Republic of Korea navy in countering piracy Part II focuses on transnational threats including counter proliferation activities freedom of navigation Illegal Unreported and Unregulated IUU fishing and the regulation of private maritime security companies Part III consists of two essays on development in the Arctic Ocean The first updates the activities of the Arctic Council the second looks at cooperative measures taken by China Japan and Korea with respect to science in the Arctic In Part IV the topic of energy security and sealanes is taken up Institutional building within ASEAN is examined for maritime security in Southeast Asia Freedom of navigation is compared with the straight baselines of China in the South China Sea In the next essay cooperative efforts to enhance navigational safety and environmental protection in the Straits of Malacca and Singapore are explored Part V considers balancing marine environmental protection and freedom of navigation The European Union's Marine Strategy Framework Directive is reviewed The dispute settlement regime in UNCLOS and the 2001 International Law Commission Articles on the Responsibility of States for Internationally Wrongful Acts are analyzed for flag State responsibility for pollution violations The current mechanisms in the South China Sea marine environment are also evaluated Part VI discusses marine data collection in the context of its applicability to Part XIII of UNCLOS Attention is given to the various categories and their legal consequences The last paper in the volume outlines global challenges such as global warming rising sea level and changes in the ice over in the Polar Regions Navigational Rights and Freedoms and the New Law of the Sea

Donald R. Rothwell, Sam Bateman, 2021-10-18 Navigational rights and freedoms have been central to the development of the law of the sea since the original debates over whether the seas were open or closed to maritime traffic The 1982 UN Convention on the Law of the Sea recognises the legitimate rights of coastal states to proclaim sovereignty and assert jurisdiction over vast areas of maritime space In return maritime states are given a range of navigational rights over waters ranging from the territorial sea through to the high sea The new regime of the law of the sea created by the Convention presents an opportunity to review developments in the law of navigational rights and freedoms This book assesses the navigational regime established by the 1982 Convention with emphasis given to the continuing importance of the freedom of the seas Navigation in the territorial sea and international straits is reviewed especially in the Straits of Malacca and Singapore and the Torres Strait Archipelagic navigation from the perspective of two claimant states Indonesia and the Philippines and a user state South Korea is also considered The interaction of environmental concerns with navigational rights is an important feature of the current law of the sea regime with relevant conventions assessed and the role of the International Maritime Organization in developing navigational standards considered Both European and Canadian practice in the protection of sensitive marine environments and the impact upon navigational rights is also considered Finally the roles of the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea and the International Maritime Organization in dispute resolution are reviewed before a concluding consideration of the future for navigational rights and freedoms in the twenty first century

United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Environment and Public Works, 2005 Securing the Safety of Navigation in East Asia Shicun Wu, Keyuan Zou, 2013-11-21 Safe navigation of the seas is of global importance Sea lanes provide vital connections for the growth of the global economy and the wellbeing of people everywhere The sea lanes are of particular importance for the East Asian region as most trade is undertaken on the ocean Booming economies in the region such as China and Vietnam put more pressure on sea lanes triggering concern for the safety of navigation Securing the Safety of Navigation in East Asia identifies salient issues for academic debate and further explores those that have practical implications for the safety of navigation in East Asia Contemporary maritime security concentrates on safe navigation and inhibiting transnational crimes including sea piracy and maritime terrorism Maritime environmental security and search and rescue at sea are also important Securing the Safety of Navigation in East Asia is structured into four sections the first part introduces the topic and looks at the safety of navigation and the search for a cooperative mechanism The second part considers the international legal framework and its implications for East Asia The third part presents national perspectives on the safety of navigation and finally part four considers navigational issues in the South China Sea Places a special focus on East Asia Accommodates national perspectives in East Asia on navigation given by scholars from China Japan South Korea Malaysia the Philippines and Singapore Presents a special section on the South China Sea located in Southeast Asia and connecting the Indian and Pacific oceans a critical sea route for maritime transport
